MOVE TO HOLD DRYS STARTED BY M'CORMICK

REFERENDUM SURE TO PASS, IS BELIEF

Mrs. O'Neill Launches Campaign in State Auto Tour.

LEWIS, DEMOCRAT, IS AVOWEDLY WET

Outcome Will Depend Upon Strength Drys' Choice Can Muster.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—Illinois' presentation of the great musical comedy, "Political Vanities," this year bids fair to wean many of Earl Carroll's followers away.

It is set to a fast-stepping, jazzy tune and the costumes are what one might call just elegant. Indeed, one's enthusiasm after viewing the show might be moved to such ungrammatical hyperbole as "most elegantest."

Romance, hate, jealousy and intrigue run through the plot in a most pleasing way, and so ambitious is the whole thing that it is easily possible that the United States Senate may be drawn in, before the final curtain, as the wicked villain.

Cast of Characters.

At present the cast is composed of two ladies of the chorus, the Widows McCormick and Lottie O'Neill.

They trip merrily out onto the stage singing:

"You did; I didn't."

"You tricked the voters in the primary by saying you were dry," the Widow O'Neill sings accusingly.

"Oh, no, I didn't; no, I didn't," retorts the Widow Ruth.

At this juncture appears the gentleman of the chorus, a most dapper picture in a double-breasted brown coat, a red carnation in his lapel, an open-throated collar, a meticulously woven tie, snow-white whiskers that were once high pink and a tousled crop of reddish hair.

Dances Between Ladies.

Swinging his cane jauntily, and with his insouciantly creased hat in his other hand, he dances cleverly in between the ladies while they keep kicking to the right and then to the left, in tune with the music. Facing the audience, he bows, and you think instantly, "There is a devil if there ever was one."

The motif changes from the high-pitched feminine chirp to his resonant basso voice:

"Now hear the ladies quarrel. You should listen to me.

Better Than Thompson Show.

Followers of the theater that is Illinois insist that this year's production is the best yet. It is much more entertaining than the melodramatic presentation of a few years ago when William Hale Thompson went around shadow boxing with King George. It is better, indeed, than Mrs. McCormick's serio-comic warning against the World Court just a few months ago.

Incidentally, when Mrs. O'Neill now taunts Mrs. McCormick about being opposed to the President on the World Court, she retorts by saying she doesn't believe the President is in favor of it.

The outcome of this circus depends to a large degree on how large a vote the widow O'Neill, running as an independent dry Republican, polls. Her campaign is yet to take definite shape. She herself, a quiet, keen-eyed woman who has the knack of wearing simple clothes well, is just

Calvin Coolidge Says:

We have just completed the first decade of national woman suffrage. Generally it has revealed that while women are not eager for public office they administer it successfully. Not all the claims made about the value they would add to political life have been substantiated. Party alignments have been little changed. If a purification of politics has not yet been perceptible, probably public life was already reasonably clean.

But women voters have had a very considerable influence on party platforms and governmental policy, especially on the humane and social welfare sides. Education is better served. Ten years are too short for final results. The women are particularly effective on the conservative side of affairs. They are still the homemakers. They look to the future. They think of conditions not only for themselves but for their posterity.

The great benefit of their vote will be in bringing to the aid of the state that spiritual support which they have so long given to the church. They are devoted, steadfast, sensible. They will not follow radical proposals, but will be influenced by moral. Nothing can be safer for the Commonwealth than the informed judgment of the mothers of the land.

NYE INQUIRY OPENS IN NORTH CAROLINA

Finds Bailey Spent More for Democratic Nomination Than Was Reported.

TENNESSEE QUIZ NEXT

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The Senate campaign funds committee today dug its inquisitorial pitchfork into the North Carolina senatorial primary, uncovered the spending of a few thousand dollars more than was previously reported in behalf of Josiah W. Bailey, Democratic nominee, and prepared to shift its scene of activity into Tennessee.

From the same witnesses who told of the added expenditures in the successful campaign of Bailey over the veteran Senator F. M. Simmons, the committee heard the contention that the official reports covered all the disbursements required by law.

The committee apparently was not inclined to contest that view. Chairman Gerald P. Nye characterized the hearing at its close as "most refreshing in comparison with some of the things disclosed in other States."

C. L. Shuping, of Greensboro, who managed Bailey's campaign, admitted under questioning he had paid campaign bills of between "five and six thousand dollars" after the primary.

The total of Bailey's campaign expenditures as reported to the secretary of state was just a few hundred dollars under the $10,000 maximum permitted by North Carolina statute. Shuping asserted that when the report was filed, the only bills he knew to be outstanding were the telephone and telegraph bills for the final day of the campaign.

James H. Pou, of Raleigh, Bailey's father-in-law, told of spending approximately $2,500 in the campaign. Bailey's report of contributions listed him as having given $750.

Pou said, however, that the $750 was all that was spent through Bailey's headquarters. He explained his belief that the remainder under the statute was not required to be reported and Nye interrupted: "Of course," said Nye, "a candidate in any State is not expected to report moneys expended in his behalf, but over which he has no control and, perhaps, no knowledge."

At the outset of the hearing, Nye said the committee had reports that large sums of money were spent during the campaign and many illegal votes cast.

The committee's plans were in a tentative state tonight, but Senator Nye said he and Senator Wagner planned to leave for Nashville, Tenn.,

BRIBE INDICTMENTS FACE DRY OFFICERS

BOTH ARE SUSPENDED

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A. D. Nicholas, a special State prohibition officer, now under suspension, was charged in an indictment returned by the Chesterfield County grand jury today with extortion and accepting a bribe.

N. W. Hughes, another suspended dry officer, was indicted on a charge of aiding and abetting Nicholas in the extortion case. The two men were arrested by Chesterfield County police last Wednesday and were suspended from the State force the following day by Attorney General John R. Saunders.

Chesterfield police said the two officers arrested Mike Adams, a resident of the county, several months ago on a prohibition charge, but at the trial of the case last week they testified they did not recognize him. An argument between Adams and the two officers took place after the charge against Adams was dismissed, police stated, Adams claiming he had taken care of the agents.

The county officers said they arranged for Nicholas' arrest after Adams was to give him marked bills. When arrested the State officer said they were placed on his person without his knowledge. The trial was set for Saturday, October 25.

Pair Hurt as Auto Is Forced Off Road

Car Badly Smashed When It Goes Into Ditch Near Owensville.

Two Washingtonians are in Emergency Hospital at Annapolis, Md., as the result of an automobile accident near Owensville, Md., early yesterday morning. They are Miss Mildred Redman, 23 years old, 1105 C street southwest, and Walter W. Girton, 20 years old, of 1215 Thirteenth street northwest. Miss Redman is suffering from a fractured collar bone and a slight fracture of the nose, while Mr. Girton is severely cut and bruised.

They were in the rumble seat of an automobile driven by Frank Bowman, of Hyattsville, Md., and with a second girl, whose name was not learned by hospital authorities, were returning to Washington from Shady Side, in Anne Arundel County.

Near Owensville, Bowman told State Policeman James Shockley, his car was forced off the road by a second machine occupied by several Negroes. Bowman's auto went into a ditch at the roadside and was badly wrecked. Bowman's companion escaped injury and he was only slightly bruised, but the pair in the rumble seat suffered the brunt of the mishap.

MORROW TALK BACKS HOOVER FOR NEW TERM

Senate Candidate From New Jersey Disavows White House Goal.

G. O. P. CAN NOT DENY HARD TIMES, HE SAYS

Reiterates His Stand for Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment.

PRAISES PRESIDENT FOR WORK AT RELIEF

Foreign Affairs Conducted With Dignity, Wisdom, He Declares.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, opening his campaign for election to the United States Senate on the Republican ticket, reiterated tonight his advocacy of repeal of the eighteenth amendment and eliminated himself as a candidate for the presidency in 1932.

Speaking from the same platform where five months ago he first expressed himself in favor of repeal and a return to State control of liquor traffic, he repeated that view, commended warmly President Hoover and the national administration, and concluded:

"I look forward with pleasure and confidence to the opportunity of voting two years from now for the renomination and reelection of Herbert Hoover."

Aware of Suffering.

The Senate nominee said it was idle for any Republican to contend the United States was not passing through a period of depression, a period when substantial unemployment exists.

"Merely because I am a candidate for public office," he said, "I do not for one moment underestimate the suffering hard times bring to many people whose margin of saving has been small.

"Rather I want to recognize frankly the situation that exists and to do what I can to assist those public and private agencies which are trying to remedy the difficulties."

Tribute to Hoover.

Mr. Morrow is a candidate both for the full senatorial term of six years and for the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, who resigned to become Ambassador to France. His Democratic opponents are Alexander Simpson for the long and Thelma Parkinson for the short term. The Republican nominee had been mentioned, after the primary in which he won from three opponents by a plurality of almost 400,000 votes, as a presidential possibility, partly because of his outspoken declaration for prohibition repeal.

Tonight in his tribute to President Hoover Mr. Morrow said, "President Hoover stands today a potent and positive factor for peace in the world—peace at home and abroad. His wise action in his unofficial capacity in bringing the leaders of business and labor together one year ago has contributed in a great degree to an avoidance of those conflicts between capital and labor which so often in the past have complicated our periods of depression and delayed our industrial recovery.

Two Years From Now.

"At a time of stress when so many parts of the world are in disorder, our foreign affairs have been conducted with dignity and wisdom. President Hoover's initiative and driving force created the London disarmament treaty, which eliminated for the first time in the history of the world competition in all classes of naval armament among the three leading nations of the world.

"I am not speaking with the authority of the President of the United States or even with his knowledge. I do have the right to say, however, that in my opinion the Republican national administration with Presi-

Constitutionality of Act Not Passed On by Highest Tribunal.

WAY IS LEFT OPEN FOR LATER RULING

SECOND LEGAL BLOW AT MEASURE IS LOST

(Associated Press.)

An attack on the constitutionality of the Jones law, under which a violator of the Volstead act can be sent to prison for five years and fined $10,000, failed yesterday before the Supreme Court.

The suit came from Missouri. Two St. Joseph residents, Hugh McElvogue and William J. Brown, challenged the statute, under which McElvogue was sentenced to the penitentiary for a year and Brown four years.

As is customary, the court in refusing to pass upon the constitutionality of the drastic dry law gave no explanation. The question of the constitutionality of the Jones act was not raised, however, in the United States District Court where the cases were first tried.

Challenge on Appeal.

The challenge to the statute was made on appeal to the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. Those familiar with Supreme Court procedure pointed out that in such circumstances the tribunal generally decides that a question of constitutionality has not been properly presented.

Denial of the petition for review does not preclude the court at some future date from passing upon the constitutionality of the statute.

The Jones act, passed in 1929, said it was the intent of Congress to "discriminate between casual or slight violations and habitual sales of intoxicating liquor, or attempts to commercialize violations of the law."

Argument of Defense.

Counsel for McElvogue and Brown argued the delegation to the trial judge of authority to classify the offense and determine the punishment violated the Constitution.

Another legal attack on a conviction under the Jones law also failed yesterday before the court. Frank Ross was convicted of violating the liquor laws at the Viaduct Club, Elm Grove, near Wheeling, W. Va., and was sentenced to two years in Atlanta. At the court's last term he asked a review, arguing that the violation of which he had been convicted should be treated as a misdemeanor. His plea was refused and yesterday his request for a rehearing was denied.

Former Coast Guardsman Accused.

Marco Colpo, of Buffalo township, near Butler, Pa., failed to get a review of his conviction of liquor law violations and Sigvard B. Johnsen's attempt to have reconsidered his conviction of giving false testimony in a liquor case was turned down. Johnsen, former chief boatswain in the Coast Guard, was accused of perjury in the trial of John V. Lloyd and others in San Francisco in 1928.

A review, however, was granted in one liquor case, which is expected to set an important precedent. The Waterloo Distilling Corporation, of Waterloo, N. Y., gained a review of the forfeiture of its property in a lower court under the internal revenue laws. If this confiscation stands, persons not connected with the violation, who own an interest in the corporation, can not recover their property.

Max and Fannie Rein and the Senaca Solvent & Chemical Corporation, who claim deed to the property, contend the Government, having elected to punish the alleged offense under the prohibition laws, can not forfeit the property under the internal revenue law.

Ratification to Be Borne From Vancouver to New York City.

A dramatic chapter will be added to the history of the London naval treaty this week when an Army airplane, in a race against time, will carry the Japanese instrument of ratification from Vancouver, British Columbia, to New York City.

Japan ratified the London naval treaty on October 2, and the instrument of ratification now is on its way to Vancouver aboard the steamship Hikawa Maru, which is scheduled to arrive tomorrow.

At the request of the Japanese government, the American State Department arranged for two Army fliers to be at Vancouver tomorrow and take the document to New York so that it might be taken to England on the Leviathan, which sails Saturday.

It is planned to have the three signatories to the London Naval Treaty—England, Japan and the United States—deposit their copies of the treaty in advance of the meeting of the League of Nations preparatory commission on disarmament on November 6. The ceremony of depositing the instruments of ratification will take place in London, and when it is over the treaty will become effective.

GOVERNMENT BUYS 10 U. S. AIRPLANES

Seaport of Florianopolis Captured, According to Insurgents.

BOTH SIDES GIVE OUT CONFLICTING CLAIMS

(Associated Press.)

The Brazilian civil war in most quarters has dragged out into a chess game of troop movements that has yet to produce a decisive conflict.

In the military campaign, the rebels announced the capture of the important seaport of Florianopolis, Santa Catharina, hitherto used by the federals as a base for small operations against the insurgents in the State.

The rebels say its capture permits them to consolidate their forces for a drive toward Sao Paulo, in the north.

The federals claimed continued gains in Minas Geraes, and reported the capture of a band of revolutionary plotters concealed in Rio de Janeiro for the purpose of attempting an uprising if the rebel troops drew near.

10 U. S. Planes Bought.

Both sides have issued conflicting claims of successes. The federals assert that the revolutionary ardor is waning and that the rebels relied on a quick success.

Heavy federal troop movements are reported in Sao Paulo State, where a battle has been predicted for several days. The rebels are concentrating on the state's southern border, but according to the federals have been delayed by slow transportation.

Airplanes are likely to have an important bearing on future military movements. The federal government has announced the purchase of ten bombing planes in the United States.

Plotters in Rio Seized.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Capture of a group of revolutionary plotters hiding in the federal capital in the hope of leading an uprising against the government when revolutionary troops should have approached the city, was announced today by the federal authorities.

Among the leaders arrested were Jose Bonifacio and Afranio de Mello.

A heavy movement of troops toward the front continued today here and in Sao Paulo, soldiers, police and volunteers going forward by trainloads and truckloads.

The government announced its soldiers were advancing on the fronts in Sao Paulo and Minas Geraes, and denied all reports of rebel successes in the southern states.

Federal Discount Claims.

It was said the rebels in Rio Grande do Sul had been unable to move any considerable number of troops across the border of Santa Catharina owing to slow transportation.

The federals claimed that rebel troop trains were obliged to run only at night in order to escape bombing by federal airplanes.

Despite claims of successes, the government asserts, the rebels have done nothing important during the last two days. The country north of Santa Maria da Bocca do Monte, Rio Grande do Sul, where Getulio Vergas was last reported, is sparsely settled farming land, and it is asserted that rebel troop movements across this tract have been greatly delayed.

The federal plans for the campaign at present include concentration on an advance in Minas Geraes toward the state capital, Bello Horizonte, and then a drive southward from Sao Paulo toward the heart of the revolution in Rio Grande do Sul.

DEPUTIES ARE UNRULY

Berlin, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Rioting by Left and Right Wing enemies of the republic kept the central part of Berlin in a turmoil for several hours this afternoon and overshadowed the opening of the new Reichstag. The disturbances started near Unter den Linden, within a stone's throw of the Parliament Building, at the edge of the Tiergarten. Here the Communists gave the mounted and foot police a bad time when the hundreds of guards stationed before the Reichstag Building attempted to sweep a vast throng away from its entrances.

In midtown, along the Leipzigerstrasse, Berlin's elite shopping district, several hundred Fascists took advantage of the disorders at the Reichstag and burst into a demonstration, the chief feature of which was the smashing of numerous windows in expensive shops owned mostly by Jews and the firing of pistols into the air.

Only a few injuries were reported, in spite of the heavy gunfire and the virtual reign of terror that existed for some time in that part of the city. Early this evening the police authorities announced that order had been completely restored in all sections of the city and described the events of the day as a "mere flare-up" which would not be allowed to go further. An official communique said 53 persons had been arrested.

The activities of the police obviously were handicapped by the need of concentrating a strong force around the Reichstag. It was while almost the entire police force was quelling the Tiergarten riots that the Fascists broke loose in the shop-

Families Quit Ste. Genevieve as Three Persons Admit Murder of Citizen.

PRISONERS ARE MOVED

Ste. Genevieve, Mo., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—More than 100 Negroes, practically the whole Negro population, had left town tonight, following the confession of three Negroes, two men and a woman, to the murder of Harry Panchot and wounding of Paul A. Ritter, both white, yesterday.

The three Negroes, giving the names J. C. Lee, 28; Guy Taylor, 26, and Vera Rogers, 30 years old, were taken secretly to the Hillsboro Jail, 30 miles away, following their confession that they shot and killed Panchot, a limekiln laborer, shot Ritter and threw him into the Mississippi River in the course of a holdup. They admitted throwing rocks at him when he attempted to swim to shore.

From the Hillsboro Jail the Negroes were taken to St. Louis for safekeeping. Sheriff Ziegler said he believed the feeling here had lessened during the day, and while militiamen from Company G, at Desota, and Company M, at Festus, patrolled the town no further threat of mob action was expected.

Gov. Caulfield's action in calling out the two National Guard companies was hastened by a message from the Commission for Interracial Cooperation, of Atlanta, Ga., asking him to "take steps to save Missouri and the South from the blot of another lynching."

G. O. P. Tabloid to Feature President's Achievements

Preconvention Aid in Charge of the Venture; Will Irwin and William Allen White to Be Star Reporters; Paper Starts Saturday.

The Hoover administration is going into the tabloid newspaper business to set the country right as to administration achievements, it was learned last night.

The first issue of the as yet unchristened journalistic infant is scheduled to appear Saturday, and its sponsors have completed financial arrangements which will insure publication of at least two issues. Beyond that they are hopeful but not prophetic. The paper is to be a twelve-page tabloid affair, running from 50,000 to 75,000 copies per issue.

Will Irwin, intimate biographer to President Hoover, and William Allen White, of Emporia, Kans., are to be the star reporters for the new publication. The outstanding feature of the first issue, it was learned, is to be an interview by Mr. Irwin with Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior.

The venture is to be financed in part by the Republican national committee and partly by unidentified friends of the administration who are interested in seeing that the doings of Mr. Hoover are presented properly to the public.

David Hinshaw, who was active in the Hoover preconvention campaign in 1928, is in charge of the venture and he explained yesterday that it is to be "an effort to print, in a way that has been done before at times, what is going on in the administra-

It may go to the theater, buy a child's toy, an extra table delicacy or pay for some small service, but in any event it will represent a fair day's wages for approximately 6,000 men, and will eventually be applied to that purpose, since any product is dependent upon labor to either manufacture it or deliver it to the consumer . . . Fairfax Man Celebrates 50 Years as Court Clerk

F. W. Richardson, 76, Washington's Will Custodian, Rounds Out 106th Year That Position Has Been Held in Family.

Frederick William Richardson, custodian of George Washington's will and of other documents of history dating back to Virginia's early colonial days, today rounds out a span of 106 years in which the clerkship of the circuit court of Fairfax County has been held continuously in his family.

Exactly a half-century ago he stepped into the chair of clerk vacated suddenly by the death of his father, Ferdinand Dawson Richardson, who had held the position from his own appointment in 1824. Back in the yellowed, age-worn records of the court the name of his grandfather appeared likewise as clerk, but the dates of his uncontinuous service have been lost.

One of the most widely known men in northern Virginia, a patriarch who knows virtually every resident of the county by the first name, Mr. Richardson has enjoyed an unusual career marked by unswerving loyalty to the Democratic party, in whose activities he retains an unflagging interest. He takes pride in recounting his experience in serving with Raleigh Green, of Culpeper, in representing the Eighth Virginia Congressional District at the national Democratic convention in Denver when William Jennings Bryan received his third nomination of the party for President. He served also as a member of the State constitutional convention.

The mantle of his father descended on him upon an appointment given him by Judge James Sangster, a Republican, whose act in naming a of this campaign will be very difficult.

The federals assert that the populace in the south is out of sympathy with the revolutionary movement. They say that Borges de Madeiras, several times president of Rio Grande do Sul, and head of the Federal party in the state, had offered opposition to the revolutionists, who were obliged to keep watch over him.

Distribution of federal troops to garrisons or as reinforcements for soldiers in the field has been made rapidly and efficiently by rail and road from Sao Paulo.

The highways are being patrolled day and night and the federals believe there is no danger of disorder within Sao Paulo state nor any reasonable possibility of invasion from without.

Cheers Given Troops.

Gen. Hastimphilo de Moura, commanding the second military region, is supervising the movement of troops and supplies from Sao Paulo. He is assisted by Col. Jovinlano Brandao, commanding the state police.

Troop trains from Sao Paulo are being sent off amid popular enthusiasm, with bands playing and colors flying.

Newspapers announce that the insurgents had hoped to paralyze the government at the start and win the struggle within 48 hours; they had counted on the Federal government's sending out so many troops that Rio Janeiro would remain virtually unprotected.

Plotters hidden in the capital were then to cause an uprising and capture the government palace. This plan was frustrated with the capture of all the plotters.

Washington in Charge.

The rebels were said also to have counted on effecting a junction between troops from Rio Grande do Sul and those from Minas Geraes. They hoped to unite in the State of Sao Paulo, but have been blocked in both directions.

The American embassy here during the revolution is in charge of S. Walter Washington, second secretary.

Ambassador E. V. Morgan is on vacation in Europe and will return only toward the end of the month. Maj. Lester Baker, military attache, is also on vacation.

Plane Contract Signed.

Ten Curtiss-Wright guardsmen type fledgling airplanes, equipped with bombing racks and machine guns front and rear, soon will be added to the Brazilian federal air forces through a contract signed here today by a representative of the Curtiss-Wright Co. The machines will be shipped from New York Friday.

The government also is negotiating for some amphibian planes armed with three machine guns and two bomb racks carrying ten fragmentation bombs to the plane.

Bombs and ammunition were included in the order for ten ships.

This is the first sale of American equipment to the Brazilian army, which heretofore has been supplied by France.

Federal Rout Reported.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—News coming through Uruguayan sources today indicated the Brazilian rebels had routed the federals from their last stronghold in southern Brazil by capturing the City of Florianopolis.

That important trading center in the State of Santa Catharina has been virtually the only place in Brazil south of Sao Paulo that the government has held since the revolt began nine days ago. While rebel troops marched from the extreme south of the country, State of Rio Grande do Sul, and went northward through Santa Catharina toward Sao Paulo, the federals held on to the coastal city and used it as a base for small operations against the revolutionaries.

Capture of the city—if confirmed—means that the rebels can consolidate their lines from the southernmost part of the republic to the Parana-Sao Paulo border region, where the rebels already have engaged the troops of President Washington Luis Pereira da Souza in an effort to reach Sao Paulo.

Rebel Claims Disputed.

Rebel sources claim continued advances against the government, although their anouncements are disputed. Gen. Miguel Costa, insurgent comamnder on the Sao Paulo-Parana front, reported he had crossed the Sao Paulo border and captured the towns of Ourinhos, Singues and Punto Ribeira, with his forces continuing toward Itarare, important railhead on a line leading to Sao Paulo.

Gen. Costa told of other conflicts in his area, saying that on his left insurrectionary troops had captured both Jacarezinho and San Jose da Platina, State of Parana, where the federals fled without fighting. He added that another force under Ataliva Leonel had crossed the Sao Paulo border.

Dispatches from Rio de Janeiro quoted the minister of justice as giving a different account. He said 2,000 insurgents had been beaten off at Punto Ribeira and later at Irarare. As to the Jacarezinho conflict, he asserted that 2,000 federals had routed the rebels and had begun a southward march into Parana, heading for the City of Colonia Mineira.

Victories in Northeast.

Military observers here say the only thing definite is that fighting has occurred, whoever may have been the victor.

While their main force is concentrated in the south, the rebel chieftains claim gains in the northeast and central portions of the country.

Capt. Juarez Tavora, conqueror of Pernambuco, has invaded Alagoas with 10,000 men and captured the capital, Maceio, setting up a revolutionary junta for the state. He declares all Brazil north of the River Sao Francisco is in rebel hands, with his army continuing across the river and into Bahia.

Insurgents Beaten Off.

The other rebel movement is from Minas Geraes into the State of Bahia, Espirito Santo and Rio de Janeiro. The insurrectos claim the capture of Caravellos, port of southern Bahia, and say their armies are marching through Espirito Santo toward Victoria, the capital. Other forces, they say, have invaded northern Rio de Janeiro and in the vicinity of Ciudad Campos have captured the hydro power plant along the Parahyba River.

In dispatches reaching here, the federals said the Minas Geraes rebels were beaten off in their attack on Caravellos, with three leaders and many others being captured. The federals also said they had defeated a detachment of rebels in the loyal State of Goyal, taking the leader, Pedro Ludovico, and 70 others, with 200 more being routed.

MONTGOMERY G.O.P. MAKES RALLY PLANS

TO WELCOME BROENING

Montgomery County Republican candidates met yesterday with the Republican State central committee for the county to work out a schedule of district rallies in connection with the election campaign. The meeting was held at Rockville in the office of Walter Dawson, candidate for House of Delegates.

Paul Sleman, county chairman, presided. After several hours' discussion a tentative schedule of rallies was arranged. An advisory committee to make definite dates for the meetings was appointed.

The committee probably will meet tonight at a place yet to be designated to complete plans for the rallies. Plans also were discussed for the registration of new voters today and for the reception of Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, who, with other State candidates, will speak at county-wide rallies tomorrow at the State Theater in Bethesda and the Takoma Park firehouse. Both of these meetings will begin at 8 o'clock.

Mayor Broening and the other candidates will be entertained at the Indian Spring Golf Club tomorrow afternoon at luncheon by the State central committee and then will proceed to Rockville, where he is expected to attend the annual review and drill of the Third Division, Knights Templar of Maryland.

The State candidates will be entertained at dinner in the evening by Galen L. Tait, State chairman of the Republican State central committee, at his home in Bethesda.

The sudden death of Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson, candidate for reelection on the Democratic ticket, will not cause changes in the announced county-wide rallies of the Montgomery County Democrats, it was announced yesterday by Berry E. Clark, chairman of the Democratic State central committee for Montgomery County.

Mr. Clark was in communication with Gov. Ritchie yesterday and was told that inasmuch as the county rallies will take place after the funeral that the governor and other State candidates would not cancel their appointment.

The county rallies are to be held Friday. The main rally will be held in the afternoon in the National Guard Armory at Kensington. In addition to State candidates, Dr. Eugene Jones, of Kensington, State senator from Montgomery County, has been invited to speak.

Evening rallies will be held at 8 o'clock in the State Theater, at Bethesda, and at the National Guard Armory in Silver Spring. E. Barrett Prettyman, of Chevy Chase, has been invited to speak at the Bethesda meeting.

Gov. Ritchie and the other candidates are expected to make a flying visit to Rockville if there is time.

The Montgomery County Commissioners today probably will consider a protest filed by the representatives of nine civic bodies of the area along Wisconsin avenue near the District line against the construction of a curb along the car tracks on Wisconsin avenue in connection with a street improvement plan.

The protest was prepared at a mass meeting held Saturday night in the Somerset School, and declares that the construction of the curb is a dangerous experiment which affects the public safety and permits the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to avoid improvement of its roadbed.

Judge Robert B. Peter, of Rockville, probably will deliver the address of welcome at the fifth annual field day of the Third Division of Knights Templar of Maryland tomorrow afternoon at Rockville. The field day will include a parade and drills in the afternoon, a band concert and a grand ball in the evening.

U. S. AGENTS TO FACE CONSPIRACY CHARGE

Trio of Border Policemen Seized After Long Probe in New York State.

DETAILS NOT REVEALED

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Three United States border patrolmen were in the county jail at Canton tonight under general charges of conspiracy after several months of investigation by special Federal officers.

Two of the men, Francis L. Coveney and Charles Coolican, were held in default of $10,000 bail each, and Weldon J. Cheatham was detained in default of $5,000 bail. They were arrested Saturday by special Treasury agents and arraigned before Commissioner Dallas M. Hazelton, of Gouverneur. Coveney and Cheatham were stationed at Mooers and at Rouses Point during the last two years.

Official explanation of the charges was lacking today, as efforts to reach John Tulloch, collector of the port here and superior officer of the three, were fruitless. At the Treasury Department in Washington word was given out that any announcement in the case must come from United States District Attorney Oliver D. Burden at Syracuse. Attempts to reach Burden also failed.

Specific charges against the officers alleged violation of section 377 of the United States penal code. This section is broad in its application, covering many offenses listed as conspiracy. Conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws comes under this head.

Coveney and Cheatham came into public attention two years ago in connection with the fatal shooting of Arthur Gordon, young Plattsburgh youth, while the two patrolmen were pursuing a suspected bootlegger near Mooers. The wounded youth was taken to a vicinity hospital by two men in border patrol uniforms. It was several days before their identity was established.

Warrants then were issued for Coveney and Cheatham. They were found conferring with Tulloch in Ogdensburg. In a statement, Tulloch said that the shooting was accidental. Later both officers were questioned by the grand jury at Plattsburg and both were exonerated.

CLAYTON CENSURE REPORT REVIEWED

Piney Branch Citizen Group Hears That Issue Will Be Kept Alive.

PARKING IS DISCUSSED

That the clash between the executive committee and a majority of the membership of the Federation of Citizens Association over the former's censure of William McK. Clayton is not at end was indicated last night in the report of the two delegates of the Piney Branch Citizens Association who are members of the executive committee to the organization.

Both E. B. Henderson, president of the Piney Branch group, and Capt. G. L. Shorey declared that the resolution adopted by the federation absolving Mr. Clayton was effected without proper parliamentary procedure and predicted that the matter would again be put before the federation.

Mr. Clayton was censured by the executive committee for his handling of the federation's interest at the recent gas-rate hearing. The federation erased the reproof by a vote of 47 to 30 at its last meeting.

The Piney Branch association adopted a resolution last night recommending that its education committee urge District authorities to buy a tract of land west of Sixteenth street for a future elementary school site. It also voted to ask that the hour parking limit on Fourteenth street be extended from Decatur to Delafield street.

The report of the District traffic advisory committee opposing double parking in the downtown section was approved. C. W. Berry was admitted to membership.

Colombian Army Gives Up Suffrage

Gives as Reason Its Desire Not to Dictate Policies of Government.

Bogota, Colombia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—In a year which has seen army leaders seize the reins of government of three South American countries, the army of Colombia has surrendered the suffrage right and eschewed politics.

The administrations of Bolivia, Peru and Argentina fell before the tains. In those countries, as in Colonslaughts of their military chieflombia hitherto, the army could engage in active politics.

In the week in which the Irogoyen government fell in Buenos Aires the officers of the Colombian army presented a joint petition to Congress asking that they and their men be denied the voting privilege. They gave as their reason a lack of any desire to dictate the policies of government.

Congress promptly granted their request.

Proud Flower Assailed; Said to Cause Illness

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Whether Australia's national flower, the golden wattle, contaminates milk and butter and causes sore throats, headaches and hay fever is being debated here.

Many people are chopping down wattle trees in their gardens.

Dr. E. N. Ward, curator of the Sydney Botanical Gardens, says researches show that many people living near wattle trees were, at certain seasons, always sick. The air around a blooming wattle tree, he said, is impregnated with pollen which irritates the throat and lungs and wattle trees growing close to dairies and creameries cause a form of fermentation dangerous to health.

Police Investigate After Sh Is Found Unconscious in Floor of Room.

Mrs. Nellie . Penn, 40 years old, an internal revenue bureau clerk, of 4413 Third street northwest, died yesterday morning at Emergency Hospital from swallowing overdoes of two liquid poisons. Tenth Precinct police are investigating.

She made her home with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Cooper, the latter of whom found Mrs. Penn sprawled unconscious on the floor in the woman's room when she was attracted there by her groans. Mrs. Penn was taken at once to Emergency Hospital.

She was a native of Catlett, Va. She is survived by her husband, Clarence D. Penn, of G street, near Fourth street northwest.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning from Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N street northwest, with interment in Congressional Cemetery.

SPEEDING UP STREET REPAIR WORK URGED

Whitehurst Says Two-Shift Operations in Congested Sections Needed.

TRACTION LINES CITED

The street car companies drag out their track repair work unnecessarily and seriously interfere with the speed with which streets may be fully opened to public traffic, it was declared yesterday by Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, highway engineer and coordinator of the engineer departments of the District.

Submitting to the District Commissioners his annual report as coordinator, Capt. Whitehurst declared that the public utilities should be compelled to work two shifts on all their repair work and underground work in all congested areas and heavily traveled highways.

Provision should be made in the District specifications for future highway work for the employment of two shifts by the contractors in congested areas and on boulevards and arterial highways, Capt. Whitehurst told the Commissioners recently.

This provision, he said in the report submitted yesterday, "will also necessitate two-shift operation of some of the underground work of the utility companies. This is especially true of street railway track construction. This operation is often tedious and long drawn out, and it is believed that with the exception of purely residential areas the street railway companies should be requested to carry on all track reconstruction over a two-shift period."

Glider Students Learn To Fly Using Poles

Bradford, Pa., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Glider students once learned to fly much in the same manner as boys learned to swim at the old swimming hole where some older boy just tossed the student in to sink or swim. But C. L. White, local inventor, has arranged it so the glider students of the future may go up in safety and receive instructions while in the air from an instructor who sits in the shade of a hangar.

The ambitious pupil attains altitude by means of cables attached to four tall poles, instead of being hurled into the air by a shock cord or towed behind an automobile. The lesson completed the student and ship are carefully lowered in safety to the ground.

MEXICO COUP HELD BREWING AT BORDER

CAPITAL DENIES PERIL

Dalas, Tex., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—An atmosphere of apprehension spread along the Mexican border today from Brownsville far up the Rio Grande as experienced observers considered recent developments in the southern republic. There was nothing more tangible to tie to, however, than whispers of another attempted military coup.

From San Antonio scene in other years of plannings by scores of Mexican juntas and the residence of many Mexican expatriates came a report that several conservative and reliable Mexican revolutionary sources denied a coup was being planned in Mexico. They said conditions in Mexico were a little uncertain but that P. Elias Calles, former president and Mexican "strong man," had the situation well in hand.

Brownsville, opposite Matamoras, Tamaulipas, Mex., reported an atmosphere of anxiety was felt with the whispering of the planned military coup.

Border Towns Report.

Eagle Pass, opposite Piedras Negras, reported "everything quiet in the Piedras Negras area, with only the regular troop movement."

Laredo, across the Rio Grande from Nuevo Laredo, reported that "although Mexican officials in Nuevo Laredo retain silence there is a growing feeling in this border town that something is brewing in Mexico."

The sudden cancellation of President Ortiz Rubio's visit to Monterey, 150 miles south of Laredo, and the border a week ago, followed by the fiery speech of Calles, in turn followed by the resignations of several of the former Revolutionary party leaders, including Emilio Portes Gil, a former president of the Republic, have had a distinctly upsetting influence, the Laredo reports indicated.

Quiet, Mexico City Says.

Mexico City, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Speculation concerning the Mexican political situation has quieted down in the last few days.

Both President Ortiz Rubio and Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president, assert that the political crisis which recently brought changes in high posts has quieted and that the administration's troubles are solved.

At the same time Gov. Cedillo of the State of San Luis Potosi denied rumors that his troops had shown hostility toward the government.

Nye's Office Aids Believe Phone Wires Were Tapped

(Associated Press.)

The aroma of wire-tapping charges which has hovered about the Senate campaign funds committee penetrated to the Senate Office Building yesterday when employes in Chairman Nye's office found what they considered evidence that his telephone wire had been tampered with.

In an investigation that followed the appearance of a light on the telephone switchboard when no person had lifted the receiver in the senator's office, they discovered that the insulation was gone from the wires, bringing them into contact.

The telephone inspector blamed the incident upon rats, but later it was decided the job showed evidence of wire-tapping activities. The senator is out of the city.

He and his committee have vigorously denied charges made by Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, that committee agents tapped her telephone wires during the Illinois senatorial investigation.

135 PLEAS REFUSED BY SUPREME COURT

Declines to Review Cases; Will Let Arizona Fight Hoover Dam Project.

NEW PETITIONS APPEAR

(Associated Press.)

The Supreme Court stamped "refusal" upon 135 petitions for review yesterday in a rapid-fire session spent in sorting from 186 of the 285 such petitions before it the 51 it will pass upon on their merits.

Eighteen more petitions for review were filed yesterday and statements were offered showing why 32 others had been appealed, bringing to 149 the total cases the court will dispose of next Monday in preparation for oral arguments next week.

In addition to its work on the docket, the court announced it would permit Arizona to challenge the validity of the construction of Hoover Dam on the Colorado River and gave California and other States in the Colorado Basin and Secretary of the Interior Wilbur until January 5 to show why the controversy should not be heard on its merits.

It also appointed Edmund F. Trabue, of Louisville, Ky., special master in the boundary dispute between Vermont and New Hampshire; permitted Wyoming to challenge the amount of water being taken from the Laramie River by Colorado, and set for hearing on January 5 the dispute between Connecticut and Massachusetts over the withdrawal of water from the Swift and Ware Rivers for use in the metropolitan district at Boston.

Many of the cases the court refused to review presented tax questions. Among others, however, were two cases which contended that back-seat drivers were guilty of contributory negligence when they failed to warn the driver of automobiles of impending danger. It also refused to decide whether death following sunstroke and death from blood poisoning caused by plucking a hair from the nose rendered insurance companies liable on accident policies.

The court declined to review two Sherman antitrust cases.

Scotch Land for Sale Comprises Million Acres

Glasgow, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A million acres of Scotland, one-nineteenth of the country's total acreage, is for sale, and nobody wants to buy it.

Most of the land is sporting ground, but experts declare it can be cultivated.

One agent has 750,000 acres for sale. In Argyleshire fourteen acres are in the market, and some of Scotland's loveliest scenery is included in 38,000 acres for sale in the north.

The Duke of Montrose recently offered to sell 40,000 acres, including Ben Lomond, but he did not receive a single offer.

Dry Men Seeking Owner of Packet

Stern Wheeler Is Under Suspicion of Being Distillery.

Special to The Washington Post.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—An investigation to determine the ownership of the stern-wheeler Illinois, one of the oldest river packets operating from St. Louis, has been begun by prohibition and customs officials, who suspect the steamer is being used as a floating distillery, in violation of the Volstead act and the customs regulations. Records of the marine clerk in the office of the collector of the port show that the boat was sold last May 29 by M. Stanley Rea, James Phillips and Arthur Buchanan. The boat had been used for several years in hauling garbage to an island below the city in pursuance of a garbage-disposal contract held by Rea.

The purchaser of the boat is listed as the German Construction Co., but investigators have been unable to locate the firm or any representative of it. Meanwhile the steamer has been operated without a license since the day of the sale in May.

The prohibition group had its attention directed to the boat on August 6 when prohibition agents in a motor boat on the river seven miles above Alton saw it moored to the Illinois bank between two barges. Investigation showed that one of the barges was a floating tank of whisky mash, while the other had a cargo of coke, five-gallon tins and other appurtenances of the distiller's work.

tion, not politically, but in a governmental way."

There will be no partisanship in presentation of the administration's achievements, Mr. Hinshaw said, explaining that the publication would print impartial analysis of governmental activities prepared by friends of the Hoover administration.

Just how much money the Republican National Committee is prepared to put in this venture was not disclosed, but Mr. Hnshaw said that he has $8,000 on hand and he thinks that will be enough to get out two issues.

Besides the star reporters, Mr. Irwin and Mr. White, the staff of the new paper will include several other expert analysists of governmental affairs, according to Mr. Hinshaw.

tional Guard today were ordered to Ste. Genevieve County by Gov. Caulfield as a precautionary measure against possible rioting as a result of the killing there early yesterday of Harry Panchot and wounding of Paul A. Ritter by three negroes. The troops were requested by Sheriff L. J. Ziegler.

The troops, numbering 130 men, were ordered mobilized in Festus, De Soto, and Cape Girardeau this morning, but their movement was kept secret until after they had reached Ste. Genevieve County this afternoon. Adjt. Gen. A. V. Adams went to the section to take charge of national guard activities.

Sheriff Ziegler, in a telephone conversation with the governor, indicated he feared an outbreak against other Negroes in the county as reprisals for the brutal shooting of Panchot and Ritter.

REDS, FASCISTS RIOT AS REICHSTAG OPENS

ping district. Trouble had been anticipated in view of the open hostility toward the government expressed during court testimony by Adolf Hitler, leader of the Fascist party, recently at Leipsic, and the opposition of the Communists to the Republican fiscal program.

Among the establishments stoned was Wertheim's, of Leipzigerplatz, one of the finest department stores in the world. Thirty-six large plateglass windows were smashed there, a sight which attracted thousands of persons after order had been restored. The fact that stones were picked up amid the finery in these displays and others, the police said, proved that the outburst had been planned. Since there was no place within a large radius where the stones might have been found, the police said they must have been brought there in anticipation of some form of violence.

Police Lorries on Patrol.

Tonight police lorries patroled the shopping districts ready to put down any renewal of the anti-Jewish demonstrations. This afternoon, however, so empty had been the locality that no arrest was made.

Thus the new Reichstag, which emerged from the sensational elections of September 14, made its bow to the world today while the shouts of a riotous demonstration were raised outside the chamber and the session within was enlivened by taunts and catcalls of the costumed Fascist delegates and their enemies of the extreme left.

Germany's solons presented anything but a dignified picture. The Hitlerites whistled shrilly to drown out their opponents' voices and the communists greeted the roll call of names like that of Chancellor Bruening with shouts of "the hunger dictator" and similar cries they deemed appropriate to the person.

Neither of these radical wings showed the usual respect given in the German parliament for the custom by which age is elevated to high place, this time with the placing in the chair of Carl Herold, as president pro tempore. Herr Herold is an 82-year-old centrist, who made himself heard only with the greatest difficulty.

Galleries Are Amused.

Shouts of "Hail Hitler" from the brown-shirted and black-booted national socialists and "hail red front" from the disciples of Moscow enlivened the scene frequently and furnished amusement to crowded galleries, in one of which sat the former Prince August Wilhelm Hohenzollern, smilingly puffing at a cigarette.

While the members were qualifying for their duties by answering the roll call, the cloak rooms were buzzing with animated discussion of announcement by the economic party that it was withdrawing the minister of justice, Johannes Bredt, from the cabinet. Fears that this might provoke a cabinet crisis abated when the text of the economic party's declaration was circulated. It became known then that the party was merely trying to give Chancellor Bruening a chance to adapt his cabinet still further to the needs of the times.

Conferences were held and President Von Hindenburg had little difficulty in prevailing upon Minister Bredt to remain.

Rioting Renewed Today.

Berlin, Oct. 14 (Tuesday) (A.P.).—Rioting by rowdy elements in the heart of Berlin's fashionable shopping district broke out early this morning while crowds of curiosity seekers returning from theaters lingered in the vicinity of the Potsdamerplatz to see the destruction wrought by Fascist bands yesterday.

The rowdies saw an opportunity to start window smashing all over again and perhaps to profit by pillaging. They began insulting the police, who finally charged and cleared the Potsdamerplatz with their clubs.

Within an hour the police had things in hand again and all was quiet.

Chief of Police Karl Zoergiebel, in an interview, said that virtually none but Fascists had participated in the attacks on Jewish-owned stores previously.

POLAND BALKS PLOT TO SLAY PILSUDSKI

Eight Socialists Are Held; Attempt Originally Set For October 10.

FAINT HEARTS BLAMED

Warsaw, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Discovery of a Socialist bomb plot against the life of Marshal Joseph Pilsudski, premier of Poland, was announced tonight by the semiofficial Iskra Agency.

Eight members of the Polish Socialist party were arrested here and accused of preparing the plot. The authorities searched the headquarters of an illegal Socialist militia group and found a large number of revolvers and rifles.

The attempt against the marshal's life was said to have been planned for October 10, but had been postponed owing to the fact that some of those participating did not know against whom it was directed. When these learned it was against the marshal they backed out.

Four workmen, members of the militant socialist group, who were arrested, were said to have confessed.

Last summer the socialists attempted to start a widespread movement against Marshal Pilsudski. When their program broke down extremist elements in the party resolved on acts of violence.

Verses Composed At Taxicab Wheel

Lisbon Man Gains Fame as Poet; Recites to Passengers.

Lisbon, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Joaquim Brito, a Lisbon taxicab-driver, has gained fame by composing verses as he guided his machine through traffic. He is known as "the chauffeur poet." Often Brito would recite his newest quatrains to his fare. One of the regular patrons, Albino Forjas de Sampaio, a writer, had a hundred of the poems published in a volume under the title of "Musa do Volante" (Muse at the Wheel).

The first edition of the book was sold out in a few days and a second edition was sent to the printers. Brito is a man of little education. His verses, he says, spring up spontaneously with freshness and beauty. He confesses to being the anonymous author of many of the "fados" (Portuguese folksongs) that have taken Lisbon and Rio de Janeiro by storm.

Though he was offered a contract to recite his verses from the stage, Brito has stuck to his job. He says that he gets inspiration for his masterpieces only when at the wheel.

Two Priests and Pilot Die As Mission Plane Falls

Kotzebue, Alaska, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Two Catholic priests and a pilot were killed here yesterday when the mission plane, Marquette, crashed. The dead are Ralph Wien, noted Alaskan aviator; Father Philip I. Delon, head of Jesuit Missions in Alaska, and Father Walsh of the Kotzebue Mission.

Wien had made a test flight before taking up the priests. The crash came while the ship was circling the field.

Spectators said the motor seemed to stall and the ship dived to the ground, burying its nose in the frozen earth.

The Marquette, a 6-passenger Bellanca cabin plane powered with a 225-horsepower Diesel motor, was sent to Alaska this summer. It was to be used by Jesuit priests in visiting missions in the interior of Alaska.

Father Walsh, members of the Society of Jesus in Seattle said, had been at Kotzebue for a year and Father Delon had planned to fly there to visit him.

Kotzebue is about 200 miles north of Nome on Kotzebue Sound.

The plane was to be stationed at Holycross, 300 miles up the Yukon River. It was blessed at ceremonies at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., by the Right Rev. Joseph R. Crimont, Bishop of Alaska, and then flown to Alaska.

MAJ. CANNON HOME BLAZE INVESTIGATED

Prelates' Son Says He Will Reply to Check Charges at Proper Time.

SEES BLOW AT FATHER

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—While Maj. Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., announced at Washington, D. C., last night he expected to return "promptly to Los Angeles to face and refute any charges which may be there," fire department officials here continued investigation of a blaze in his local offices a week ago.

Maj. Cannon, who is sought in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties on warrants charging issuance of bad checks in connection with promotion of a boys' school, said the charges would be answered satisfactorily at the proper time and place."

Believe Fire Incendiary.

Investigators of the fire department here said firemeen answering a call to Maj. Cannon's residence, found a pile of paper burning in the center of the office he maintained in his home. The fire had every appearance, they said, of being of incendiary origin, nothing of value was destroyed as far as the investigators could determine.

Officials of the El Monte School, in connection with which the checks were given, said their records were intact and are being kept in the school office.

The statement issued by Maj. Cannon through his father, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, follows:

"I left California to come to Washington to consult with my father, Bishop James Cannon, jr., on some exceedingly important matters. There was no mystery connected with my going away or my whereabouts.

Will Answer Charges.

"As to the charges alleged by the press to have been filed against me in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, these will be answered satisfactorily at the proper time and place. I issued no checks which I did not believe properly covered in the bank at the time of issuance.

"For the past two years, along with some other members of the family, I have been the target of frequent attacks, not because I am R. M. Cannon, but because I am one of the sons of Bishop James Cannon, jr. It is quite significant my Los Angeles office was burned and important valuable papers destroyed on Sunday, October 5, four days after my departure from Los Angeles.

"I expect to return promptly to Los Angeles to face and refute any charges which may be there."

The checks on which the warrants were issued were said to be for $40 at San Bernardino and $1,600 at Los Angeles.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—One gets a hunch while sitting up near the top of the tent, munching peanuts and watching this circus out here that the State would perhaps be best served if by some miracle the Widow O'Neill were elected to the Senate.

She has plenty of common sense, a good realization of the verities of life and a wide knowledge of what it is all about. A most wholesome thing about her is that she does not seem to have the headline complex.

There is hardly any question that her purpose in this campaign is to defeat Mrs. McCormick and that behind that purpose is revenge.

* * * *

BUT that she is fully as determined a woman as Mrs. McCormick is evidenced by her refusal to be mollified after she broke with Mark Hanna's daughter. She has had considerable service in the State Legislature. She wanted to be national committeewoman. When she did not get it she blamed Mrs. McCormick.

Then when she sought a chairmanship of a particular committee at Springfield and was again denied, she again blamed Mrs. McCormick. She broke with her right then and there; and breaking with her, she would not listen to the Republican leaders when they came around pleading, "Don't be mad, Mrs. O'Neill, we'll give you a much better chairmanship."

This would seem to belie the feminine trait of not being able to make up one's mind.

* * * *

THE impression of her now, of course, is that she is a die-hard dry, a fanatical dry. I frankly believe a wet's chances would be better with her than with Mrs. McCormick.

"I believe in prohibition," says Mrs. O'Neill. "I believe that conditions are better than they were before the passing of the saloon. I am not blind to the evils of the present system, however, and any time the leading wets and the leading drys want to get together and without regard to political expediency work out a sound solution they will get my cooperation."

Somehow one gets the impression that if by some chance Mrs. O'Neill were to come to Washington that she would not propose a Cabinet Department to rear the children, on the ground that they are just as important as agriculture.

20 PERSONS TAKEN ON RUM VIOLATIONS

Fairfax County Police Busy Over Week-End; Several Held on Charges.

RED CROSS PLANS DRIVE

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The continued drought this summer might have affected the farmers' crops, but many persons driving through Fairfax County do not seem to be so "dry," according to Sheriff Eppa P. Kirby, of Fairfax. Twenty persons were arrested over the week-end for violation of the State prohibition law.

Thomas E. Hitt, of D street, near Third street northwest, Washington, was arrested yesterday morning on the Lee highway in the town of Fairfax for operating a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. J. E. Stewart, of the same address, was arrested for being drunk. They were taken before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman in Fairfax by County Policeman Lewis L. Finks. Hitt was ordered held for action of the grand jury at the November term of court and his companion was fined $10 and costs.

Wilbur Fuller, of Twenty-second street, near K northwest, Washington, was arrested in Falls Church by Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell, for transporting liquor, reckless driving and destroying evidence. He was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace John T. Moling, at Falls Church, who ordered him held for action of the grand jury. Other arrests by Sergt. Mitchell included Mike Hanover Walker, of Washington; George Powell, of N street, near Thirty-third street northwest, Washington, and Howard Smith, of Baileys Cross Roads, for being drunk. They were fined $18 each by Justice Moling.

He was taken before Justice T. P. Chapman at Fairfax and ordered held under $1,000 bond for action of the grand jury. Justice Chapman ordered Butler held for action of the grand jury and fined Shiff $18.

Other persons arrested for being drunk by the Fairfax County authorities were: Douglas Winfield, Iva Lunchford and Ray Lampert, all of New Baltimore, Va.; Mark Walker, of Alexandria; George Parker, of Washington, and Louis Ellis, of Clifton Station. Each was fined $10 and costs for being drunk.

Luceano Guellani, of Washington, was arrested by County Policeman Mills at Baileys Crossroads for selling merchandise without a license. He was taken before Justice of the Peace John Dowden at Baileys Crossroads, where he was fined $50 and costs on the charge.

Hummer, M street near Twenty-fourth northwest, Washington; Israel Koduff, Philadelphia, Pa.; Wilbur Karrod, of Dunn Loring; D. W. Drage, High Point, N. C.; Earnest A. Grimm, Massachusetts avenue northwest near Fourth street, Washington; Aaron J. Payne Cherry, Va., and Robert Wingrove, of Takoma Park, Md. Each was fined $14 and costs by Justice Moling at Falls Church.

The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening in the auditorium of the high school at Clifton Station. The question of holding a banquet in the near future and inviting the chambers of Arlington County and Alexandria to participate so as to hear A. L. Kirby, of Clarendon, speak on the proposed development of the Great Falls parkway will be discussed.

A meeting of chairmen of standing committees of the Fairfax County Teachers Association has been called by its president, Miss Dorothy Otley, for tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Oakton High School. They will make plans for the fall meeting of the association, when delegates to the annual State teachers meeting in Richmond, Thanksgiving week, will be elected.

Miss Otley has appointed the following committee chairmen, with instructions to select members of their committees: Miss Mary M. Snead, of Oakton, executive committee; Gordon E. Smith, of McLean, finance; Miss Lulah Ferguson, of Vienna, State preventorium; Miss Elizabeth Ellmore, of Herndon, National Education Association; Miss Adele Pfalzgraf, of McLean, program; Miss Martha Reely, of Lee-Jackson, publicity, and Mrs. Lewis Coyner, of Fairfax, remembrance.

The joint committee of Fairfax and Arlington Counties on week-day religious education in public schools has appointed Miss Ethel Morrison to the position of director, to fill the vacancy created by resignation of Miss Isabel Latimer. Miss Morrison is a graduate of the Presbyterian Training School in Richmond, Va., and has had experience in the work. She plans to start work in the local schools this week.

The executive committee of the Fairfax County Red Cross Chapter will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the county health units offices in the courthouse at Fairfax. Plans for the annual membership drive will be made.

BLAME NOT PLACED IN TRAFFIC DEATH

24 TRUE BILLS REPORTED

Coroner's juries sitting on two of the four traffic deaths in Prince Georges County over the week-end came to no definite decision at their meetings last night.

Refusing to say who was to blame for the accident in which David Hobson, 5 years old, of Edmonston, Md., lost his life Saturday, the jury last night said merely that he had died after being struck by a bus. The verdict neither exonerates nor implicates the driver of the bus, who was Raymond H. Birch, of Seventh street near E street southeast.

The jury found "that David Hobson came to his death as a result of being struck by an auto-bus owned by the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and driven by Raymond Birch." Such reports are not without precedent, according to Justice of the Peace Herbert Moffat, of Hyattsville, who conducted the inquest. Any further action against Birch, he said, is up to the State's attorney, or to the parents of the child.

The child was killed when the bus struck him while he was playing near his home. Birch said that the little boy darted out in front of the machine from the line of traffic coming from the races at Laurel over the Edmonston road detour.

The jury probing the death of Frank O. Grimes, of Camp Springs, who was killed Sunday in an auto accident, held the alleged driver of the car under bond until a third passenger should recover from his injuries and testify. George Armstrong, of Forestville, said to have been driver of the car which sideswiped a telephone pole near Meadows, posted bond of $200.

Grimes, Armstrong and George L. Gray, of Oxon Hill, Md., were occupants of the car. Both Grimes and Gray were brought into Providence Hospital, where Grimes shortly died. Gray was seriously injured and is still semiconscious. It is understood that Armstrong denies that he was driving, saying that the dead man was operator of the machine. Authorities hope that Gray's testimony, if he lives, will settle this point.

Two men were reported injured early yesterday when the automobile in which they were proceeding to Washington was struck by another car, whose operator was later charged with reckless driving, and driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. The accident happened on the Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville.

B. M. Middleton, of Wyoming avenue, near Twenty-first street northwest, was taken to Garfield Hospital, where eight stitches were taken to close a scalp wound. His condition is not thought to be serious. It was reported that a colored passenger in his car was taken to Providence Hospital, but neither State police nor attendants at the hospital knew anything of this other passenger.

The driver of the other car involved was John Albert Holt, of Ontario road, near Kalorama road northwest. He was held at the Bladensburg Jail on bond of $1,000 and will appear today in police court at Hyattsville. Two women and another man, who were in his car, were not injured. Their names were not taken by police as no charge was placed against them.

Deputy Sheriff David Jones and his four companions were among the first 24 persons to be indicted by the Prince Georges County grand jury. Jones and the others were accused of attempting to hold up W. F. Tucker, son of a Washington policeman.

James S. Fralick was indicted on a charge of manslaughter, arising out of the death of George M. Fisher last April. Fisher was riding a motorcycle near the Bowie Race Track when he was struck by a car driven by Fralick. At the time a coroner's jury held Fralick for the action of the grand jury.

The greater number were indicted on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods. Randolph Lewis and Thomas Newman were named in one true bill, as were Lewis Holmes and Clarence Ford. Four persons, Arthur Gobbatt, John Tillman, William Eppes and John Sampson were named in another indictment.

Alice and Lawrence Chase will be tried on a charge of housebreaking and larceny. A charge of larceny against Benjamin Roth was sustained, as was a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods made against Robert Tolson. Bernard Overly will be tried on a charge of burglary. An indictment alleging housebreaking and larceny was returned, naming George Shanks. Shanks was also among the first lot returned by the jury.

Four indictments charging nonsupport were returned. They name Burton S. Roseberry, Jacob Goldenberg, Louis L. Dyer and Charles A. Immick.

Indictments will probably be returned at intervals during the week, Lemuel Gray of Riverdale, foreman of the jury, said. They have not yet heard all the cases to be pe-Gay.

The State has contibuted $23,754 towad the upkeep of the county schools during the last quarter of 1930, Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, said yesterday. This is a slight increase over the amount contributed during the same period last year, when $23,430 was given to the county.

William Green, colored, 30 years old, living near Upper Marlboro, is in the Marlboro —ail on a charge of murder. He is alleged to have shot Richard Diggs, colored, 30 years old, of Sugar Hill, during an argument early yesterday morning. Diggs died immediately after being shot once through the body.

A circuit court jury is expected to render a decision this morning in the suit of Charles J. Penn vs. The County Commissioners of Prince Georges County. Penn is seeking damages from the commissioners for injuries he claims he received while driving on Ritchie road near Ritchie Station in August, 1928.

According to Penn, the road was so neglected that it was dangerous, and he lays the blame at the door of the commissioners. Due to the accident, which occurred when his car struck a depression in the road, he was disabled and forced to have expensive medical treatment.

W. Hampton Magruder is defending the case, while J. Wilson Ryon and Arthur C. Keefer appear for the complainant. Hearing of evidence in the case took the whole day yesterday.

Dedication of the new Mount Rainier High School will take place October 28 in the new building, A. S. Cook, State superintendent of schools, will be present, as well as members of the town councils of Mount Rainier and Brentwood, which is also served by the new school. C. E. Emery, chairman of the building committee, will give the address of welcome.

Services celebrating the opening of the new auditorium of the Riverdale School will be held about the middle of November, Mrs. Mary A. Petty, principal of the school, said yesterday.

A joint session of the finance and executive subcommittees of the Democratic State campaign advisory committee will be held in the near future to discuss the political outlook. R. Howard Bland is chairman of the executive committee, while John E. Semmes heads the finance group. Mr. Semmes was chosen after Donald Symington found it impossible to serve. Mr. Symington will act as vice chairman of the group, however.

J. Enos Ray, chairman of the State central committee, yesterday named members of these two important subcommittees. The executive body is composed of former Senator William Cabell Bruce, Eugene H. Beer, William Curran, Robert A. Carman, William B. Cooper, Gilbert A. Dailey, Frederick A. Doifield, John M. Dennis, Frank A. Furst, R. Walter Graham, L. W. Gunby, former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, Omer F. Hershey, L. Manuel Hendler, former Mayor Howard W. Jackson, W. Preston Lane, former Mayor Barry Mahool, M. Hampton Magruder, Waldo Newcomer, William I. Norris, Philip B. COMMUNITY CENTER LOCATION IS PRAISED Takoma Park Best Equipped for Enterprise, Director Tells Meeting.

MORE ACTIVITIES URGED

Takoma Park is better equipped for hte development of a community center than any section around Washington, Miss Sibyl Baker, director of Distrct Community Center, told the Takoma Park Citizens Association at its meeting last night at the Takoma library. The equipment, she pointed out, is the large recreation field that has been put at the disposal of the community center.

Miss Baker described the activities of the community center, stressing the fact that its work includes adults as well as children, and urged the association to aid in obtaining Congress. She suggested that the larger appropriations from the next community center stage a carnival which District contestants be pitted and field day in the near future at aganst those from Maryland.

Herbert Walton Rutledge, president of the association, named Mrs. R. C. Harbin and John Walker on a committee to cooperate with her in this plan.

The placing of the paving of Van Buren street, between Blair road and Piney Branch road, on the next District budget was urged by Burt W. Andrews, chairman of the streets and lights committee. The association referred to the school committee a recommendation by ts chairman, S. E. Blassingham, that the Takoma Park group take action similar to that of the Manor Park citizens in asking for increased facilities at the Paul Junior High School.

Announcement was made that the Takoma Home and School Association would meet at the school Friday night.

Stret Car Line Cut Is Opposed

Montgomery Group Indorses Stand of Nine Citizen Bodies on Plan.

Opposition of nine civic organizations with territory along Wisconsin avenue, to a proposal to erect a curb along the street car tracks on that avenue running into Maryland, was indorsed last night by the Montgomery County Civic Federation, meeting in Bethesda School. A resolution stating such opposition was introduced by Aubrey Carter, of the Chevy Chase Garden Citizens Association, after the advisory committee had ruled an emergency existed. Bids have been asked by the street car company for the work.

The Federation reaffirmed its stand of last April favoring the improvement of Wisconsin avenue from the District line to Bethesda and for the "oval" plan of entrances at the District line.

A resolution offered by the school committee was adopted, this measure urging the maintenance of county schools to provide for all children, even if the emergency fund need be used. A program of improvement for 15 schools in the county also was indorsed.

DIAMOND IMPROVES AS INQUIRY WIDENS

Second Woman Questioned in Attempted Slaying of Gangster.

SERVED IN U. S. PRISON

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The murky pathways of a racketeer's progress in the metropolitan underworld were examined minutely by police today in search of an explanation for the shooting of Jack "Legs" Diamond, notorious gang leader.

A red-haired chorus girl friend of the wounded gangster, a few employers of the West Side Hotel, where two gunmen pumped five bullets into Diamond's body yesterday, and a host of rumors comprised the "catch" in New York's most sensational shooting since Arnold Rothstein, gambler, was slain two years ago. Progress—or lack of it—was summed up by Police Commissioner Mulrooney tonight in the terse statement that "there are 101 reasons why somebody wanted Diamond dead."

But "Legs" was still far from dead. Physicians at the Polyclinic Hospital said that his vitality was altering the odds against him, although he still was a very seriously wounded man. "Legs" scanned with satisfaction the 4-inch headlines that heralded his plight, but insisted that he did not know the members of the "execution squad" who called on him.

Police Are Skeptical.

Police scouted Diamond's sincerity, and were equally skeptical about the story they elicited from Marion Roberts, the chorus girl, who entertained Diamond, just before the shooting, in her room in the Hotel Monticello. It adjoined the room where he was attacked. Held as a material witness, she told police that her real name was Marion Strasmick and that her home was in Boston.

She said that Diamond was breakfasting with her yesterday forenoon when the clerk telephoned that "two guys were coming up." While she was in her bath Diamond went to his room with the visitors, he said, and she proceeded to take a nap, oblivious to the shooting until much later in the day.

Diamond set the number of his assailants at three, but the police were convinced that there were only two. They attached some importance to the story of a man who was working on his car in the street in front of the hotel.

Two Men Seen Running.

This man said that two men came up in a black car with a New Jersey license, went in, and after several sounds which he said might have been shots or the backfiring of an automobile, ran out and sped away in their car.

Commissioner Mulrooney announced that search of Miss Roberts' room at the hotel revealed a cablegram which indicated that Diamond planned to make a second attempt to scale European police barriers.

The gangster was shipped out of Germany last August. Mulrooney said that the cablegram, sent from Hamburg, Germany, was addressed to a friend of Diamond's who is being sought, and added that Diamond's recent visit abroad was undoubtedly planned in connection with a rum-running or narcotic smuggling project.

Second Woman in Case.

Tonight another woman entered the case. An attractive blonde girl was taken from an uptown hotel for questioning and there were rumors that several doys ago, in a White Lights cafe, she knowingly remarked that Jack Diamond had not more than ten days to live. Police refused to discuss her.

Records of the War Department show that John T. ("Legs") Diamond served a sentence in the United States Disciplinary Barracks, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. One charge against the New York racketeer was desertion. His sentence was originally for five years but was reduced to three years.

Diamond was a private in Battery A, First Trench Mortar Battalion, Coast Artillery Corps. He was returned from overseas as a military prisoner. One notation in his record is "Good conduct time lost, 25 days."

Appeal Made to Baker.

His father wrote to former Secretary of War Baker, urging that his son be granted parole and stating that he could obtain work for him. The late Senator Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania, intervened on Diamond's behalf at the request of Mrs. Diamond, but merely asked that his case be given consideration and parole granted if warranted.

The elder Diamond was advised by the War Department that his request for parole would receive every consideration, and was directed to have his son file formal application at Leavenworth.

Diamond's parole was finally recommended by the board of parole at the disciplinary barracks. He was released April 4, 1920. Meanwhile a suspended sentence of dishoronable discharge was hanging over Diamond, and with his release on parole this sentence became effective.

Union Statement In Strike Delayed

Judge Is Named to Hear Plea Against Mill Injunction in Danville.

Danville, Va., Oct. 13.—The strike situation in the Dan River Mills remained in status quo today with no development of moment. Estimates varied as to the number entering the gates this morning. The issuance of a proposed statement by the union designed to offer a means of settlement has been delayed until the middle of the week, it was said at union headquarters, this being due to the fact that certain officials of the American Federation of Labor had not yet gone over it.

Gov. Pollard today named Judge James McLemore, of Suffolk, to sit at Chatham on October 15 when the cross bill by the union, designed to bring about dissolution of the injunction secured by the mills, comes up for argument.

Judge McLemore will replace Judge Turner Clement, who recently, on being questioned, admitted he owned 20 shares of mill stock, adding that he would act in no more cotton mill litigation.

INDICTMENTS FACED BY MAL DAUGHERTY

Head of Ohio State Bank Is Held on $40,000 Bond in Its Collapse.

FALSE REPORTS CHARGED

Washington Courthouse, Ohio, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Mal S. Daugherty, former president of the defunct Ohio State Bank, was held at county courthouse late today under $40,000 bond for arraignment on charges of misapplication of funds and making false reports on the bank's condition. Judge H. H. Rankin said he had been informed the bond would be signed by his brother, Harry M. Daugherty, Columbus, former Attorney General of the United States.

No date for hearing Daugherty's plea was fixed.

The Fayette County grand jury, investigating the failure of the Ohio State Bank and the Peoples & Drovers Bank, returned sixteen indictments, fifteen of them against Mal S. Daugherty and one against Virgil Vincent, local grain dealer and a heavy borrower from the banks.

Was in Teapot Dome Quiz.

Mal Daugherty came into prominence during the Teapot Dome oil reserve investigation during the Harding administration, when he refused to produce records of his bank for the Senate committee which was seeking funds alleged to have changed hands in the oil deal.

Daugherty was indicted on 58 counts, including charges of misapplication of funds, abstraction of funds, making false reports to agents appointed to examine the affairs of the banks, and false reports on capital stock. Vincent was indicted on a charge of perjury.

Investigation of the two bank failures was ordered by County Prosecutor William S. Paxson after O. C. Gray, State superintendent of banks, through Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, forced Daugherty into involuntary bankruptcy. In the bankruptcy proceedings, Daugherty admitted his inability to pay notes held by the Ohio State Bank totaling $77,000.

Bankruptcies Increase.

Since the banks were closed earlier this year, numerous bankruptcies have been filed in Federal Court at Columbus by prominent citizens of Fayette County. The county itself was financially embarrassed by the failures when $50,000 in county funds, deposited in the Ohio State Bank were tied up in litigation.

Daugherty had been head of the Midland National Bank, which figured prominently in the investigation of the Teapot Dome and Elks Hills oil leases. Shortly after the Senate committee had attempted investigation of banks' records the Midland National Bank was merged with two other Washington Court House institutions into the Ohio State Bank.

After the merger Daugherty was selected head of the Ohio State Bank which closed the latter part of the summer after depositors had made heavy withdrawals.

Report of the State Banking Department on the investigation of the affairs of the defunct Ohio State and Peoples & Drovers Banks has not been made.

British Airwoman Arrives in Kansas

Seeking Cross-Nation Mark of Miss Ingalls, She Clips Time of First Hop.

Kansas City, Kans., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Keith Miller, British aviatrix, seeking to better the transcontinental women's speed mark, landed here late today to spend the night, having clipped approximately 29 minutes from the Valley Stream, N. Y.—Kansas City flying time of Laura Ingalls, St. Louis, the record holder.

Mrs. Miller set her plane down at about 5:15 p. m. (Central standard time) at Nafziger Field after having missed the larger Kansas City airports in the flight, which began at 6:30 o'clock (Eastern standard time) this morning at Curtis Field, Valley Stream, N. Y. The British aviatrix's flying time from New York to Kansas City was computed as 11 hours 16 minutes. That of Miss Ingalls, who established the East-West record a week ago, was 11 hours 45 minutes. Miss Ingalls' transcontinental mark is 30 hours 27 minutes.

Mrs. Miller reported encountering thick fog over the Alleghenies. Stormy weather here resulted in her decision not to continue to Wichita, Kans., tonight, her destination.

Small Fire Threatens Annapolis Water Supply

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 13.—Fortunate in not having any serious outbreaks of fire during the prolonged drought, now in its fourth month, and with the municipal water supply at low ebb for several weeks, a threatening situation developed late this afternoon when flames broke out in a storage shed in the rear of an automobile accessory shop in West street. Prompt work of firemen of the three volunteer fire companies of the city, who used water sparingly in combination with chemicals, conquered the blaze before it gained much headway.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

GOVERNMENT PLAN MEETINGS ARE HELD

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

To bring to the voters information on the proposed change in the form of the Arlington County government, two mass meetings were held last night and all details dealing with the report as filed with the Arlington County Civic Federation by the legislation and legal action committee were brought out and explained by members of the committee.

One meeting was held in the community house at Barcroft under the auspices of the Barcroft School and Civic League. The speakers were Walter U. Varney and C. K. Lewis. The other meeting was a joint one under the auspices of the Jefferson District Citizens Association and the Hume School and Civic League. Those speaking were Hugh J. McGrath and Robert N. Anderson.

Mr. Anderson, who is chairman of the committee, stated last night that it is the purpose of the committee to furnish speakers for every organization in the county. The election has been set for Tuesday, November 4.

E. Lester Bennett, president of the Clarendon Citizens Association, last night stated that plans are now under way for a mass meeting of the citizens of Clarendon, Lyon Park, Lyon Village and Ashton Heights, when the question will be fully discussed by members of the committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation. The time and place will be announced later.

A suit for $10,000 damages against Edward Duncan was filed in the office of the clerk of the court yesterday by the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad through its attorney, Gardner L. Booth, of Alexandria.

The declaration sets forth that Mr. Duncan unlawfully withheld from the company possession of a certain tract of land located in Jefferson District just south of the Highway Bridge. The tract is said to contain approximately 23 acres.

The papers in the suit further set forth that the total of $10,000 is divided into two items, first $5,000 for rental for a period covering five years, and second, $5,000 for damages done to the property by using it as a dumping ground after having been instructed by the owners' representative to cease.

According to the records in the county clerk's office, the State Corporation Commission has granted charters to the following corporations:

The Capital Fireproof Corporation, with its principal office located at Rosslyn, Arlington County. The charter provides that the minimum capital stock be 100 shares of no par value with a maximum of 500 shares. The officers are Charles D. Jewell, president; Byron C. Thompson, treasurer, and Stanley D. Willis, secretary. The officers also constitute the board of directors.

The Public Small Loan Company, Inc., with offices at Rosslyn. The capital stock is 100 shares of no par value. The officers are George S. Groves, president; Guy C. Harper, jr., vice president and treasurer, and Gertrude M. Hallman. The same officers act as directors.

The Clarendon Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will give an oyster supper tomorrow night at the Parish Hall from 5 to 8 o'clock.

With tests of the well water in a number of cases within Falls Church showing pollution, it was learned last night that efforts are to be made to have the mains of the Arlington County water system, which are now laid within the town of East Falls Church, extended into the remaining portions of Falls Church.

It was stated that persons whose wells have been tested have been warned not to use the water for drinking purposes.

In a letter County Health Officer Dr. P. M. Chichester has received from the dairy and food division of the State agriculture department it was stated that State inspectors will be in the county during the latter part of this week to complete the work already under way toward the establishment of a permanent grade for milk in Arlington County.

The Martha Hester Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its monthly luncheon meeting today at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Raymond Bause, Wilson boulevard and Courthouse road.

Charged with transporting liquor, Powhatan Winston was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas. Bond was fixed at $500. William Proctor, who faced a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, also was held for the action of the grand jury. Bond was fixed at $500.

The Margaret King Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the home of Mrs. Lillian Echols, Clements avenue and Garrison road, Ballston.

Speaking at a special meeting of the executive committee of the Arlington County Chapter, American Red Cross, last night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon, Georgie F. Collier, county chairman of the annual roll call which opens November 11, stressed the point that all residents of the county should see to it that their membership is taken out in the county in order that the local chapter again may go over the top with its quota of 1,250 members, as it did last year, when the quota was set at 1,000 new members.

One-half the total results of the drive goes into the treasury of the local chapter and aids it greatly in carrying out its work, Chairman Collier stated.

Assured of the assistance of many of the community chairmen, who were largely responsible for the success of the drive last year, Mr. Collier stated that he was confident that equal success will result this year.

The annual report filed by Mrs. Meliscent Willis, secretary of the home service section of the local chapter, shows that during the year the chapter has expended for relief work $400.87. The number of cases taken care of during the year totaled 26, with a total of 80 visits made by the committee. The report states that the chapter has met all emergencies with which it has been confronted during the last year.

With a view to extending road improvements within Arlington District before the winter season starts, R. M. Hedrick, supervisor for the district, stated last night that the improvement now going on along Washington avenue, starting at the intersection of Wilson boulevard, will be continued to Hatfield. The improvement for a distance of one block from the boulevard to Virginia avenue is included in the contract for the work now going on in Clarendon. It is planned to carry the improvement from Virginia avenue to Hatfield. That part of the roadway which already has been graded will be surface treated, extending about to Lyon Park. The remainder of the roadway will be graded and improved next year.

OPTIMISM IS URGED AT COTTON MEETING

ACREAGE CUT ADVISED

New Orleans, La., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Resolutions to restore confidence in the cotton market in the present low market price were adopted here tonight in a meeting of cotton trade leaders called by the American Shippers Association.

The resolution followed announcements by E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, that the cooperative organization intends to use the cotton futures market for hedging purposes for the protection of the price and basis of its cotton.

The platform adopted asked the spinners to anticipate their future requirements for this year and next, the bankers to lend money to the producers contingent upon a substantial reduction in acreage, and advised the farmer to harvest his crop, hold for better prices and reduce his acreage.

Acting upon the observation of D. E. McCuen, of Greenville, S. C., president of the American Cotton Shippers Association and chairman of the meeting, the delegates decided at this time to withhold discussion of any amendments to the Federal farm tract for further consideration.

Lamont Also Speaks.

Addressing the assemblage and asking them to have confidence in the administration of the Federal Farm Board, the Department of Commerce and the Department of Agriculture while they seek to solve the problems confronting the farmer, business and industry were Chairman Alexander H. Legge, of the Farm Board; Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Mr. Creekmore.

Prolonged and sometimes heated discussion featured the executive session of several hours in which criticisms were hurled at the American Cotton Cooperative Association, the challenge accepted, apologies made and the remarks expunged from the record.

The platform adopted follows:

"Cotton at the present level is below cost of production.

"This being the case, it is a safe commodity for investment.

"The textile industry is, and has been for some months, in a very unhealthy condition. (Cason J. Calloway, Lagrange, Ga., and B. E. Greer, president of American Textile Manufacturers Association, were appointed to interpolate a note of optimism here).

Acreage Reduction Seen.

"Spinners may now well be urged to anticipate their future requirement not only for the present season, but for at least a portion of the season 1931-32 and even periods beyond in view of the acreage reduction that must follow the severe decline in prices that has taken place.

"There is an abundance of money available through the banking institutions for liberal advances on cotton at the present prices, and the banks of the South are urged to so inform the cotton producers, merchants and spinners.

"The above being the case, the farmer should be counseled:

"To go ahead with the harvesting of his crop before the elements damage the quality.

"But to sell as little as possible at the present level, to store the remainder in a dry place and hold for better prices.

"Also to make a very substantial reduction in cotton acreage for next year.

"Also that banks be urged in making advances to producers on this crop and for producing the next crop to be contingent upon the borrower making a substantial reduction in acreage."

Later in the day the man rallied sufficiently to write the name of Lawrence Howard, Syracuse, N. Y., on a piece of paper, and it was stated at the hospital last night his condition remains unchanged. He is only partially conscious at times.

HOOVER DAM IN COURT.

The Supreme Court has decided to hear Arizona's suit against construction of the proposed Hoover Dam in the Colorado River. In granting Arizona permission to file suit for injunction against the Secretary of the Interior and the States in the Colorado River Basin, the court implies a question as to the constitutionality of what has come to be known as the Boulder Dam act, and the seven-State compact on which it is based. That question will be duly elucidated by the court, and the fate of Hoover Dam will be finally decided.

The ruling of Comptroller General McCarl that his office has no authority to hold up the appropriation to begin work on the dam was anticipated. Congress made $10,000,000 available for this work over Arizona's protest, and the situation has not changed since. The Interior Department has a legal right to go ahead with the work, even though the constitutionality of the act has been challenged, but prudence suggests that all work be suspended until the question has been passed upon by the Supreme Court.

Arizona's suit does not ask the court for a temporary injunction to halt the work while the case is under consideration. For some reason the State chose to rest its case on a petition for a permanent injunction. No doubt the complaint will be given early attention by the Supreme Court, but matters of such far-reaching importance can not be adjudicated in short order. It may be a year or two years before a decision can be reached.

In the meantime, if the work is allowed to go on, the Government runs a risk of losing $10,000,000, or even more if an additional appropriation is made. The Interior Department can not safely presume that the case will be decided in its favor. Arizona raises a serious question as to whether Congress and five States can force another State into an agreement that is repugnant and unfair to its people.

The department ought voluntarily to suspend work on the dam until the court decision has been rendered. If the act does not permit the department to use its own discretion in this matter, a recommendation from the administration to Congress, in all probability could bring about a postponement. The Government can not afford to risk $10,000,000 or $20,000,000 in a wager that the Boulder Dam act is constitutional.

SPEEDING UP FELONY CASES.

Presiding Judge Schuldt, of the Police Court, and United States Attorney Rover are to be congratulated on their move to speed up the disposition of felony cases. The Police Court will give precedence to felony charges, and the defendants can be taken before the grand jury immediately. Evidence can be presented to the grand jury while it is fresh, and there will be less necessity of holding accused persons in jail while they await a hearing.

A speedy trial on any charges lodged against him is one of the fundamental rights of an American citizen. This guarantee written into the Constitution is too frequently inoperative because of delays occasioned by court procedure. The ends of justice can not be served by a sluggish judicial system. Now that this excellent beginning has been made, it is to be hoped that officials will scrutinize the prevailing practices for further opportunity of improvement.

HIGH-POWER RADIO STATIONS.

At present eight radio stations are operating with the maximum power permitted by the Radio Commission, namely, 50,000 watts, while hearings are under way looking toward permitting an additional twelve stations to operate with similar "superpower." These stations will be selected from those operating on the 40 cleared channels. The cleared channel stations provide a national service as contrasted with the local and regional service provided by the remainder of the 500-odd broadcasting stations.

The question of power is one of the most vexing in connection with the regulation of radio. So long as channels are cleared for the exclusive use of single stations, in theory it is bad economy to limit the power permitted thereupon. But the programs broadcast by any station interfere with programs broadcast by other stations placed in proximity on the scale of frequencies. It is because of the "blanketing" effect of the high powered station that supervision must be exercised over power output. In the hearings before the Radio Commission various and sundry competent engineers pointed out the waste that follows the limitation of power on cleared channels. The independent stations, however, formally protested that the authorization of high power on certain channels would affect all neighboring channels, and they opposed the granting of additional "superpower" permits on the ground that the transmitting efficiency of their stations would be adversely affected as a result.

Modern radio receivers have been developed to a state of highly refined selectivity. The radio fan who possesses a modern receiver does not find it difficult to tune out the "superpower" station, even though it may be located only a mile or so away. But the commission has to consider the man whose receiver is not highly selective. Of the millions of radio receivers in use, the great majority are more than a year old. These sets are not highly selective in comparison with sets manufactured within the last year.

As the older sets are replaced with modern equipment the opposition to high power may die away. It is, of course, necessary that cleared channels be utilized with the highest possible efficiency at all times, but for the present the commission will have to go slow in authorizing additional 50,000 watt stations.

THE DISTRICT'S SURPLUS.

The Commissioners have "discovered" that the District's surplus is not as near extinction as had been thought when the budget-making process got under way. It is now announced that the threatened 10-cent increase in the tax rate will not be necessary next year. It is, of course, good news to know that the $1.70 tax rate will not have to be increased, but it may be feared that the "discovery" that the surplus account is in such healthy condition will have unfortunate ramifications in Congress.

The surplus long has been a stumbling block to an increased Federal contribution to the cost of running the District. The Commissioners go before Congress year after year with a complete budget based on a specified tax rate plus the $9,000,000 Federal contribution, and when a demand for an increase in the Federal allotment is voiced, Congress points to the complete budget and asks: "What reason is there for increasing the Federal contribution when obviously the District is able to support itself from tax revenues augmented by a $9,000,000 Government dole?" That question is easily answered. The budget for years has been inadequate. It represents a compromise with necessity. In answer to the explanation, however, Congress points to the surplus. "Your budget is not a compromise," it says, "for you have been able to build up a surplus out of the total annual appropriation."

The sooner the surplus is used up, except for the deposit required to keep the District on a cash and carry basis, the better it will be. So long as the District has surplus funds stowed away Congress will have a handy excuse for keeping the Federal contribution to an unreasonably and unfairly inadequate level. For the present, the surplus should be carefully audited and a statement prepared showing how far the balance would go toward supplying some of the essential improvements for lack of which the District suffers.

TROUBLED GERMANY.

Rowdyism within and rioting without accompanied the opening of the German Reichstag yesterday. Ever since the September election gave the Fascist and the Communist parties added strength it has been apparent that the Reichstag would become embroiled in the most bitter factionalism. Radicals of every stripe have been emboldened by their victories. It is quite apparent that the present session will be a stormy one.

There was no occasion for rioting, except that the radical elements, which are still in the minority, hope to intimidate the administration. The radicals understand that they have no chance of gaining control of the reins of government, except by illegal means. Communism on the left is a check to Fascism on the right. Delegates of the two parties have the common hope of overturning the government, and it is certain that each faction will do its share toward obstructing the policies of the administration.

On the other hand, the Social-Democratic party, the largest faction in the Reichstag, has issued a warning to the Fascists that their program will be opposed with an "iron will," and if necessary with "workmen's fists." If the Socialists make good their threat the present Bruening cabinet may continue in office and Germany be held to a policy of common sense. If the moderate groups are not able to hold together Chancellor Bruening will again dissolve the Reichstag and force his retrenchment policy through by means of executive decrees.

The Young plan and the German republic seem to be, therefore, in no immediate danger. The fact that a group of international bankers has made a loan of $125,000,000 to Germany suggests that the dangers of a coup d'etat are slight. Nevertheless, the country is face to face with a good deal of trouble. Extremists have gained a strong foothold, and they will make the path to stability under the republic as thorny as possible. The outcome will depend, to a large extent, upon the ability of the government to shake off the effects of the economic depression and solve the growing problem of unemployment. If reasonable progress can be made in this direction there is a possibility that the people will repudiate in the next election both the Reds and the Black Shirts.

CHASING THE MIRAGE.

Dr. William John Cooper, Federal Commissioner of Education, has been inspired by the progress of education during the last century to issue a prognostication on educational achievement 100 years hence. He admits that, even with the aid of the "telescope of history," the American Republic of 2030 can be seen but very dimly. Nevertheless, he makes bold to describe the glorious scene.

The standard of living, says Dr. Cooper, will be higher than ever dreamed by Utopian philosophers. Affairs of state will be in the hands of men and women especially trained to discharge public responsibilities. Intelligence will have largely displaced emotion in the settlement of public issues. Members of the professions will be actuated by the principles of human service, not personal gain, and will become recognized leaders in forming public policies.

Looking again into the future, Dr. Cooper sees "burdensome toil removed from the backs of men" by automatic machinery. Public schools will teach, therefore, how to live rather than how to make a living. He visualizes most youths in school until they become of age, learning the ways of health, how to spend leisure time, as well as the duties of citizenship and parenthood. Underpaid school teachers will have disappeared, of course, and equal educational opportunities will be guaranteed to all through Government equalization funds.

Such glimpses of the future are always intensely interesting—and amusing. Looking forward, 100 years seems to be sufficient time to bring about almost any human evolution; but looking backward, the changes that have actually taken place in the last century do not seem to have altered human nature. Intrigue in politics runs through all history, as, indeed, does the acquisitive instinct of man. Education progresses, but it may be doubted if there will ever be a century long enough for the educators to substitute intellectual for emotional response to public issues. Unforeseen impediments to this program are buried deep in human nature, and these impediments have an uncanny way of cropping up just when the stage is set for the metamorphosis of humanity.

The next century is a blank page. So long as it remains blank it is easy for the imagination to read anything from its whiteness. But it is quite possible that when Time has smeared over the page in his own way some of the ideals that are now favored may be blotted out and covered up by new ideals not imaginable now. It isn't safe to count on changing human nature much, but anything might happen to the theoretical goals at which education aims. It is only safe to say that regardless of what progress is made, the idealists will keep a safe distance ahead of the common run of men, and that the horizon will always be blue and alluring.

FABRIC WEAKNESS OF R-101.

Investigators attempting to establish the cause of the R-101 accident have discovered that a large section of the fabric covering the elevator fin was torn not burned off. Although the fabric might have been torn off in the explosion that probably preceded the fire, the fact that other dirigibles have had trouble with the fabric fin covering lends credence to the theory that fin damage might have rendered the R-101 uncontrollable. The Graf Zeppelin on her first flight to America damaged a fin in midocean and came into Lakehurst with the part temporarily repaired. The R-100 on her flight to Canada limped up the St. Lawrence Valley with a partly stripped elevator. Both the R-100 and R-101 had a great deal of fabric trouble during their trials.

The stress and strain on dirigible fin structures is great. Whether or not it will ever be established definitely that the R-101 had trouble with her elevators before the accident, it appears to have been demonstrated conclusively that the present framework and fabric method of constructing elevator and stabilizer fins leaves much to be desired. Here is a field for serious study by aeronautical and aerodynamic engineering.

AN EMPTY CORN CRIB

From the Wall Street Journal.

Not since 1816, when there was a frost every summer month, has the United States known what it is to have an empty corn crib. This year, however, if figured on a per capita basis, the estimated production, taken in connection with other feed crops, makes a total that indicates that with ordinary feeding the bottom of the crib should be reached before another crop is harvested. The important question now is the effect this situation will have on live-stock feeding and on prices.

The official estimate as of October 1 indicates a crop of 2,047,000,000 bushels of corn. A number of prominent crop experts claim that on account of the drought and hot weather during the period when the embryo ears are fertilized by the pollen, actual husking will reveal less corn. But taking the official estimate at this time, it compares with 2,614,000,000 bushels in 1929, and a five-year average of 2,700,000,000. In some years the production has gone beyond the three billion bushel mark. Practically all of the corn we raise is consumed at home.

Industrial uses take about 225,000,000 bushels, and assuming that amount will be used this year there would be 1,822,000,000 bushels for live-stock feeding to keep up the supply of meat, dairy and poultry products as well as to feed the draft animals at work on the farms. The principal value of corn is for producing meat and there is no other feed that is "just as good" for this purpose. There are other grains that can, and will be used, but unfortunately the total supply is short.

The estimated total of corn, oats, barley and sorghum grains is 3,865,000,000 bushels compared with 4,252,000,000 a year ago and a five-year average of 4,443,000,000 bushels. The shortage is 578,000,000 bushels. Then too, the hay crop is 10 per cent less than average; pastures are far below average, which will necessitate more feeding. The shortage in feed therefore is considerably more than 578,000,000 bushels.

There was a carryover of about 275,000,000 bushels of wheat and the present crop of 840,000,000 bushels should yield another 150,000,000 bushels to that exportable supply. Wheat is not an ideal stock feed, but when ground and mixed with other grains is usable, and probably more than usual will be fed. If 150,000,000 bushels are fed that will be three times as much as is ordinarily used. The feed shortage may be helped, but will not be remedied, by using wheat.

These are the facts; the conclusion to be drawn from them is that for the feed grains this is a seller's market and corn should not be cheap; that, with the bottom of the corn crib in sight, farmers and feeders will economize, and will put less cattle on feed this winter with a corresponding reduction in the beef supply a few months hence.

JUST FOLKS

THE DISAPPOINTED LOVER SPECULATES.

I wonder what it was I said
Or did to turn her mind,
Or what in him she's soon to wed
In me she failed to find.

Time was her smiles were given to me,
Then suddenly she changed
And all went dark, nor can I see
Just why we were estranged.

I only know that when he came
She turned away from me,
And yet I was the very same
Old friend who used to be.

The only reason she can give
Is old as stars above.
She will respect me while I live,
Him while he lives she'll love.

Love is or is not. That is plain.
However man may sigh,
When woman makes her choice, 'tis vain
To seek the reason why.

You Can't Attract Thirsty Men by Filling the Well With Sirup

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE influence of the church wasn't lost. It was thrown away.

An excellent illustration of the way it happened is afforded by a recent prize offer made by the American Eugenics Society.

The society offered $1,000 in prizes for the five best sermons preached to religious congregations on the relation of the church to eugenics.

Whether "eugenics" is interpreted to mean birth control or legal restrictions to prevent the mating of the unfit, the church's relation to the subject is no more intimate than the relation of baptism to tonsilectomy.

During the last two decades the pulpit has been harnessed to perform every kind of chore from the selling of Liberty bonds to the sorry business of making votes for politicians.

If the house of prayer hasn't been made a den of thieves, at least it has been prostituted to serve causes that have no more connection with religion than dividends have with righteousness.

A world in search of bread for its hungry soul is turned away empty. The sorrowing and the heavy-laden who yearn for a faith that will make life bearable are treated to a fourth-rate lecture on the sex influence in art or some blasphemy equally ridiculous.

The pulpit—much of it—seems to have lost sight of the simple and fundamental fact that people go to church in quest of religion.

"Help thou my unbelief!" is the cry of their troubled spirits. They long to understand. They hope for guidance. They search for some man of God who can show them the way to peace.

It isn't entertainment they want. They can find better in a theater. They don't attend church to learn about science or politics or social problems. The public prints give them instruction enough.

If they won't attend church, it isn't because they are fed up on religion. It is because the church no longer offers them religion—or else offers a milk-sop, prudish, prissy and effeminate moralism instead of a manly, soul-satisfying religion that demands and gives the strength and courage that will overcome the world.

When the church forsakes religion, men who are in search of religion will forsake the church.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Europe's Protective Tariffs.

Topeka Capital.

Mr. Shouse's Democratic publicity bureau is barking up the wrong tree in attributing the wheat market to the new American tariff. The new tariff is not greatly different from the old. But the Democratic bureau is beating its tom toms to the tune that European governments are retaliating against American tariff duties, and hence the slump in wheat.

Protective tariffs have become well nigh universal, and their tendency in Europe in recent years, as is well known, has been rather drastic. Every government is trying to protect its own industries and workers. The European tariffs are worked out with regard to opinions of what will work best for home production and prosperity, not by any such infantile plan as what will punish the United States or anybody else.

A week or so ago an Associated Press dispatch reported wheat selling in France at $2 a bushel, while across the channel in England it brought the American price plus freight. It was not to "get even" with this country that the French government prohibited all imports of wheat until the total French crop was consumed, or marketed. It was to protect the French wheat grower. The French consumer pays the bill. And now the French decree is put into effect requiring licenses to import any Russian farm products whatever.

The revised American tariff has about as much to do with current fiscal programs of European governments as has the theory of sun spots or the doctrine of relativity. Not only France, but Italy, Germany, England and Russia are working for the protection of their own industries by policies that seem to them best adapted to the purpose.

"The Dead Hand."

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Because many of the leaders who were instrumental in getting the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States adopted are dead, the amendment should be repealed, in the opinion of Liberty, faithful organ of the liquor cause. "Now we are ruled by a dead hand. As a matter of fact, many of the dry leaders of that time, like Wayne B. Wheeler, are dead. But they still legislate for us. They decreed, in effect, that the people of 1930 or any other year could have no say in the matter and must be bound by the dogmas and beliefs of 1919," wails the weekly.

Very logical, indeed. Some of the leaders who aided in securing the adoption of the nineteenth amendment also are dead, and a dead hand is therefore decreeing that woman shall have the right to vote. Shall we repeal the nineteenth amendment and withdraw the right of suffrage to American women? There are plenty of people today who do not believe women should be allowed to vote, and most of them who believe that way are on the wet side of the prohibition issue.

And how about other amendments? Are they not also the work of hands now dead? The first ten amendments, commonly referred to as the Bill of Rights, were adopted largely through the efforts of Thomas Jefferson. That worthy gentleman of Democratic tendencies has also been dead quite a spell now.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Americans Eager to Join the Fighting in Brazil—Some Notable Soldiers of Fortune.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is scarcely surprising that several thousand American youths have already applied to the Brazilian Embassy here, and to that country's consular office in New York and elsewhere, for permission to join the Brazilian Government forces against the rebels. Ever since the first revolution at Pernambuco in 1817, which within a few years brought about Brazil's independence, there has been no lack of venturesome American youths and professional soldiers of fortune to augment the fighting forces in the numerous revolts of Brazil, as indeed of the other countries south of the Rio Grande.

Whether for gold, adventure, or both, these intrepid Americans have at every opportunity cast their lot with the contending factions. Nor have they always been partial as to which faction they would favor, most of them having been seekers merely of excitement, of the chance of snatching fortune from the jaws of danger. Many paid with their lives for this hardihood. Some were commissioned as officers, and it is not unrecorded that others emerged famous. These adventure seekers have at times even gone as a unit to the scene of some Central or South American revolt. Their experiences have frequently been the themes of fictional and biographical narratives. The outstanding American filibuster was William Walker.

While the latest group of would-be adventurers is said to include students, engineers, medical interns, airplane mechanics, clerks, &c., in other days these tried or embryo soldiers of fortune were often the riffraff of American cities who found themselves at or near the scene of action because they were fugitives from justice or vagabonds. — F. M. RAPP.

State, War and Navy Building Designed as Counterpart of Treasury. Symmetry Destroyed by Superstructure.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some contributors to this column would have us think that the contemplated change in the outward appearance of the State, War and Navy Building is little less than a crime. Apparently their thinking is a little cramped by a shortened perspective added to a lack of appreciation of architectural values.

A flight over the city will enable them to see that the White House unit is composed of three parts, itself being the central one, with the Treasury on the east and the State, War and Navy Building on the west. From such a coign of vantage any one may see that this unit is completely out of balance because the classic grace of the Treasury has been scorned in the other building.

The original plans of these buildings are said to be identical, so that while the ground covered is the same, the lack of harmony in the exterior completely destroys the effect of the design.

Many regard the Capitol as possessing a dignity and grandeur unsurpassed anywhere. When the proposed restoration is completed this White House unit may well be regarded as holding second place in Washington, at least, if not in the world. After the flight if one will take a position diagonally across from the southeast corner of the Treasury and let the eye sweep the south front, and then rest the glance upon that stately line of solid columns on the eastern side of the building, knowing that the White House sits securely between these twin structures, financial strength on the one side and statesmanship on the other, one can visualize the Government of the United States rather better than before, and the feeling of national stability and security will impress itself far more deeply.

ARTHUR GIBSON MORSE.

Says Old-Fashioned School Readers of the Moral, McGuffey Type Are Needed to Curb Crime.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: I am convinced that the negative character of modern school readers is failing to give our young people ideas of law-abiding citizenship. As a collector of old school readers, I find that we have degenerated alarmingly in this respect. Put by the side of such readers as McGuffey, Barnes, Goodrich, Willson's, or Appletons's, the new textbooks seem frothy indeed.

McGuffey's was second to none. People are writing me from far and near about the part these superior books played in giving direction to their footsteps in things moral. I have them dating back to 1844, as well as the final edition of 1879. All of the various editions abound in moral content. With our composite populace it may not be practicable to have the Bible taught in public schools, but moral instruction that makes our young people honorable citizens should be encouraged by all.

JACOB LUND.

EDISON AND BURBANK.

Once Edison and Henry Ford were calling on Luther Burbank in California, when the naturalist asked them to sign his guest book, according to the Detroit News.

"This book," says Mr. Ford, "had a column for signature, another for home address, another for occupation and a final one entitled 'interested in.' In the final column Edison wrote without an instant's hesitation: 'Everything.'

"That explains Mr. Edison," adds Mr. Ford. "He is literally interested in everything."

Mr. Ford doesn't tell us what he himself wrote in that last column. It might well have been: "Edison."

HAITI PARLIAMENT TO BE VOTED TODAY

BODY NAMES PRESIDENT

Port au Prince, Haiti, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The first Parliament since the dissolution of Haiti's legislative bodies fifteen years ago will be elected tomorrow.

Two hundred thousand voters have registered for the election, representing a fairly large proportion of the potential electors, since only the men among Haiti's 3,000,000 inhabitants have the right of franchise.

The new Parliament of 15 senators and 36 deputies will meet as a national assembly to choose Haiti's next president.

Marines to Stay in Barracks.

The 800 American marines stationed in Haiti have been ordered to remain in their barracks tomorrow. The Garde d'Haiti, a native military force that has been organized and trained by American officers, will be on the alert for any possible disorders.

The new president, to be chosen by the national assembly, will succeed Eugene Roy, who became provisional chief executive May 15, when Louis Borno's second term expired. The Forbes commission which investigated the American occupation in Haiti obtained a promise from Borno that he would not be a candidate for a third term.

Roy, like Borno, was elected by the council of state, a body of 21 members appointed by the president to carry on the functions of the legislature in the absence of a legislature.

One Term of Six Years.

While Borno's two terms lasted eight years, the new president will be restricted by the constitution to one term of six years.

During the 108 years preceding the American intervention of 1915 Haiti had 24 chief executives, including one "emperor." Only two were allowed to go peacefully from office. Seventeen of the 24 were deposed by revolution and 5 died in office, 3 of the latter meeting violent deaths.

Anklets Affixed To Chicago Babes

Special Metal Tags Will Prevent Repetition of Mix-Up.

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Anklets with self-locking clasps which must be severed to be removed are now being used to prevent baby mix-ups in Chicago hospitals, Dr. Arnold Kegel, city health commissioner, revealed today.

The anklets, bearing metal identification tags attached in the presence of two witnesses at the time of each birth, are being used in addition to regular hospital tags as a result of a rule established by Dr. Kegel to eliminate possibility of a repetition of the recent Bamberger-Watkins baby mix-up, which attracted Nation-wide attention.

In the Bamberger-Watkins case the infants of Mrs. Charles Bamberger and Mrs. Watkins were mixed in a hospital when identification marks on the babies were confused by placing each child in wrong clothing. The mix-up was finally adjusted when parents swapped babies they took home from the hospital.

Girl, Unable to Breathe, Better.

Portland, Me., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Eleven-year-old Jean Taylor, encased in a respirator machine at the Maine General Hospital five days to combat inability to breathe unaided because of infantile paralysis, was reported by doctors to be slightly improved today.

Hoover's Son Reported Improving at Retreat

Herbert Hoover, jr., who is ill with a tubercular infection at the Rapidan summer camp, is responding to treatment. President Hoover spent Sunday with his son and reported yesterday that he was pleased with his improved condition.

Mrs. Hoover, who is suffering from a cold, did not go to Rapidan with the White House party, which consisted of Dr. Joel T. Boone, Lawrence Richey and John Agnew, of London, an old friend of the President. Mrs. Hoover is not confined to her bed, but did not feel able to make the trip to camp.

Dempsey to Open Office Here When Term Ends

Representative S. Wallace Dempsey, of New York, who retires from office in March, having been defeated in the Republican primary recently by W. G. Friends influenced him to make this decision, Mr. Dempsey said, as they urged that he remain in close touch with projects with which he is familiar. These include federalization of the New York State barge canals and hydroelectric developments under Federal control.

TARIFFS CONSIDERED BY IMPERIAL PARLEY

Inter-Empire Preference Is Given Support by Labor Government.

BALDWIN MOVE CITED

London, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Inter-empire tariffs were debated by the heads of delegations to the imperial conference today, but only one clear statement emerged from the discussions. William Graham, president of the board of trade, said the MacDonald government accepted the principle that where tariffs existed in Great Britain tariff preferences shall be given.

There was no clear cut reply from Premier MacDonald or any one else to the Canadian premier's proposal of last week that a 10 per cent increase be levied on existing empire preferential duties and in political circles no such reply was expected.

It was believed, rather, that it was the intention of the conference to begin tomorrow an examination of individual industries, such as coal, steel and textiles, and consider them separately with regard to each individual dominion.

Federation Urges Fiscal System.

Meanwhile, at an emergency meeting of the general council of the Federation of British Industries, which includes the biggest industrial firms in the country, it was resolved, in view of the overwhelming expression of opinion by its members, "the federation shall press, by every means in its power, for establishment of a fiscal system which shall combine protection of our industrial interests at home with the widest possible extension of inter-empire preference."

Graham's plan for increasing empire trade, which he asked to be considered along with Premier Bennett's offer of a definite 10 per cent preferential tariff, included schemes for bulk purchases, import boards, quota purchases and trade agreements with the dominions along the lines of Great Britain's trade treaties with Germany and Argentina.

Importance of Issue Reflected.

The extreme importance of the whole tariff issue in British internal politics was reflected in a statement issued by the conservative party central office tonight in which it was said that Stanley Baldwin's recent pronouncement supporting Premier Bennett's proposal "has given widespread satisfaction not only among all supporters of the policies of the conservative party, but throughout the empire."

It was further declared that hope had been expressed to the Conservative leader by all classes "that any fissures that may have existed in the party's ranks will now be closed and a united front presented."

Observers pointed to this morning's Daily Express, nevertheless, in which its proprietor, Lord Beaverbrook, who was the chief exponent of the empire free trade campaign, declared "Mr. Baldwin is going to try to put something over on us and we must be ready for him when he does."

Continent Fliers Held by Weather

Laura Ingalls, Robert Buck Balked in Efforts to Reach Wichita.

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Miss Laura Ingalls of St. Louis, and Robert Buck, 16, of Elizabeth, N. J., seeking west-to-east transcontinental airplane speed records, were forced to spend their second consecutive night here on account of unfavorable weather conditions.

The hop for Wichita, Kans., was not undertaken because heavy fog and exceedingly low ceiling were reported. The fliers were at the airport most of the day vainly awaiting receipt of favorable weather reports.

Buck's elapsed time from the Pacific Coast is 9 hours and 33 minutes and Miss Ingalls' 9 hours and 59 minutes. He had flown from Newark, N. J., to Los Angeles, Calif., in 26 hours and 33 minutes and Miss Ingalls flew across the continent in 30 hours and 27 minutes.

Bar Association Head Buried in Wilmington

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Persons prominent in the affairs of the State and Nation attended the funeral today of Josiah Marvel, president of the American Bar Association and Democratic national committeeman from Delaware, who died Saturday from heart disease at the age of 64.

The funeral was held at the Marvel home, at Greenville, near here, and was in charge of the Right Rev. Philip Cook, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Delaware. Burial was in the cemetery of the Lower Brandywine Presbyterian Church, near Centreville. Among those named as honorary pallbearers were four past presidents of the American Bar Association, Henry Upson Sims, Silas H. Strawn, Charles S. Whitman, former Governor of New York, and Gurney E. Newlin.

TARIFF AIDS FARMER IN THEORY, IS CLAIM

FIGURES ARE COMPARED

Mount Vernon, Ohio, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The farmer of the United States receives a "theoretical advantage" of $102 a year under the new tariff bill, Arthur M. Hyde, United States Secretary of Agriculture, said in a Republican rally address here tonight.

Hyde made the assertion after a comparison of the tariff rates as applied to various agricultural products and industrial merchandise. He said that the average farm family buys products during the year on which a tariff of $48 is collected, while his entire production is protected by the tariff act and he collects approximately $150 a year more than when his products are duty free.

The American market on farm products, Hyde said, is much higher than that of foreign countries, thus reflecting the results obtained from protection.

Hyde said his comparison was in answer to a claim of the national Democratic headquarters that the farmer would pay out $10 on the new tariff for every one dollar's protection he obtained.

The Secretary said that every phase of the agricultural industry now is protected from foreign competition, which has saved the American market for the American products.

He added that the new tariff bill "offers an opportunity for more profitable diversification and better balance in agriculture which has not heretofore existed."

Dr. Malbran Will Arrive Next Month

New Argentine Envoy Is Well Acquainted in Capital.

ARRIVING in Washington the first part of November, Dr. Don Manuel Malbran, the new Ambassador from Argentina, is sailing from Buenos Aires October 24. The first diplomat appointed by the new government, he will be warmly welcomed, having served here twice before as a representative of his country.

It is not known whether Senora Malbran will accompany him to Washington. According to reports at the embassy, there is a possibility that she and their three children will join him in this country later in the season. When Dr. Malbran served as envoy here for a few months in the closing days of the Coolidge administration, Senora Malbran remained at home. But with the new regime in Argentina, there is more permanency attached to the post in Washington, and Senora Malbran's arrival is assured.

For a long period, diplomatic business at the embassy has been left in the hands of charges d'affaires, in fact, since Dr. Malbran's resignation two years ago. He succeeded Ambassador Honorio Pueyrredon whose family, consisting of Senora Pueyrredon, a son, and two charming daughters, was extremely popular here, and their departure was the occasion for much lamenting in official and diplomatic circles.

During Dr. Malbran's first term of service he acted as first secretary of the embassy; that was more than a dozen years ago. Her eldest son, now in his teens, was born in Washington. The next child is a boy, and the youngest a girl.

Dr. Malbran's resignation as envoy in 1928 was precipitated by a disagreement with his government over plans for President—then President-elect—Hoover's visit to Argentina. He had protested against what he deemed President Irogoyen's discourtesy toward the American President-elect in arrangements for his reception.

First Lady to Receive On Thursday Afternoon.

The President and Mrs. Hoover, with their guests who were with them over the week-end at Rapidan, returned to town Sunday evening. Mrs. Hoover will receive the ladies accompanying the delegates to the National Society of Industrial Engineers on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will entertain them one afternoon this week at tea at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. W. H. Crowley has moved to the new Shoreham Hotel for the winter, from 2540 Massachusetts avenue.

Lieut. Comdr. O. B. Hardison and Mrs. Hardison and their small son, O. B. Hardison, jr., have returned to town and are at home in the apartment in the Parkwood which they have taken for the winter.

The American Ambassador to France, Mr. Walter E. Edge, who, with Mrs. Edge, is sailing for this country on Thursday to take part in the elections, went to Nancy from Paris where an honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred on him last Sunday.

A banquet was given in honor of the Ambassador and the four distinguished Belgian savants on whom the same honor was conferred.

Mr. and Mrs. Edge were accompanied to Nancy by Mr. Norman Armour, counselor of the embassy; the military and naval attaches, and Mr. Robert T. Pell, special attache.

It will be recalled that Mr. Pell married Miss Alice Harding, of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Pell are intimate friends of the Ambassador and Mrs. Edge and went to Paris with them a little more than a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Edge are coming to this country on the Ile de France.

Mrs. Oscar W. Underwood, widow of Senator Underwood, of Alabama, and her niece, Miss Nini Woodward, of Birmingham, Ala., sailed on the Majestic for New York the first of October and are expected in Washington the latter part of this week. While in Europe they spent several months in Switzerland, and Miss Woodward visited Mme. de Hertelendy in Budapest in August. Mme. de Hertelendy is the wife of Mr. Andor de Hertelendy, now attached to the foreign office in Budapest, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Reynolds Hitt, of Washington, whom she visited last spring.

Representative and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey will return to the Capital in November.

Sturges-Corby Nuptials Date Is Announced

Former Capital Girl to Be Wed in New York October 29.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth L. Corby, of Washington and New York, daughter of Mrs. Elliott Corby, to Mrs. Ralph Sturges, jr., of New York, will take place on October 29.

The bride will be attended by her sisters, Mrs. Donald D. Thompson and Miss Mildred Corby. Mr. John M. Sturges will be best man for his brother, and Mr. Thomas I. O'Connor, Mr. Gerard Benziger and Mr. H. Murray MacElhinney will act as ushers.

Mrs. Corby and her three daughters lived in Washington until several seasons ago, when Miss Mildred Corby and Miss Elizabeth Corby went to New York, where they became engaged in business. Mrs. Thompson joined them there about a year ago, and at the same time Mrs. Corby closed her apartment here and moved to California.

No announcement was made of the engagement, although plans for the forthcoming marriage were known by close friends of Miss Corby and Mr. Sturges.

Representative and Mrs. Henry Winfield Watson have returned to Washington and have opened their home at 1765 Massachusetts avenue. Miss Janet Randolph Ball, daughter of Mrs. Watson, has returned with them after spending the summer abroad.

Diplomat Entertains For Road Delegates.

The Charge d'Affaires of the Legation of Czechoslovakia and Mme. Skalicky entertained at luncheon at their home on Cathedral avenue on Sunday in honor of a group of delegates to the International Road Congress.

The United States Minister to the Union of South Africa, Ralph A. Totten, is en route to the United States and will arrive in the Capital November 1. He is accompanied by his mother, Mrs. James Totten.

Mr. Totten was made chief of the diplomatic mission at Cape Town last fall but did not receive the rank of minister until June. Mr. Totten is a cousin of Maj. George Oakley Totten, of Washington.

Mr. David E. Finley has as his guest the Hon. John D. T. Pepys, who came from England a week ago and has been visiting in New York and Long Island.

Moores Lease Woodley Road Home Till June

James Pennebakers to Take Up Abode in Apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrington Moore have taken the home of Mr. and Mrs. ames Pennebaker, at 3848 Woodley road, for the season. Mr. and Mrs. Pennebaker will move the middle or the end of the week to the Farnsborough Apartment until June when they will return to their home.

The home of the Pennebaker's is most attractive and interesting. It is of white-washed brick, the round tower of which characterizes it of the Breton farmhouse period. Originally it was a very small house, and has been added to without changing the type or cutting any of the beautiful trees which surround it. Large gardens add attraction to the already charmingly rambling and irregular house.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Simonds have also leased their attractive home in Georgetown at 3108 P street to Mrs. Winthrop Chandler, of New York. Mrs. Simonds has sailed to pass the winter in Europe.

Miss Morris to Be Wed To Mr. Wickes Today.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Nelson Morris, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mr William Warren Wickes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wickes, of Wilmington, Del., is taking place at noon today in All Souls Memorial Church on Cathedral avenue, with the rector of the church, Dr. Sterrett, officiating.

The bride is being given in marriage by her father, and her attendants are Miss Dorothy Boyle and Miss Virginia Armstrong. The best man will be Mr Frederick Fuller Mack, a cousin of the bride, of Manchester, Conn., and Washington, and the ushers will be Mr. Earl Ewing, of Wilmington, Del.; Mr. William Glover, Mr. Robert McPherson Milans and Mr. Fenwick March, all of Washington, and Mr. Frederick T. Traugott, of Philadelphia, Pa.

A wedding breakfast will be served at the home of Mrs. Frank E. Mack, aunt of the bride, after which the newly married couple are leaving on an extended wedding trip. They will be at home after November 1 in Jacksonville, Fla.

SOCIAL CENTER of the NATION'S CAPITAL

● Wardman Park, one of the world's greatest apartment hotels, combines the attractive recreational facilities of a fashionable country club with the modern comforts and conveniences of a metropolitan establishment. ● It has been said that "yesterday's luxuries are today's necessities." It is also true that scientific management is bringing yesterday's luxuries nearer and nearer the progressive people of the present age who appreciate the importance of living in the proper environment. Nowhere is this modern trend more in evidence than at Wardman Park. Our residents and guests enjoy superlative service, in a delightful atmosphere—and their expenses are no more, frequently less, than they would pay elsewhere for ordinary accommodations. ● One of our guests said recently, "I am delighted! My apartment is wonderfully comfortable and attractive. I am most agreeably surprised to discover that the rates are so very reasonable. I had expected the service in every department to be as high as the quality which characterizes them. Frankly, I was prepared to pay more, for I realize that it is worth more to live here. Then, too, it is gratifying to become a member of the community which has been so popular with my friends for many years. And the great variety of entertainment—well, it is a marvelous place, and I want you to know that I am a very happy resident." ● We have eighteen hundred rooms, all outside, arranged in one-room combinations, two, three and five room suites. A few furnished apartments in choice locations are available just now. If you are looking for a better place to live, you will welcome this opportunity. The members of our staff will be glad to furnish any information you may desire. ●

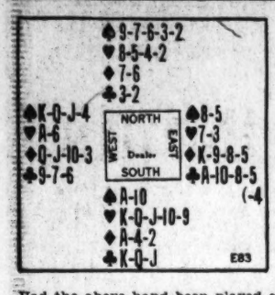
WORK ON BRIDGE



Had the above hand been played at Auction Bridge the bidding would have been: South one Heart, West one Spade, North pass, East, denying normal support for partner's Spades, two Clubs, and South two Hearts, which would have obtained the contract.

But the hand was played at Contract, and South started the bidding with three Hearts. Three No Trumps would have been another correct bid for South with a No Trump count of 21 and all four suits stopped; but the long Hearts looked safer and the count of 100 for four honors was attractive. West passed and North, although holding a "Yarborough" (a hand containing no card higher than a Nine), ventured four Hearts, calling his four trumps and two doubletons the one probable trick needed to jump a three-bid.

In the play West led the King of Spades which South won and led a trump. West won with the Ace and after taking in the Queen of Spades, led the Queen of Diamonds. South won, took one more round of trumps which exausted the adversaries, and led a Club. East won and saved game by cashing the King of Diamonds.

Was the Declarer's fate due to hard luck or something else?

The Correct Play.

Granting that usually the first thing for the Declarer to do is to get out the trumps, there are exceptions to this rule and this hand is a good example of one type of exception. South, winning the first trick with the Ace of Spades, should have realized if the adversaries won a Diamond it would be fatal. Dummy must get a Diamond discard in order to trump the second Diamond round; consequently South should have led a Club at trick 2. East would have won and the adversaries could have cashed a Spade and then led a Diamond; South winning would have led two Clubs, North parting with his last Diamond on the last Club. After that the Ace of trumps would be the only trick lost by Declarer. Incidentally it is interesting to note that South could not have gone game at No Trump.

Dare Interprets the Mode

A riot of colors characterizes this pajama suit with its orange velvet jacket, orange crepe blouse, and white moire trousers printed in orange and black. (Courtesy of Marynowitzky, Paris.)

New York, Oct. 13.

WHEN a frock is very well made, you say to yourself at once, "Ah, an expensive model!" When it is extremely well made, you say to yourself, "Ah, a Paris frock!"

And when a garment is extremely well made and is of a very good color; when it is a conservative style, yet ever so smart; when the lines of it are very becoming to your figure; when it is in a color that does its very best for your personal combination of coloring—then you have everything that is necessary for a successful frock. And, having them, you can afford to pay rather highly for this gown, knowing that as far as the mode and the material are concerned, you will be able to wear it for several seasons. And that as far as lines and colors are concerned, you will feel comfortable and look right in it as long as you wear it!

Yes, there are such garments obtainable. Nor does L'elegante ever buy any other kind. The woman who knows what she wants and shops wisely and well, is the smartest woman in her social set and doesn't spend half the money being so that her less clever sisters spend.

I tell you, it breaks my heart not to be able to illustrate Mary-Nowitsky things for you in color! The lounging pajamas in black, orange and white, for instance, that I have sketched for you today—honestly, you should have seen them! The jacket was orange velvet, and so was the blouse orange, but it was crepe, and the trousers were white moire printed with orange and black flowers.

Wouldn't you like to slip into these when you came home after a busy day, for a quiet, cozy dinner, not to mention being properly attired to greet the unexpected guests who have a way of dropping in when you least expect.

* * * *

It's simply delightful, that new nightgown that I designed for you! Because it does what a nightgown is supposed to do—it flatters the figure, the while it is both revealing and concealing. And the way the pleats are arranged, it holds its shape, too. I made the design on paper, Mamzelle made it in unbleached muslin, and the French-Maid-Who-Is-Spanish copied that unbleached muslin one for me in two colors!—Honestly, it's a shame you can't see it, for if you could you wouldn't wait a single instant to send that stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make it.

* * * *

Being Be-Furred.

Another way to be much fur-trimmed with very few furs is to have the furrier put many hooks and eyes onto your furs. For instance, Mamzelle has a couple of stone martens which she contrives to wear as cuffs on a little gold brocade evening coat, a border on the jacket of a brown velvet afternoon suit, and as a neckpiece for various other dresses. And the important part of it is that never once do they look like they were meant to be anything except what they are used for at the moment! And the hooks and eyes, when put on by a furrier, never show, you may be sure.

Just a word more today: Dare's weekly fashion letter is in The Washington Post every Sunday.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to noon, from 3:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date will stultify your initiative, and dampen your spirits. Seek companionship, and force activities! You will be more pleased with the world and his wife during the evening hours, when there will be a change in the general atmosphere.

The child born on this October 14 will resent a heavy father or mother attitude or preachiness, but will have a reasoning mind, and will never betray a trust or privilege given in good faith. It will have decided talents, and will be able to handle work requiring an analytical mind.

You are in most respects a very strong minded and determined being, and you prefer to "paddle your own canoe," and if possible to assist in the navigation of others in whom you are closely interested. It is most difficult for you to keep silent when you know that you can give some timely advice, but the years will show you that it is usually wiser to keep your own counsel. You take your job, whatever it may be, very seriously, and woe be it to him, who interferes with its execution.

It is unfortunate that you have such a poor sense of humor—you can stoically bear most griefs without flinching, but you can seldom laugh at them. Your moral codes are very strict ones, and you judge harshly those who break them—to you there are no extenuating circumstances. It is probable that you will gain tolerance and forebearance through some very bitter experiences which will come into your life.

In spite of your determined will, you are what the doctors call a confirmed "malade imaginaire." You think too much about your health, and you easily give up when you are ill. You worry a great deal, although most of your worries are grotesquely exaggerated. Your affections are deep and sincere.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DEATHS BY ACCIDENT.

ACCIDENTS have become one of the important causes of death, outranking some of the preventable diseases. Health departments are planning measures of prevention suited to this cause of fatality, on the principle that both law and public opinion look to them to save human lives. Street accidents loom large in this group, and the automobile is the chief cause of street accidents. In addition to the heavy loss of life there is a staggering financial loss. The statistical bureau of the national safety council places the annual loss due to motor accidents at $850,000,000.

When President Hoover was Secretary of Commerce he called a conference to discuss means of lessening street accidents due to motor vehicles. There were several of these conferences during the period when President Hoover was in the Cabinet, and at least one has been held under Secretary Lamont.

Out of these conferences there have come some model laws. In the Public Safety for September, 1930, Mr. S. J. Williams, of the National Safety Council, estimates that 22,000 lives have been saved by the operation of this model law in the nine States that have adopted it or some law closely following it. He says: "Since enactment of driver's license laws with examination in these respective commonwealths there have been 29 per cent fewer automobile fatalities than there would have been if they had experienced the same percentage increase which occurred in the non-license State. The laws have been in effect for an average of eight years."

The tendency of the automobile or highway fatality rate is markedly upward. In some States this has become one of the most important causes of deaths, far outranking smallpox and some other of the diseases against which we spent much money and effort.

When a State passes this license law experience has shown that there is a temporary increase in the automobile fatality rate. Then the rate starts down. The decline keeps up. The law generally provides the then drivers with licenses without much of an examination. The satisfactory results become evident two or three years later, when the requirements are being enforced.

UNDERWEIGHT AT 21.

C. C. L. writes: I am 21 years old, 5 feet 7 inches in height, underweight 22 pounds. I have albumin in my kidneys, which I have taken care of, but I don't seem to gain. My face breaks out in small pimples occasionally. I have gone on a diet of orange juice and drink a quart of milk a day. Was told I was injuring my health.

REPLY.

If you mean you are eating nothing except a quart of milk and some orange juice daily you will injure your health, or at least the state of your nutrition, if you kept it up long. My guess is you have already gone back to meat and potatoes.

FOOD LATE AT NIGHT.

H. G. writes:

1. Is there any danger in eating chop suey late at night?

2. Is there anything in it that could not be digested properly?

REPLY.

1. No more than there is in eating any substantial food at that hour.

2. It is on a par with other substantial foods.

Wives of Tomorrow

"Down With the Women."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I have a peculiar question to ask you, but nevertheless I mean it. Are there any good women left in this world? If so, where are they? I can't find them.

Was married once and after a year of deception I discovered she had no principles whatsoever. Consequently, the undesirable ending. It was hard at first, but I got over it at last.

Six months ago I met another. We fell in love at once and got along splendidly. I gave her a square deal and I thought she was everything that was good. Friends of mine told me things but I ignored them and accepted her as I found her. She was treated in my home as one of the family.

All of a sudden, out of a clear sky, and for no reason whatever, she proved to me all the things my friends told me. Are all women such faithless liars, without any principles or right morals of living? Can't any of them be trusted? I always dreamed of having a woman like my mother. One that was good. But I don't believe there are any.

Why do women force the men who love them to lose faith in all womankind. It is all over my head. I can't understand it. "BUD."

Bud, the proportion of so-called "bad" women compared to "good" is about 1 to 100. If you found two women unprincipled or unmoral, you merely happened to be unduly unfortunate. I am certain your own common sense tells you that the majority of women are not only good but unswervingly conscientious where their husbands and homes are concerned. If you could read the hundreds of letters that pour into this column from girls wanting to know how they can help their husbands, how they can lift some of the burden from the man they love, how they can stretch the small income so that he need not worry so, how they can hold his love. Most women are too good. Most of them are too unselfish, too hard-working, too wrapt-up in the man who grunts a good-by in the morning and spends his evenings playing cards with the gang.

Perhaps you may have run into 200 men's share of mean women. But if you did, it is dollars to doughnuts you went to the wrong market looking for your wives, or proved to be one of the husbands who grunt good-bys. Men still expect women, and especially their wives, to prove angels under whatever provocation. And the provocation the average husband can devise through jealous tantrums, brute indifference, lack of ambition, dumb devotion to toil, or any of the thousand other vagaries would justify almost any deviation from the angelic.

Women are people. They have resentments, requirements, reservation the average husband can deify. They are not definitely accounted for through marriage, nor definitely disposed of through wifehood. They are still people. They marry hoping for something they call happiness. They do what they conceive to be their share toward inducing happiness. If they are grunted at, thwarted, ridiculed, or worse yet, ignored, they react as human beings. The nature of their reaction depends upon their temperament. But the man concerned will unfailingly brand the reaction, whatever its manifestation, as unprincipled evil and malicious.

Bud, pick your wives from among women of principle, and treat them as women of principle demand to be treated and you will have a better and less morbid view of life. Women are people, not angels.

HONEY ICING.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

1 cup of granulated sugar
¼ of a cup of water
¼ cup of honey
1 egg white.

Boil together the sugar and the water for a few moments and then add the honey, taking precautions to prevent the mixture from boiling over, as it is likely to do. Cook until drops of the sirup keep their form when poured into cold water, or about 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Beat the white of the egg until stiff, and when the sirup has cooled slightly pour over the egg, beating the mixture continuously until it will hold its shape. This frosting is suitable for use between layers of cake, but it is rather too soft for the top. It remains in good condition and soft enough to be spread for many weeks and therefore can be made in large quantities for use as needed. After eight months such icing made in this laboratory was found to be in good condition and soft enough to cut.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.
Ten O'Clock Scholar.

There is no recipe for meeting even so apparently simple a problem as that of tardiness at school. Punishments and penalties may help, and then again they may not.

Certainly training for punctuality is the responsibility of the parent.

The habit training of the years before school days began, the morning routine of the household, the sense of responsibility which mother has succeeded in developing—these have much to do with the 8 or 9-year-old's ability to get himself off to school on time in the morning.

One 9-year-old may learn punctuality through being permitted to suffer a few times the consequences of his tardiness. Another child of the same age would be shamed by such an experience and yet remain unable to organize himself in such a way as to profit by it in the future.

For it is far more difficult for some children to cope with practical situations than for others. The dreamer, the introvert, forgets the passage of moments. He wakes up only to discover that he is going to be late again. Such a youngster needs help.

Let him have his own alarm clock to wake him early. Teach him to put his books and clothes, everything that he will need in the morning, in readiness on a particular chair at night before going to bed. Allow plenty of time for dressing and eating.

In the case of persistent tardiness after every reasonable help has been given it is often worth while to see whether lateness is not an unconscious response to some unpleasant situation at school. It may be an indication of reluctance to go at all because of trouble with lessons or difficulties with classmates.

In such instances it is necessary to meet the underlying problems before the tardy one can be brought to time.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

I HAVE a few lupines, first-year plants, which until very recently have looked healthy. Now the leaves seem to be drooping and they are in most cases curled. In case they live until fall, will they require winter protection, living in the interior of the State we have cold winters? MRS. G. S. F.

Lupines as a rule do well in any soil in which there is an absence of lime. The roots of these plants are large and long and readily exhaust the soil of its food properties, therefore it is necessary to use a large quantity of stable manure each year. They do best in moist situations. When this is not possible the plants should be watered every day. Crowded plants are prone to mildew. Your plants are either suffering from lack of water or blight. Better spray them with Bordeau mixture. You will likely have to repeat the spraying each week until frost. A mulch of well-rotted manure will be all the protection they will require.

I have several good aspidistra plants, with new shoots coming, but some of the larger and older leaves are turning yellow. Would separating them improve the plants and correct this condition and should it be done now? J. H. G.

They are likely suffering from lack of root room. Better transplant and separate the roots in September. Use a soil composed of good garden loam, sand and manure equal parts.

When would you advise me to divide a large clump of hemerocallis? This has been a rather hard season on lilies. Mine have not bloomed as long as they usually do. This, I feel sure, is due to their crowded condition. WILLIAM A. W.

Day lilies should be divided every two years. Do the work in August or September. Do not allow the bulbs to remain out of the soil any longer than is absolutely necessary.

When a lawn is entirely covered with weeds what do you suggest? I can not attempt to remove the weeds Also is it possible to transplant a clematis vine that is five years old? MRS. C. A. S.

Better plow the lawn, fertilize and sow grass seed this fall. It will be quite possible, if you cut it back to transplant so old a clematis vine.

What causes the leaves of my geraniums to turn yellow about the edges, I have them in large pots and they have some light? F. S.

When geranium leaves turn yellow it is usually due to too much water, too much root room or too little sun or fresh air. Geraniums, to do well, must be kept in constant sun and be kept on the dry side. They also flower better when a trifle pot-bound.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed blossoms and leaves. MRS. H. S.

California privet, a hardy shrub.

I have what is called an umbrella plant. The roots are protruding through opening in the bottom of the pot. Is this any indication that the plant needs repotting? Please tell me the botanical name of this plant. Can I slip an ivy successfully in water or soil? A READER.

Your umbrella plant (cyperus alternifolius) should be transplanted at this time. This plant is a near-aquatic, therefore should have water in abundance at all times. An ivy can be propagated by rooting the cutting in either soil or water.

IT WAS LOCKED - - By JOHN HAWKS

READ THIS FIRST:

Robin Smith, a young and rising but extremely sensitive poet, is invited to make one of a country house party. He accepts because Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present; but he is so worked upon by the contrast between his youth, poverty and awkwardness, and the polished, blase manners of the other guests, that after quarreling with the Earl of Winston, Gwendolen's brother, and Donald Flint, her fiancé, he locks the door of his bedroom and flees through the window back to his own room. When Robin does not reappear the house guests start a search for him. The Earl of Winston is also missing. The guests burst open the door to the poet's bedroom. They discover a body.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER 9.

Bruce Armstrong, who was first into the little room, turned to Sir George Cole, who was directly behind him.

"Get the women away, if you can," he said. "I'll attend to this."

He held up his candle so that the faint, flickering ray fell full on the prone figure on the floor.

"Why, it isn't the poet!" exclaimed Lady Dorothy, in a shrill voice. She had pushed her way to the side of Mr. Armstrong. "He wasn't wearing evening dress."

With a gesture of command, Armstrong thrust his candle into his hostess' hand and signaled Sir George to throw the rays from his on the fatal spot. Then he gently turned the figure until it was lying on its back and free from the concealment of the bed valances.

"Edward . . ." breathed Lady Dorothy, scarcely audibly.

It was, indeed, Lord Winston, or rather what was left of his earthly self. The eyes were wide and staring; a curious twisted smile, scornful even in death, lay about the still mouth. The monocle lay against the white waistcoat. And on that same white waistcoat and no less white shirt was a thick and smeary red substance.

And from the left side, just where the heart should be, protruded the curious filigreed handle of what seemed to be a medieval knife. It was evident at once that it was this knife which had caused the young earl's death.

The guests crowded silently around; they seemed too shocked for speech. In dismay they stared at the figure at their feet which so recently had been aflame with life. Muriel Haddon shuddered and drew away as Prince Pozolevsky pressed closer to her. She had loved Lord Winston; she still loved him. She knew it certainly in that moment. Once she had even hoped that the fates might be kind and let Edward care for her. But now he was dead, snuffed out like a candle in a whiff of air. It frightened her. Death was so sudden and fleet; it made life feel so uncertain and frail. Through the tears that were slowly stealing down her cheeks, she stole a glance up at her companion. The prince was pale by nature, but the pallor which now held him in its grip was a different, more terrible sort. He might have been dead, too, but for the burning intensity of his eyes, which rested on the dead man with an expression of triumph difficult to understand.

Meanwhile Lady Gwendolen had quickly recovered from her faint caused by the revelation of that first bright flash of lightning. She struggled to her feet and, leaning on her fiance's arm, pressed into the group. When she reached Bruce Armstrong, he interposed his huge bulk between her and the object of all eyes.

"I must see," she begged, pitifully. "Oh, let me see, let me see, please."

"It can do no good, my dear Lady Gwendolen," Armstrong said gently, as he put a restraining hand on her arm. "We must all but one leave here. We can do no good."

"I know he is dead. But I want to see him just once more," she begged, pushing to get past him.

There was a tense silence. No one stirred. Lady Gwendolen stood, her eyes riveted on her dead brother, and made neither movement nor sound. Her grief was too great for weeping. Tears would not relieve her, nor would they console her. She was beyond consolation. Dry-eyed, she stared and stared, as if hypnotized.

Then, quite unexpectedly, the gleam of the metal on his left breast caught her eye; she was on her knees beside him in an instant. Her slender, unflocked fingers touched the heavily embossed handle as if it were a friend. Then she turned her head to the many faces staring down at her; her eyes were wide and thoughtful. There was a puzzled frown between her brows.

"That is Edward's knife," she said, softly. "I have seen it often at home, years ago. I didn't know he had it here."

"Your brother's knife! But that isn't possible!" exclaimed Lady Dorothy. "You don't think he killed himself?"

"No." Lady Gwendolen rose unsteadily to her feet. "No, I am sure he did not," she went on, wearily. "We must send for the police at once."

"Just what I intended doing," assented Bruce Armstrong.

By this time four servants had gathered in the hall, attracted by the mystery and excitement. The explorer looked over the little knot of people. He was wondering whom he could trust, when Lady Andree exclaimed in a shrill, uncontrolled voice:

"But where is Mr. Smith? Where is he? The door was locked. . . . I don't understand. . . ."

It was as if they had all forgotten the poet until that moment.

"Yes, where is he?" exclaimed her husband, in turn. "And how did his door come to be locked? . . ."

"His bag is gone!" It was Lady Dorothy who spoke. "I ordered it brought here." She looked wildly about the room, which was now more completely lighted with the assistance of the two lamps it contained.

The stand was empty.

For the first time the guests became aware of the possible significance of the open window. Armstrong strode to it and leaned far out, his candle held before him. It had stopped raining, but a whiff of wind almost immediately extinguished the tiny flame. But not before he had seen two deep footprints in the soft earth below.

"Mr. Smith evidently took his leave by the window," he said, as he turned again into the room. "He has left conspicuous footprints below." He pointed his thumb in the direction of the open casement.

"Gaspard has gone to phone for Dr. Middlebury and the police," Lady Dorothy whispered to the explorer as he joined her. "You stay here, and I'll get the rest back into the music room. Lady Gwendolen looks as if she might collapse any minute."

"That will be best, I think," the explorer spoke in a carefully controlled voice. "Gaspard, I presume, is the butler. He can be trusted."

"Absolutely. You aren't afraid?"

"To remain here?" Armstrong chuckled suddenly, a weird sound to break in on the eerie silence of that moment. "Hardly. Death is as familiar to me as life."

It took all the control Lady Dorothy had built up through the long years of social intercourse to prevent her from screaming. It was all so unbelievable, so unreal. She had no great affection for Lord Winston, though she loved his young sister dearly. She would have regretted his death for Lady Gwendolen's sake at any time, but that he should die here in her home and not a natural death, either, but be murdered, like a common adventurer, was more than she could bear. It appeared to her to imply some horrible reflection on her.

With poise she managed to get the guests all back to the music room. They sat around, grouped in couples, silently staring in front of them as if at an apparition.

Lady Gwendolen sat all crumpled up in her chair, looking more dead than alive. She looked before her out of half-closed eyes with a dull, glassy stare, as if she saw nothing and heard nothing. And only at long intervals, as if somewhere within the depths realizing the tragedy, she gave vent to long poignant sighs, uttered faintly, which sounded startlingly like sobs.

The guests, in face of this suffering, looked from one to another frightened and helpless, until Muriel Haddon, forcing herself to act, rose from her seat and walking over to Lady Dorothy, whispered in her ear.

"I think I had better take Lady Gwendolen to her room. And someone had better stay with the poor child, I think. I'll stay there the night, if you like!"

"Please . . ." was all Lady Dorothy could find strength to say, while her tired eyes expressed unutterable gratitude.

More Lynx, Less Fox Trims Winter Coats

Its creamy tint blends effectively with dark green and rich browns, both important winter colors.

In the main Paris uses more short furs than long ones, preferring the curled lamb and astrakan, but also making much display of galliac, broadtail and the short pile furs, like seal and beaver.

Short Sleeved Wraps Indicate Long Gloves

Even the long fur wraps which dressmakers show for evening frequently have open sleeves or half-sleeves, which indicate gloves capable of warmth as well as decoration.

Short Fur Jacket Chic For Sport.

JOBLESS AID GROUP IS VOTED IN ILLINOIS

STATE'S EFFORTS CITED

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A group of business, labor and social leaders, summoned to an unemployment conference by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, today voted for the appointment by the governor of a commission to work on plans to alleviate unemployment conditions in Illinois. The governor said the commission would be put to work as soon as its members could be appointed.

"Winter is approaching with its added hardships for the poor, and we may reasonably expect that the usual seasonal unemployment of certain trades will be added to those already out of work," Gov. Emmerson told the conference.

"I do not want to paint the picture darker than it is, but I think it would be a mistake to close our eyes to actual conditions. There are evidences of improvement and it may well be that, with returning confidence, industry will quickly resume its normal activities. I sincerely hope this may be the case, but in the meantime, whatever we can do toward relieving unemployment will be beneficial in restoring prosperity.

Ten Per Cent Held Jobless.

"Some estimates place the number of unemployed in Chicago at 10 per cent of all workers in the city. Demands for help from those who can not secure the bare necessities of life are more than double the normal number, according to reports of charitable institutions."

The State of Illinois, the governor said, has done its "utmost" to better conditions. He said that the State's expenditures for road construction, including projects completed and those under contract, would total more than $50,000,000. Road contracts alone he estimated at $37,000,000 of this sum.

"All of these contracts were awarded this year and the major portion of the work will be completed by the end of the present construction season. Institutional building contracts total almost $14,000,000.

Others Given Example.

"The example set by the State government in spending available funds for construction work now when it is so badly needed is one that may well be followed by local governmental bodies and large industries.

"More than this is needed, however, in the present emergency. It is for the conference to suggest the best means of connecting the unemployed with available jobs, of distributing the work in such a way as to keep men from actual want and of providing particularly for heads of families who are in need.

The governor said that while he believed the present industrial conditions were the backwash of depression and financial insecurity in European nations, "they are to a considerable extent due to a state of mind on the part of the public."

MOROCCO AIR CRASH FATAL TO U. S. PAIR

SHIP TURNS SOMERSAULT

Tangiers, Morocco, Oct. 13 (A.P.). Ternille Dix, of Orange, N. J., a writer, and Mrs. Dix, a painter, were killed near Larache yesterday morning as the plane in which they were passengers turned a somersault in landing. The pilot, M. Laguerrie, and another Frenchman, M. Benazet, also were killed.

A fog, compelling the ship to make a forced landing, was the cause of the accident. When the plane was set down it struck an obstacle and overturned. The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Dix were sent to Tangiers.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Ternille Dix, reported killed in an airplane crash near Larache, Morocco, was the son of William Frederick Dix, a vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., whose home is at East Orange, N. J. Three months ago an American house published the young man's first book, "The Black Baron," a biography of Gilles de Rais, the medieval "Bluebeard."

Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ternille Dix, killed in an airplane accident yesterday near Larache, Morocco, formerly was Miss Monica Goebel, Cincinnati, daughter of the late Representative Herman P. Goebel.

LUTHERAN CHURCH WILL AID JOBLESS

HOOVER'S ACTS LAUDED

Milwaukee, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The United Lutheran Church inner missionary board today recommended that every Lutheran congregation appoint a committee on employment to assist church members in obtaining work and cooperate with other local agencies for unemployment relief. The report was made to biennial convention of the church.

Present unemployment, "with its long train of soul-harrowing hardships and bitterness that may lead to lawlessness, the more serious because it is world-wide and threatens a world crisis under radical leadership, requires more than welfare work," said the report. 'This leaves the souls of men untouched. It needs more than preaching, for this leaves unsatisfied the pangs of hunger. The world today needs the combination of both.'

The board offered and saw adopted two resolutions, commending President Hoover for his conferences of industrialists and State government heads, and urging appointment of individual church employment committees.

Because it entailed an appropriation of $8,000, the convention refused the church architecture committee's recommendation of a permanent Lutheran architectural bureau, the first church organization of its kind. The bureau would have aided in planning churches for beauty, utility and economy. The report of Charles A. Scheuringer, Philadelphia architect and member of the committee, was rejected after the home missions board, whose churches would have been the board's greatest object, held that the $8,000 spent on the bureau might be about all it would save on church buildings.

'Silver Threads' Is Shown Rehashed

Shiocton, Wis., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The sad love-ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which has wrung the hearts of more than one generation, was not the inspiration of an aging poet, but a "re-hash" produced on order.

The story developed after unveiling of a monument here in honor of the author of the words, Eben E. Rexford, who died in 1916.

Rexford made a living writing verse and flower and garden articles for magazines. When he was 18 he wrote and sold some verses entitled, "Growing Old," for $3. Later H. P. Danks, composer of the music for "Silver Threads," wrote to him requesting words for a song. Rexford dug into his scrapbook, revised "Growing Old."

COX LAYS DECLINE AT DOOR OF HOOVER

Radio Speaker Says Present "Depression Could Have Been Avoided."

TARIFF IS ALSO BLAMED

(Associated Press.)

James M. Cox, Democratic presidential nominee in 1920, said in a radio address last night that the world-wide business depression started in the United States "and the dreadful thing about it is that it could have been avoided."

Speaking over the National Broadcasting chain, Mr. Cox charged that the Hoover administration "encouraged the gambling hysteria" preceding the stock market "crash" and that it "then forced upon an unwilling people the tariff law which later accentuated the depression."

"We must not lose sight of the impressive fact," he asserted, "that our tariff changes were initiated when our country was living in unprecedented prosperity. When the President signed the now famous bill in the face of the most representative, far-spread and appealing memorials ever addressed to an executive, he gave furtherance to the ills born of his first failure to act in the face of an inevitable crash in our stock markets.

"What is the answer to all of this from Washington?" Mr. Cox continued. "The statement comes that business depression is everywhere; and that not only are the conditions of unemployment alike in all countries, but it all arises from a common cause—overproduction.

Shortage in Buying Power Cited.

"There is no overproduction in the sense that the President speaks of it. There is a shortage in the buying power. If the world were purchasing normally we would be manufacturing normally and we would buy if we were employed.

"We were the industrial giant of the earth, the great creditor Nation, and we were producing one-third of all the products of the globe and buying from other nations, thus establishing an economic balance that would have continued had we acted wisely.

"When giant America was prostrated she curtailed her purchases abroad. This occasioned unemployment there and further diminished the purchasing power. It is significant that this thing did not start anywhere except in America."

Discussing the stock market depression, Mr. Cox said the preceding "hysteria and the wild dreams of fortune were the direct consequences of administration propaganda."

Says Control Not Exercised.

"The Government had the power of restraint," he added, "but did not exercise it. The President and his advisers either lost their heads or they had become so indoctrinated with the theory that the stock tape is a certain index to our economic state, that they were, no doubt, no less shocked than the rest of the country when the disaster came."

Mr. Cox contended that if Alfred E. Smith had been elected president in 1928, instead of Mr. Hoover, "the first cause of our present mess would have been avoided."

"The Republican party," he continued, "has kept its eye so singly focussed upon the money power of the little circle which it has made it its business to serve that it has neglected the buying power of the vast masses which it is the proper business of American statesmanship to serve.

"Human Engineer" Needed.

"Two years ago we elected a President who was recommended as a great engineer. That he was and is a great engineer we do not doubt. But the great need now is not a mechanical, but a human engineer. America is rich in capacity to operate its machines. The trouble is in the lack of human engineering which fails to put these fine machines so fully at the service of mankind as to escape the absurd and almost criminal situation in which we now find ourselves, with millions of men and businesses suffering in a land of overplus.

Mr. Cox asserted that "we have had ten years of Government operation by and for the machine, and our humanity is in the ditch."

"We must turn about," he continued. "With a Democratic party rededicated to the humanity of Jefferson, purged of any increment of Hamiltonian privilege with which it may have become infected, we can face the ruin which wrong courses have brought, in the assurance of bringing ourselves back to the security and happiness of a well-distributed prosperity."

Havre, France, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The Cunard liner Tuscania arrived at Havre at 11:10 a. m. after having been delayed by a derangement of a propeller. She was due last night. There were about 50 passengers aboard. The ship left shortly for England.

Women Opposed To Jury Serving

The jury commissioners of the District yesterday defended the fact that there were no women on the grand jury and that only 5 out of 46 jurors qualified for the criminal courts were women.

The reason advanced by the commissioners was that a number of women had asked to be excused. Justice Peyton Gordon, who picked the new juries, also declared that he was surprised by the number of women who had been called who had asked that they be excused this time and excused for all time in the future.

Mrs. Lillian Lineberger, District chairman of the National Woman's Party, started the controversy in a letter addressed to the jury commissioners in which she raised the issue. It also was pointed out to Mrs. Lillian Pritchard, a member of the jury commission, that recently an entire jury in criminal court was composed of women.

BOB SAFE, IS BELIEF; EARLY RETURN SEEN

WANTED FOR STOCK QUIZ

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—What some business associates and authorities have regarded as the disappearance of Charles V. Bob, capitalist and flying enthusiast, missing since last Wednesday, was termed today by relatives a retirement to avert a nervous breakdown. They said he was resting in seclusion in Chicago.

His expected return in a few days was announced by his attorney, Ferdinand Pecora. Pecora's statement allayed fears that Bob might have been injured in a plane accident or held for ransom by Chicago gangsters.

Bob flew to Chicago last week in his private monoplane, saying he intended to fly back the next day. On Wednesday he telephoned his family he would return by train, but so far as can be learned, he did not do so.

Assistant Attorney General Washburn said his office wants to question Bob concerning his operations in the shares of Rainbow Luminous Products Co. and Meyals and Mining Shares, Inc. These stocks fluctuated unevenly on the market prior to the suspension from trading on October 3 of the New York Curb Exchange house of Piperno & Co., traders in the stocks.

R. R. Machlett, president of Rainbow Luminous Products, announced a directors' meeting for tomorrow and said a statement probably would be issued then.

The document presumably will be turned over to Lieut. Woodring, one of the Army's most skillful pilots. Lieut. Caldwell evidently is being sent along in case anything should happen to Lieut. Woodring's plane.

The instrument of ratification will be delivered by the Japanese consul general to the American consul general at Vancouver, Ely T. Palmer, and the latter will turn it over to Lieut. Woodring.

Reaching New York, the Army flier will turn the document over to Peirre de L. Boal, assistant chief of the Division of Western European Affairs, who is sailing for London on the Leviathan at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. In London, Mr. Boal will deliver the instrument to Ambassador Matsudaira.

The United States ratified the treaty on July 22, and the instrument was taken to London shortly thereafter by J. Theodore Marriner, chief of the Division of Western European Affairs.

Planes in Alaska Cut Days Off Trips

Fairbanks, Alaska, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The airplane has become a vital factor in the life of northern Alaska, because it is the only means of getting from one town to another the same week a start is made.

By dog sled, the fastest competitor of the plane during a northern winter, it takes four to six weeks to go from Nome to Fairbanks, the head of the railway, which leads "outside." From Point Barrow, northern tip of Alaska, which is frozen in most of the year, to Fairbanks is an all-winter mush over a hazardous trail. Either trip can be made in six hours by air. The plane is the ambulance, the treasure ship, the produce train, the newsboy, the Pullman of the north, all rolled into one.

Advertisers discover PLUS-VALUE of Vita-Minutes!

DURING the fresh Vita-Minutes of the morning . . . before the demands of the day have tired the mind . . . the advertising news of The Post makes clear impressions that last from morning till night.

Leaf over your business memoranda book to any busy day. The page will usually read something like this: 9:00 A. M. . . . Call meeting of department heads. 10:00 A. M. . . . Consider Mr. Carlson for new position. 10:30 A. M. . . . See New York Jobber's display.

You've set every one of these important business appointments for some hour in the morning!

Why? Because in the morning your mind is rested. It is keen, clear, alert. Impressions flash across your brain vividly—and stay there. You make decisions accurately—quickly—, during these morning minutes . . . minutes so vital in the day's work that they have been named Vita-Minutes.

It is during the Vita-Minutes that vivid impressions are also made in the minds of shoppers! They glance over the morning papers. They read the advertisements. They jot down the name of a store . . . an article. Later in the day they keep these business appointments with the merchants whose advertising message flashed a decision into their minds.

Wise advertisers have learned that The Washington Post reaches the homes of Washington in the early morning . . . during the Vita-Minutes . . . when the purchases of the day are decided on and planned for . . . when it is early enough for Vita-Minute reading to result in same-day sales.

But that's not all! They've also discovered a Plus-Value in Post advertising. For The Post not only reaches Washington families at a time when memos are being made and purchases planned. It reaches the right kind of Washington families. The families who go down town to buy, not merely to "look around". The families who decide whether a merchant's business shall be written in red figures or black.

The delivery trucks which stop at Washington doors today bring purchases planned during the Vita-Minutes of a day or two before.

Thus, Post advertisements gain a prestige which finds instant favor and preference with the thousands of women who eagerly scan its pages for shopping news every morning. If your message is not among The Post pages . . . you are losing this important double advertising advantage!

THE CAPITAL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

BANKERS ARE TOLD OF BUSINESS GAINS

FOREIGN DEALS INCREASE

New Orleans, La., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The Investment Bankers Association of America, in convention here today, heard Trowbridge Callaway, its president, of New York, predict better business conditions. The convention is to last through Wednesday.

The president's address, reports of foreign securities legislation and other important research committees and afternoon executive sessions comprised the first day's activities.

An attitude of business confidence and optimism was voiced by President Callaway soon after the convention opened and continued through all the day's sessions. While reports of committees on important phases of investment banking were frank and exhaustive, none had a pessimistic tone and one, the report on foreign securities, recorded a sharp increase in trading of foreign obligations for the past six months of 1930 as compared with the entire year 1929.

President Callaway assured the investment bankers that business needed no artificial respiration and that the wealth-producing power of the country had not been hurt essentially.

"The orgy of speculation which clouded the country's vision has passed," he said. "The equipment and management of American industry has never been more efficient. Commodity prices have declined drastically, it is true, but we are now apparently nearing the final stage of that readjustment."

Among special committee reports, the statement of the foreign securities committee drew marked interest. This report called the convention's attention to the fact that while foreign securities trade dropped from $1,426,000,000 in 1928 to $706,000,000 in 1929, it had risen in the first six months of 1930 to $804,000,000, or almost $100,000,000 more than the entire year 1929.

The report attributed the slump in 1929 to abnormal conditions of the American money market and said that this country's future prosperity depended upon restoration of foreign credit conditions to the status of two or three years ago.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL.

MATCHING the censorial asininity of those who, in certain communities, leveled their political strictures against the innocent thrills of "The Big House," it seems to me, is the governmental pronouncement from certain countries across the sea that the showing of the Fox production of Ferenc Molnar's "Liliom," now on view at the Fox Theater in this city, will not be permitted by reason of the picture's failure to be as reverential as it should.

The particular charge, I believe, is that the scenes wherein the Great Magistrate—which is capitalized merely because it is the programmed name of the character in question and not an allusion to the Deity—hears the cases of those who have penetrated the shadow of death, and seek direction for future conduct, border upon, if they do not positively constitute, sacrilege. Sensitive as the next to the obnoxious effect of slighting references to sacred subjects, I still can not hold with the extravagant view that "Liliom" goes too far in this direction. I am unable to perceive that it even starts in the wrong direction.

The intermediary to whom Liliom presents himself after he has committed suicide is neither a caricature nor a deification. He is a character conceived entirely by Herr Molnar from no more authentic or substantial a source than the gossamer figments of his own imagination.

It is perhaps a peculiar coincidence, however, that H. B. Warner, who played The Christ in Cecil B. De Mille's production of "The Ten Commandments" should be cast in the role—which he removes from all suggestion of the sacrosanct by garbing it in a frock coat and wing collar!

Of more than passing interest to picturegoers, and who is not, will be the world premiere of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "A Lady's Morals," at the Columbia Theater on Saturday. "A Lady's Morals," evidently titled with an eye to what I am not sure isn't mistakenly deemed "box-office appeal," is based on the life of Jenny Lind, "the Swedish nightingale," and will serve as the medium of Grace Moore's debut upon the screen.

When Jenny Lind arrived in this country to appear under the personal auspices of Phineas T. Barnum, greatest of American "showmen," the New York demonstration in honor of her arrival was the most stupendous ovation ever accorded an individual up to that time. The compliment to the personality and the art of the visiting diva was repeated upon the occasion of her appearance in Washington. It is of record that as high as $693 was paid for a single ticket to hear her sing upon her first appearance in New York, with many tickets selling for $250 each.

These and other circumstances surrounding Jenny Lind's visit to the United States are, of course, incorporated in the action of the picture, which is based upon a story woven with deftness and dramatic interest by Hans Kraly, the perfect guest, in collaboration with Claudia West, and directed by Sidney Franklin.

Miss Moore, whose gorgeous voice has wafted her from musical comedy to grand opera, sings five songs during the progress of the story.

These important facts, I may hasten to add, have just been imparted to me by the Messrs. James P. Lundy and J. J. Gilmore, the latter an emissary delegated to the Capital for the express purpose of disseminating valuable information like this for the benefit of benighted motion picture editors. Aren't we all?

Mr. Lundy, you may be interested to know, is the officially denominated successor to the recently defected Sam Rubin as lyre-twanger and cymbal-crasher-in-chief of the Loew interests in the National Capital. Mr. Lundy is a young man of so many years who, once he removes his hat, is the twin of Art Whataman Shires, the shrinking violet who first bases on Mr. Clark Griffith's second string during the season.

Mr. Lundy comes to Washington from Toronto, but ahead of that has had an extensive experience as an advertising and publicity man, both when acting as a free lance and after have ben sold down the river. He has a wife and baby son, who will soon join him to make their permanent home in this city.

Hope you like it here, fella.

My friend the barber, in a burst of Sicilian temper, wreaked a savage revenge on the Warner Bros. last Sunday evening, so he tells me.

Presenting himself at the wicket of the Tivoli Theater with the members of his family accustomed to participate in his screen gazing, he was informed that the 4-year-old member of the party must have a ticket. Never before had this demand been made. But it was in the rules.

Determined not to be victimized in any such maner, he strode in righteous anger across the street and bought tickets for the entire party at the Savoy. Which was pretty tough on the Warner boys, since they own them both!

That is probably what ails my haircut.

In that paragraph back yonder about Grace Moore and "A Lady's Morals," by the way, it should have been mentioned that Reginald Denny is Miss Moore's leading man and Wallace Beery the P. T. Barnum.

Mr. Beery got out of "The Big House" just in time to make it.

Producers, as you may have noticed, are not slow to take advantage of the "first time" successes of players theretofore virtually unknown to the cinema. Following his sensational hit as the bewildered Baumer in "All Quiet on the Western Front," Lewis Ayres was quickly snatched by the Warner Bros. for the leading role in "The Doorway to Hell." Similarly, Una Merkel, who achieves one of the individual successes in support of Walter Huston in D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln," now at the National, was quickly cast as the star of "Eyes of the World," a new Universal production.

Both will soon be seen in the Capital, "The Doorway to Hell," at the Earle; "Eyes of the World," at the Rialto.

Who said they didn't want vaudeville?

She has some wealth acquired from her husband's flooring business, which two sons are carrying on, but one gets the impression that she will have to pay personally for most of her campaign. The Antisaloon League is supporting her, but the other dry organizations are working to prevent passage of a repeal referendum, by which Mrs. McCormick has said she would be guided.

Observers who have traveled out in the State say that it is impossible at this time to tell what the church people will do, whether they will follow the leadership of the Antisaloon League and vote for Mrs. O'Neill, or whether they will accept Mrs. McCormick and seek to prevent passage of the referendum. The campaign has not shaped up enough out in the State for one to be able to tell.

Indications are, incidentally, that Mrs. McCormick, after having come through the primary as a dry and then taken a position on the fence by saying she would be guided by the referendum, is now leaning back toward the dry side.

Mrs. McCormick Shifts.

That so-called repeal referendum is not clearly defined at all. There are three questions to be voted upon—repeal, modification of the Volstead act and repeal of the State search and seizure clause. The prospects are that it will be impossible to tell just which of the three voters had uppermost in mind. Most certainly will there be such a situation as to permit of controversy.

Even the drys admit privately that the referendum will pass. And if Mrs. McCormick were on definite record as saying she would be wet if the referendum so decreed there would be no question about Illinois' next senator being wet.

But Mrs. McCormick seems to be adding qualifications to her earlier statement. She personally will always be a dry, she says, but if the referendum decrees that she vote for resubmission of the eighteenth amendment, she will do so. She does not intend to vote for any measure that is in contravention of this amendment, she insists, and she refuses to commit herself on measures that would raise the permissible alcoholic content. A dyed-in-the-wool wet finds much that is unsatisfactory about her attitude.

J. Ham Lewis is wet. Not that he is promising anything lawless, either, but the difference is that he is wet at heart while Mrs. McCormick is dry, begrudingly promising to be a wet a little if forced to be.

$10,000 Check Is Discussed.

Political wiseacres here say that the Chicago Tribune support is behind Mrs. McCormick's referendum straddle. She had to go that far, it is said, to justify this wet journal's supporting her.

These wiseacres tell another story about the widow's resourcefulness, too, and it has to do with that $10,000 check of Col. R. R. McCormick's which bobbed up so conspicuously before the Nye committee. Mrs. McCormick explained that she didn't use it in her primary and was saving it for the election campaign. The wiseacres say that the widow resourcefully maneuvered that contribution into the public print so that Col. McCormick would have to throw the Tribune to her support in the election campaign.

The Daily News is also supporting the widow, but Mr. Hearst's Herald-Examiner has just come out for J. Ham.

MORROW REPEATS WET VIEWS, SAYS HE WILL SUPPORT HOOVER

dent Hoover as its head will be judged two years from now by the patience, the calmness, the sympathy and the courage with which it has carried on the Government during the period of adversity through which the American people are passing.

"Moreover, I have the right to say, especially in view of wholly unauthorized statements made during the primary campaign about my own position, that I look forward with pleasure and confidence to the opportunity of voting two years from now for the renomination and reelection of President Hoover."

Praises Labor Unions.

The most effective cure for hard times, Mr. Morrow said, rests with the people themselves, and every employer who maintains his plant and his organization is making a substantial contribution to the return of prosperity. He commended the labor unions for their efforts to maintain a healthful standard of living, to increase productivity and to avoid unnecessary strikes.

Through the history of the country, Mr. Morrow saw a gradual breakdown of bitterness between political parties.

"All parties," he said, "including the Republican party, have been wont to credit themselves with whatever good time happened during their term of power, without looking for the deeper reasons that underlie the ebb and flow of prosperity. Any party which takes credit for the rain must not be surprised if its opponents blame it for the drought. But no Republican need shrink from a discussion of commercial depression and the conduct of the Republican administration in regard to it."

The nominee was "inclined to agree," he said, with the position of the Democratic Party in New Jersey that national prohibition was not an issue in the senatorial campaign. He reiterated his position, he explained, in order that the voters of New Jersey might be under no misunderstanding as to his attitude.

"I subtract nothing from what I said in this hall five months ago. I am in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution therefor of an amendment which will restore to the States the power to determine their policy toward the liquor traffic and will give to the Federal Government full power to afford all possible cooperative assistance and protection to those States that desire prohibition against invasion from the States that do not.

"I do not believe the fundamental problem can be reached by an amendment of the Volstead act."

Experiment Is Failure.

Continuing almost word for word in the language of his first primary address, he said: "So long as the eighteenth amendment and the statutes thereunder are the law of the land, I favor generous appropriations for their enforcement. I favor, however, the use of such appropriations in the first place for that portion of enforcement which preeminently falls in the Federal field. * * *

"What I sought to do last spring, and what I seek to do now, is to urge in the discussion of this world-old problem of temperance a more temperate attitude on the part of those who differ in opinion.

"My own opinion is clear that there should be a further change in the Constitution. It will not come as a victory of the liquor interests; it will come when the moral leaders of this land realize that the present experiment is a failure."

FLOODS DO DAMAGE IN PARTS OF TEXAS

PANHANDLE BRIDGES OUT

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Swirling flood waters today caused anxiety in Texas where for the second time within a week live stock was drowned, transportation was halted, and citizens awoke to find homes and shops inundated.

Brady, a town of 5,000 population in McCulloch County, bore the brunt of the discomfort and damage of the flood waters when the Brady River again overflowed.

Fifteen business houses were flooded and the water came within 2 or 3 feet of last Monday's high mark, when $350,000 damage to stock of goods in 80 business houses was done and 200 persons were made homeless.

Citizens Build Levees.

Aroused from their slumber by an alarm sent down the stream from Eden, where a torrential rain sent the river on another rise, residents of Brady went from their beds before dawn to build improvised levees of cement and sand bags in an effort to ward off the second inundation in eight days.

After rising within 2 feet of the courthouse plaza, which was submerged last Monday, the waters began to recede. Scores of persons, however, had been forced to flee from their homes near the river—homes they had so recently cleaned—and again they had to carry furnishings and personal belongings to higher ground.

The South Concho River, at Christoval, in Tom Green County, left its banks, and 4 feet of water stood in the Santa Fe Railway Station. It was the biggest rise recorded there since 1906.

400 Sheep Drowned.

Four hundred head of sheep were drowned, trapped in the shipping pens. The river was 900 feet wide at its highest stage. The Concho waters washed out 300 feet of Santa Fe Railway track between Valera and Talpa.

The Canadian River, in the Panhandle, swept away two railroad trestles, one each for the Fort Worth & Denver and the Rock Island, tying up railroad traffic north and northwest of Amarillo. Several hundred feet of Rock Island track were washed away between Endee and Sanjon, and service was suspended between Amarillo and Liberal, Kans.

The Colorado River was up 18 feet at Ballinger, and Elm Creek was on a 15-foot rise. The streets of the town were flooded after 6.21 inches of rain fell within three hours.

SYNAGOGUE GROUP TO HEAR LIPSCHITZ

INVITATION TO PUBLIC

Inaugurating its seventh year of activity in the community, the Brotherhood of the Washington Hebrew Congregation will present Dr. Sigfried Lipschitz tomorrow night at the vestry rooms of the temple in a talk on "The Political and Economic Situation in Germany Today."

Dr. Lipschitz, an alumnus of the University of Berlin, represents approximately 300 German social democratic newspapers in the Capital. He was for two years head of the European press division of the Mexican government and has written several books on political and religious topics.

Because Dr. Lipschitz's address comes on the day when the German parliament convenes, any persons interested in his topic have been invited to attend by the brotherhood. The speaker may analyze the rise of "Hitlerism" in Germany and tell something of the growing power of Adolph Hitler.

Musical numbers and a buffet supper are the other features on the program. Officers of the brotherhood for this year are Norman C. Kal, president; Irving Deiner, vice president; Milton D. Korman, vice president; Harold Strauss, secretary, and Dr. Berman A. Baer, treasurer.

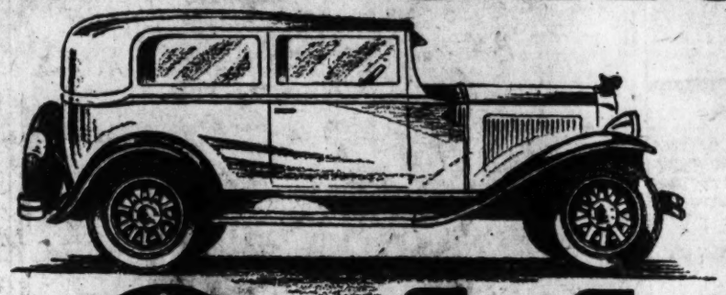
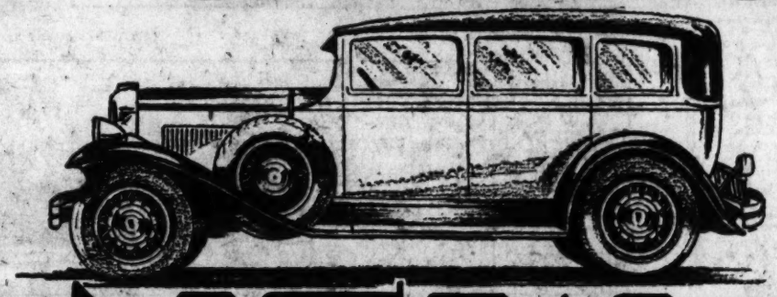
What Pontiac is to Oakland the NEW Orange AMERICAN GAS is to AMOCO-GAS





HEADING automobile manufacturers make cars in many price classes, some at lower prices for motorists with whom initial cost is the main object, and some at higher prices for motorists who demand larger, more luxurious models.

The American Oil Company, likewise, has products in two separate and distinct price classes. Orange American Gas is intended for motorists who want the best possible performance at no increase in price. Amoco-Gas, on the other hand, is produced for those motorists who demand luxurious performance and who figure that low cost per mile is what counts.

If initial price determines the gas you buy, get Orange American Gas. If low cost per mile is your yardstick, get Amoco-Gas. Whichever choice you make you are assured of dependable, efficient, all-year-round performance.

NOTRE DAME WILL TEST CARNEGIE TECH SATURDAY

Westbrook Pegler Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Next to the quaint idiosyncracy of Mr. George Getz, the millionaire prize fight commissioner of Chicago, who spends much effort, time and money collecting and supporting a private colony of baboons on an amateur basis, the most curious personal foible I have discovered in the sport business is that of Mr. Arthur Donnelly, of St. Louis. Mr. Donnelly is an umpire lover, and is, so far as my knowledge goes, the only man in the United States who deliberately and persistently cultivates the society of these not unhappy pariahs of the baseball industry.

From April until October, for more than 25 years, Mr. Donnelly has been host to the umpires of both major leagues as they stop in St. Louis, the National Leaguers for eight days at a stretch, the American Leaguer men in four-day tricks, on their travels around the circuit. Mr. Donnelly is an undertaker by trade, and perhaps there is something in the morbid taste that impels a man to this grisly calling which accounts for his unconventional choice of society.

But whatever the reason may be, the fact remains that Mr. Donnelly openly and candidly admires umpires and would rather sit down to pigs' knuckles and beer with a recruit umpire than with a roomful of star baseball players.

To Ball Players, He Is Only Polite.

I do believe he has shown some social civility to Babe Ruth and a few other active performers from time to time, but only incidentally, because he was taught to be polite. He follows the baseball season not by the schedules of the ball clubs but by the schedules of the umpires, knows when they are due to arrive, and sends his automobiles to the train to meet them. The car awaits them at their hotel every day at 1 to take them to the ball park and again at the gate when the game is over to bring them back.

Prodogious quantities of beer and knuckles disappear into the vastness of such hearty giants as Mr. Cy Rigler, Mr. Bill Dineen and Mr. George Moriarty, the poet, in the course of a six-month season, for there are always at least two in town and umpires are always in good appetite as to beer and knuckles.

Some People Like Even Castor Oil.

I often have inquired among the umpires why Mr. Donnelly happened to make this odd choice of society and what he expected to get out of it, assuming, of course, that no man would deliberately go in for umpires without some studied purpose. But such truthful men as Mr. Big Shot McGowan of the American League staff and Mr. Pants Rowland, who used to call them as his strabismic gaze perceived them in the same league, have assured me on their honor that Mr. Donnelly never has asked them for any favors; not even so much as a ball signed by the Babe, Mr. McGowan insists, and not even so much as a pass for a game, says Mr. Rowland.

"In a country of 100,000,000 people," Mr. Rowland explains, "you are bound to find all kinds of temperaments and tastes, so I do not think it strange that there should be one friend of the umpires in the land. We have Socialists, prohibitionists, and catkeepers. Now and again you hear of some one who doesn't dislike castor oil. Mr. Donnelly just happens to like umpires.

Tendency Developed Early in Life.

"This tendency developed early in his life, at a time when the only hotel that an umpire really felt at home in was the home for the friendless. The customers were unreasonable and ignorant in their attitude toward the umpires, and the players were frankly rude to them as a matter of habit. Very often the umpire, who worked alone in the early days of baseball civilization, had to fight his way to and from work, and Mr. Donnelly, I understand, was first attracted to the umpires because he sensed a chance to enjoy some fighting that really was fighting.

"He would see an umpire leaving the gate, fighting an enraged citizenry, and he would step up very politely and inquire: 'Pardon me, but would you mind sharing your fight with me, as I have nobody to fight with?' Umpires, as a class, are very generous, so they would invariably invite him to participate with them in the fighting. Then the umpire and the undertaker would fight their way to the hotel, and many delightful fights were had in this manner.

Downright Liberal Of Umpires.

"Thus it was that Mr. Donnelly came to cherish the umpires. They always were willing to declare him in on their fights, and he, out of gratitude, used to invite them to his home to wash up and have their clothes mended, amid beer and knuckles."

This was downright liberal of the umpires, because the boys were rather jealous of their fights and did not share them with everybody. Mr. Rowland, of course, came along later, about 1919, and the fighting was poor by that time, a circumstance which made him restless, because he

Mrs. Hill's 79 Tops Women Golfers

Helen Hicks Second; Scores of 91 and Better Qualify.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—While the galleries followed the defending title holder and other stars, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, not spectacular but decidedly steady, slipped in today to post a fine 79, two under par, and capture medal honors in the qualifying round of the 1930 women's national amateur golf championship.

The golfing lady from Missouri, who took up the game six years ago because of ill health, gave a practical demonstration that average length shots straight down the middle surpass hard wallops that wander into the rough. She went out in 40, one over par, but lopped three strokes off standing figures with a 39 for the inward stretch.

That bit of subpar golf was good enough to show the way to Miss Glenna Collett, New York City, seeking her third successive title and fifth all-time crown, and others whose names are considerably better known in the annals of the royal and ancient game.

Miss Hicks Scores Even Eighty.

One stroke behind the leader came Helen Hicks, the 19-year-old miss from Inwood, Long Island, N. Y. Miss Hicks, runner-up in the women's Canadian championship this year, also toured the course with an unfaltering game. She was out in 40 and carded the same score on the homeward stretch.

Tied for third place with par 81s were Miss Collett, tournament favorite, and Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, and Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J.

An 82 placed Mrs. Leona Pressler, San Gabriel, runner-up last year, well up among the leaders. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, of Philadelphia, real veteran of the field, qualified easily with an 85. The same score assured Miss Marion Hollins, of Santa Cruz, a place in the championship flight. Three times former champion, Mrs. Hurd, then Dorothy Campbell, won her first title in 1909. Miss Hollins wore the crown in 1921.

Mrs. Stetson Fails To Qualify.

The well-trapped north course, with its slick greens, shattered the comeback aspirations of one former champion, Mrs. Helen B. Stetson, of Philadelphia. Winner in 1926, she chalked up a 44—40—93 today to fail to qualify by two strokes.

Mrs. Hill is by no means of the "unknowns" of golf, but her step into the ranks of the medalists of major tourneys such as this was not expected. Last year she reached the semifinals of the national, only to lose to Miss Collett 3 and 2. She also won the Western women's title in 1929.

Bartos Defeats Eagles With Drop Kick in Final Period.

BOSTON, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—After fumbling away several hard-earned scoring chances, the powerful Fordham Football Rams got organized late in the final period and battered Boston College inside of the latter's 10-yard line to give Quarter Back Frank Bartos his chance to drop kick the New Yorkers into a 3 to 0 victory here today at Fenway Park.

These ancient Jesuit rivals had a torrid afternoon for their annual gridiron battle. Twenty-five thousand summer-clad spectators braved the unseasonable heat and saw the superior Fordham machine work hard enough to score five touchdowns. Four costly fumbles and an intercepted pass, however, held the Maroon scoreless until the fourth period.

Intercepted Pass Aids Fordham.

Fordham was outlucked during most of the game and one of the two breaks that came its way happened when Charley Pieculewicz, former South Boston High School star, intercepted an Eagle forward near midfield in the last quarter. Johnny Janis, reserve Fordham back, guilty of three fumbles, then redeemed himself somewhat in the critical eyes of Maj. Frank Cavanaugh, his coach, by ripping off tackle for 8 yards. Murphy made a first down on Boston College's 40-yard line on a plunge and Fordham gained 15 more valuable yards when the Eagles drew their second penalty for unnecessary roughness.

Janis then made a wide end sweep for 15 yards and smashed through tackles twice to place the ball in position for Bartos' successful field goal, which was almost blocked.

Tipton, Veteran Horse Breeder, Dies at 75

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Ed A. Tipton, for many years president and general manager of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association, died at his home here today.

Mr. Tipton, who was 75 years old, has been in ill health for several months, having suffered a nervous breakdown. He at one time represented the late Marcus Daly, Montana copper magnate, when the latter was interested in trotters. Tipton bought fine trotters for Daly.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Tipton leaves a son, Edward D. Tipton, of Boston, Mass., and a daughter, Mrs. T. S. Kenyon, of Summit, N. J.

Coeds Who Danced With Team Vaccinated

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Northwestern University coeds, who happily accepted dancing dates with the campus football heroes, paid the price today. All of them were vaccinated against smallpox which Hank Bruder, star Wildcat half back, brought into the gridiron camp.

Members of eleven sororities on the campus were vaccinated today after it was learned they had been "dating" with the exposed football heroes.

No little worried over the fact that Bruder played against Tulane October 4, Northwestern officials telephoned the Southern university athletic department to take precaution.

By JACK ESPEY.

FULLY aware of the test it faces, Georgetown yesterday began preparation for its clash with Western Maryland Saturday afternoon in Baltimore's spacious municipal stadium. Head Coach Tom Mills directed his charges through a two-hour drill in Griffith Stadium.

Hoping to go into this game at full strength, Mills has ordered only one scrimmage session, which will be held on Wednesday, and the work he has planned for the other days will be of a nature that shouldn't cause injuries.

Excepting Aurel Tremblay, right guard, the Hilltoppers showed no ill effects of the West Virginia Wesleyan game as they romped through signal practice. Tremblay suffered an ankle sprain which kept him idle. He is expected to be in shape to perform Saturday, however.

Western Maryland Seen Favorite.

Georgetown, from Mills and the players down to the freshest freshman rooter, if such there be, visualizes an ordeal in the forthcoming game. But it feels that it is capable of at least forcing Western Maryland to extend itself.

Such glowing reports of Western Maryland have been issued that it seems safe to say the Terror machine will be the favorite, although at short odds.

Western Maryland has defeated Baltimore University, 54 to 0, and St. John's of Annapolis, 18 to 0. The first game was obviously a runaway, but the second proved a hard struggle with a team that is much improved over the St. John's of 1929. However, there are some experts who claim that Harlow held his Terrors in check against St. John's and that he did so purposely with a view to keeping under cover his most effective plays. If this is true, then Georgetown must encounter something for which it is unable to make any particular preparation.

Georgetown Lacks Experience.

Georgetown undoubtedly is stronger than at the beginning of the season. The coaches admit that. But it is doubtful that Georgetown yet has gained experience that matches Western Maryland's. The Westminster eleven retains virtually the same array that defeated Georgetown last season and in addition has two or three talented sophomores.

De Mar Wins Annual Portchester Marathon

Portchester, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Clarence De Mar, veteran marathon runner now living in Keene, N. H., today won the sixth annual 26-mile jaunt from Columbus Circle, New York City, to Portchester. He raced the distance in 2 hours 46 minutes 13 seconds.

Rosenbloom to Defend Title Against Bain

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight champion, will defend his title in Madison Square Garden October 22 in a fifteen-round match with Abie Bain, of Newark, N. J., it was announced here today. The bout takes the place of a ten-round match between Justo Saurez and Kid Kaplan, lightweights, which has been shifted to the October 17 date at the Garden.

Two G. W. Freshmen Suffer Broken Ankles

Two members of the George Washington University Freshmen Football Team suffered broken ankles in the game with the Pitt yearlings last Saturday night and probably will be lost to their team for the rest of the season. They are "Ox" Nebel and "Babe" Fikes, end and guard, respectively.

Nebel, an erstwhile Tech High School gridironer of this city, has established himself as the best end of the Colonial Cubs, while Fikes' 204 pounds will be sorely missed at guard.

McCarthy Expected To Sign This Week

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—One day this week, possibly tomorrow, Joseph V. McCarthy is expected to visit the offices of the New York American League Baseball Club and sign a contract to manage the Yankees.

The Yankee offices today observed the Columbus Day holiday, but they will be open tomorrow and the rest of the week, so the former manager of the Cubs may send in his card and soon thereafter take a pen in hand to sign a contract.

Neither Jacob Ruppert, president, nor E. G. Barrow, secretary, has admitted that McCarthy will transfer his allegiance from the National to the American League, but every one else in baseball seems to have taken it for granted.

YALE'S GOAL ON KICK-OFF ILLEGAL

Officials and Georgia Captain Overlook Rule on Play.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Not that it makes any particular difference now, but in the cold, gray dawn of the morning after it has been discovered that one of the Yale touchdowns against Georgia Saturday was not in accord with the football statutes, made and provided in such cases.

The miscarriage of justice came at the beginning of the second half when Yale was leading Georgia by a score of 7 to 6 and then increased the count to 14 to 6.

Yale kicked off. The ball struck in the arms of Kelly, Georgia back, who ran a few steps to his own 20-yard line where he was hit hard by Capt. Vincent, of Yale. With the impact of the Yale tackle's body the ball bounded from the arms of Kelly straight into the hands of Barres, Yale end.

Officials Overlook Rule No. 6.

The officials evidently overlooked rule 6, governing the kick-off, for without a question the touchdown was allowed and the ball placed in position for the try for extra, which was quickly added by Sullivan's toe.

Rule 6 says:

"If the ball is recovered by a player of the receiving team before it is declared dead, he may run with it, pass it backward or kick it; if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

Walter R. Okeson, commissioner of the Eastern association for selection of football officials, was asked by the Associated Press for an opinion on the play. Commissioner Okeson replied:

"Rule 6 says that if the kicking team recovers the ball on a kick-off it is dead at the point of recovery and in a supplementary note it is stated that after a kick-off the ball is to be considered a kicked ball until declared dead; therefore, the kicking team may not run with the ball if recovered on a kick-off."

Capt. Maffett, of Georgia, made no protest to Referee W. T. Halloran so far as could be observed from the stands, so perhaps he, too, had forgotten the rule against running with a fumbled ball. Or he might have been more confident than his team's supporters that the Georgians would score two touchdowns later in the afternoon, the last and deciding one in the last two minutes of play.

ON EASTERN GRIDIRONS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Pennsylvania's football squad, tuning up today for Saturday's game with Wisconsin, was informed by Coach Lud Wray that the 40-to-6 victory over Virginia was nothing "to get worked up over."

Wray said he wasn't impressed with the work of the second team, which started the game, and that the varsity didn't show much until the third period.

"I like the shock troop idea," Wray said, "but the second eleven will have to be strengthened if we start it against Wisconsin. From what I hear the Badgers are strong."

Pitt Has Full Strength Available.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—For the first time in three weeks virtually the full strength of the University of Pittsburgh football squad was available as drill began today for the game with Syracuse at Syracuse Saturday. The only absent member was Cutri, reserve quarter back, who is suffering from a bad shoulder.

Donner With Varsity At Dartmouth.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Ward Donner, fourth string Dartmouth half back a week ago, was in the Green's varsity line-up today when Haed Coach Jackson Cannell started work for next Saturday's important game with Lou Little's Columbia Lions. Donner's work against Boston University earned the berth shared by the injured Clark and Fyigard, who will be out of the game indefinitely.

Harvard Players Get Holiday.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Though Harvard's first major game against the Army is but a few days away, Head Coach Arnold Horween gave his Crimson varsity squad a holiday today and the players attended the Fordham-Boston College game in Boston. Harvard came through the Springfield game without injury.

Six on Injured List At West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—With Harvard the next objective, Army's football team reported for light practice today with six first-string players still on the injured list and unable to participate. Suarez has about recovered from his hurts, but Bowman, Humber, Miller, Price, Hillsinger and Stecker all are on the sidelines.

Princeton Regulars Take Rest.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Princeton had the lightest practice of the season today as most of the Tigers who played against Brown were excused fro mpractice. Trix Bennett, who played on Saturday for the first time since the Chicago contest a year ago, was given a long drill in passing.

Lou Little Drives Columbia.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—With the important Dartmouth game just ahead, Coach Lou Little sent his Columbia football varsity through two and one-half hours of hard work today. A dummy scrimmage lasted for an hour and a half with the freshmen putting on Dartmouth plays. Then followed a half hour of scrimmage with the freshmen. Steve Grenda, out with an injured leg for a week, was back at his guard post.

Dobie Not Satisfied With Cornell.

Nats' Pitcher Suffers Severe Chest Injury in Auto Crash.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Alvin F. "General" Crowder, Washington pitcher last year, along with two companions were at the Strong Memorial Hospital last night, the result of an automobile accident early yesterday morning. Crowder sustained severe cuts, bruises and a chest injury.

Crowder was driving on the West Henrietta road about 10 miles south of Rochester near the Pine Tree Inn, where his machine was forced from the highway. It crashed into a tree. Deputy sheriffs reported that Crowder was forced to swerve sharply to the right to avoid colliding into a rear end of a machine that stopped suddenly in front of him. His car went up a small embankment and hit a tree. The crash showered Crowder and his two companions with broken glass.

Fred Livernash, 60, of 444 Webster avenue, division superintendent of the New York State Railways and Crowder's father-in-law, and Max Polanski, 27, of 46 Scheafer street, professional football player and Hobart College graduate, were with Crowder. Livernash had a dislocated shoulder, Polanski cuts and bruises.

Crowder was here visiting his father-in-law. He formerly pitched for Rochester in the International League under the Stallings' regime. He also played with the St. Louis Browns of the American League, and Birmingham of the Southern League.

N. Y. U. Game Hurdle for Georgia

Army Plays Harvard, Penn Engages Wisconsin.

Little Says Carnegie Made Best Showing in East.

By LOU LITTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Just a few more week-ends similar to the one just past and we'll know pretty much who's who in the hot quest for the so-called national intercollegiate football championship of 1930. Many teams that have hitched their wagons to this star have been eliminated from the running on account of a defeat or a tie game.

Here in the East, with but few exceptions, the games were sternly contested, the losing eleven admitting defeat only after 60 minutes of strenuous play. Yale's defeat was quite decisive, and showed Georgia to be a strong organization with plenty of ability. Georgia will meet her sore test, however, when she comes North to encounter New York University.

The Eastern team making the most impressive showing was probably Carnegie Tech. The majority of critics expected Carnegie to win, but not by such a score. Thirty-one points on a team like Georgia Tech is quite a bit of scoring. Next Saturday Carnegie Tech encounters Notre Dame, and the victor in this contest will come close to being recognized as the year's outstanding eleven.

Penn and Army To Be Tested.

Penn and West Point continued to display strength and definite possibilities, although their opponents didn't furnish a great amount of opposition. Next week they will both meet their first real test when Penn encounters Wisconsin and the Army travels to Cambridge to meet Harvard. Penn and the Cadets should, it is granted, do exceptionally well, since the material, superior to what it has been for years, is plentiful at both institutions.

New York University didn't appear to experience a great deal of trouble with Villanova. This doesn't imply that Villanova is weak, but simply that N. Y. U. has another great team. The New York eleven with its sophomore back field is coming ahead in leaps and bounds, and with the acquisition of a little more experience, it will be among the best. They are confronted, nevertheless, with three harsh encounters in Fordham, Georgia and Carnegie Tech.

Princeton Destined To Develop.

Princeton for the second time in a like number of years bowed to Brown. Under the circumstances, I believe Bill Roper should not be disgruntled, because Princeton's losing to the veteran Brown Eleven by only one touchdown indicates that it will very soon be a team to be reckoned with. Springfield stubbornly extended Harvard, but the Crimson without the support of several competent back field men exhibited a well-balanced attack and was able to score four times, defeating its opponent. This game, however, was just what Harvard needed to prepare her for her coming contest with the West Pointers.

Georgetown came through with a big rush in her Friday night game with West Virginia Wesleyan. It was not so much the winning of the game as the scoring of sixty-odd points. This, coupled with a well-timed coordinated offense is justifiably raising the hopes of the Hilltoppers. The game next Saturday with Western Maryland, however, will tell the story.

Dartmouth Gathers Power.

Dartmouth must have been quite upset because Bates extended them to win by a small score last week, and they exhibited their displeasure by severely defeating Boston University. There is, of course, a plentitude of power and ability up at Hanover, and it seems as though Dartmouth is moving forward in steam-roller fashion with a view to trampling upon Columbia, Harvard and Yale on successive week-ends.

Cornell, Colgate and Syracuse enjoyed the week-end at the expense

Abolition of Net Rankings Urged by German Women

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—An appeal to abolish the national ranking list was made today to the president of the German Tennis Association by Germany's twelve best women tennis players with the exception of the young star, Cecile Aussem.

Among the many reasons given for the request were charges that it is injurious to German tennis, deprives the players of pleasure in the sport, endangers comradeship and hampers development of skill.

It was also declared that it often happens that players, once they have won a match against one higher in the ranking list, won't play against them again and many matches have been canceled for fear of defeat.

The women asked the president of the association to support their request and help preserve their joy in tennis and concluded by declaring it would suffice to place the 15 or 20 best women tennis players alphabetically in one group but not numbered.

The practice of ranking leading tennis players has been followed for many years in the United States and other prominent tennis-playing countries.

BUDDY BAUER WINNER IN HANDICAP AT LAUREL

Bradley Star Victor by Length

Hot Toddy, Favorite, Pressed by Solace for Second.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Md., Oct. 13.—E. R. Bradley made a double winning when Buddy Bauer led home the field in the Columbus Handicap, the feature which brought a throng to the track. Hot Toddy, the hot favorite, lost by a length and only held the place by a nose from the Seagram Stable's Solace.

E. R. Bradley made a double winning when Buddy Bauer led home the field in the Columbus Handicap, the feature which brought a throng to the track on this holiday. Hot Toddy, the hot favorite, lost by a length and only held the place by a nose from the Seagram Stable's Solace. Folking was fourth in the field of five. The time was 1:45 1-5 for a mile and a sixteenth. The result was quite disappointing for the majority. Hot Toddy being backed with abandon, as if he could not lose, after his running mate, Sunvir, had been withdrawn, which was good enough Saturday to defeat Dr. Freeland. The others withdrawn were Full Dress and Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Capstone.

The mistakes made by Slate, who rode Hot Toddy, were glaring. He was off well, but lost ground at the first turn, then made a rush on the inside on the back stretch, getting almost up to Buddy Bauer and Folking, when he ran into a trap and from then on attempted to get through on the rail. The victory of Buddy Bauer made a double for S. Renick and it was his good ride in the feature that saved the Bradley horse. He balked Slate's attempt to steal the rail. Solace ran well all the way. The winner paid $10.10 S. Renick, who signed to E. R. Bradley for the meeting and rode two winners for his employer today, drew a suspension from the stewards for crossing the field with Black Tyrone.

Centerstone Takes Opener.

The Glen Riddle Farm's filly, Center Stone, by Tryster—Keystone, won the first race for 2-year-old maiden fillies by four lengths, Erickson up. The Middleburg Stable's Phantasime was second, the Audley Farm's Highland Belle third, and Greens was fourth. Highland Belle, backed from 15 to 1 to 6 with Garner up, led the field to the eighth pole and looked a winner, but weakened under the drive of Center Stone. The latter moved into an easy lead at the sixteenth and drew away as if much the best. Phantasime came strong in the stretch, just nipping Highland Belle for place money. The time was 1:14.

F. A. Clark's Stoney Lonesome, 5-year-old mare, proved best in the steeplechase, second race, winning by three lengths from the Eastland Farms' Ledgard, which was six lengths in front of J. E. Widener's 9-year-old Lorenzo, winner of many steeplechase contests. Racing Star lost its rider. Ten horses started. Califfe set the early pace. Then Joe Marshall went to the front with Racing Star third. Flower Rock was well up on the far field. Stoney Lonesome took the lead when Racing Star went out of it riderless. Lorenzo moved up fast rounding the stretch, but was tiring and Stoney Lonesome, Worall up, drew away in the stretch. The winner paid $9.00.

The star apprentice jockey, A. Adams, added to his victories when he rode the Audley Farms' Erin Queen in the third race, winning by half a length over the odds-on favorite, Mrs. J. M. Black's Toki, with Bejshak up. A length and a half back of these Negodale, an outsider, was third. The winner paid $9.70. Time for the 6 furlongs was 1:13 2-5. Toki broke in front, but Adams soon went into the lead and saving ground on the stretch turn, hugging the rail, had no trouble winning. Secrecy was scratched, leaving seven for the 6-furlong brush.

E. R. Bradley's Black Tyrone gave R. P. Whitney's Halcyon a lacing in the fourth race, the Genoa Purse for 2-year-olds, secondary feature here today. Sergt. Donaldson, from the Glen Riddle Stable, was third. These three were seven or eight lengths in front of the others of the field. There was quite a piling up of horses at the start and Workman, who rode Halcyon, the losing favorite, went to the stand, but no disqualification was made. Black Tyrone was soon in front and drew away. The time was 1:12 1-5. The winner paid $8.50.

The Brookmeade Stable's Raccoon outran his field all the way to win the sixth race by a length from the Genesee Stable's Storm, with Timon third, a nose behind Storm, and Make Haste fourth. Time was 1:46 2-5. The start was good, with Raccoon drawing away on the rail and Storm contender. Storm gave it up finally, and Timon challenged, but in the stretch Storm made another attempt, closing strongly. The winner paid $6.90.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ERIN QUEEN, $9.70, $3.20, $3.00; TOKI, $2.50, $2.40; NEGODALE, $5.80.

ERIN QUEEN, well handled and steadied in near pursuit of TOKI, wore the latter down steadily when put to a drive and was gradually moving clear at the end. TOKI, hustled along at her best clip from the start, continued gamely under a drive. NEGODALE was going gamely at the finish. RAUCONA was unable to menace the leaders. CALGARY KAY had no mishaps.

BLACK TYRONE BRIGHT SIGHT FOR BACKERS.

BLACK TYRONE went to the front with a rush cut across to inside, then drew away into an easy lead going to half-mile pole and was rated along under slight restraint remainder of journey. HALCYON, in a jam soon after the break, was forced to pull up, was hard ridden through home stretch, but was never able to recover the ground he lost. SERGEANT DONALDSON left the post full of run and showed in front for a few strides between calls.

BUDDY BAUER was whipped to the front in the run to the first turn and, after getting settled on his stride, was rated in front for the remainder of the trip. He held command of the situation at all stages, but was ridden out at the end. HOT TODDY attempted to go through on inside a couple of times, but was blocked. He outgamed SOLACE in final drive. Latter raced on outside of leader all the way and went a bit wide entering home stretch. FOLKING came again in last furlong.

RACCOON, avoiding interference going to the first turn, was enabled to save ground, stalled off stout contention from HASTE in the first six furlongs and held on well to outstay STORM. Latter, forced to work his way up on the outside, closed determinedly during the stretch run. TIMON hung after a bold bid entering the home stretch. MAKE HASTE was made excessive use of, being rushed, and he had nothing left for the final issue. STAR CREST went well.

School Fails To Attract Students

Tech Is Unimpressive in Appearances Thus Far.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE high school football series opens this week with some doubt in the minds of scholastic fans as to the eventual winner, but scant puzzlement as to the team which will finish last.

Let it be stated offhand that too many sob stories have been written about Business High School's football team. In the minds of the rising generation there has been thoroughly instilled the idea that Business is a synonym for all that is ineffective on the gridiron. This can not be readily denied, but the doleful situation that exists on the corner of Ninth and Rhode Island avenue should be attacked for once from a constructive angle.

There are only 248 boys attending classes at Business. Western has 850, Western 957, Central 1,289, and Tech 1,870.

Offers Hope.

Certainly nothing can be expected of Business until the structure at Thirteenth and Upshur streets, to be known as Roosevelt High, begins to take shape under the constructors' hands. The average youth in search of high schooling seeks space and beauty of design and attends the barren building which houses Business only if getting through a prescribed course quickly is the uppermost thought in mind. And this type of student finds little relaxation in being bruised and battered for the sake of the Orange and Blue.

One would think that when a team faces each year the dreary prospect of finishing deep in the nether regions that the realization would sap the will of the players. In this notion the Businessmen do not concur. It is not an exaggeration to say that in spirit at least Coach Woodworth's little squad leads the local high school league by an insurmountable margin.

The playing of Business' strong men, Johnson, Levy, Duryee and Kengla, should be noticed in a high school world where, if one team becomes winded a coach can unconcernedly send in another of almost equal power.

Placing of Players
Tech's Problem.

While Central was not too impressive against St. John's and Gonzaga, it is too soon in the season to count them out as not having as good a chance at 1929's top rung as Tech. Tech has certainly not been playing championship ball in their appearances this year.

In some respects Coach Hardell's moans are well grounded. In their three appearances this year the Manual Trainers have not only lost two of these and tied the other, but have shown marked weakness and no outstanding strengths except in kicking.

Hardell's chief worry is one of selection, a problem which will have to be solved this week. It is true that he does not known his first team and is far from pleased with the combinations he has tried to date. He has a world of material, at least 30 really good men, but the question is where to place them.

Pittsburgh Hockey Franchise to Philly

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Transfer of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club, of the National Hockey League to Philadelphia for this season because of a lack of a suitable place here, was announced today by James F. Callahan, president of the organization.

Pittsburgh retains its territorial rights and probably will be represented again next year when it is anticipated that the league will be increased from ten to twelve clubs, Callahan said.

In the meantime, it is understood, that officials here will push a campaign to secure a suitable housing place for the games.

MERCURYMEN DRILL.

The Mercury A. C. will practice tonight at Seventeenth and B streets northwest at 7:30. All members are urged to be present.

VIRGINIA NOT TO LACK IN ROOTERS

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 13.—Athletic holiday has been granted by President Edwin A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia, for next Saturday in order that the entire student body may see the football game between the Cavaliers and the V. M. I. Cadets in Lexington.

This is the Virginians' only appearance within the Old Dominion during October. There were two home games in September and three are scheduled for November. But October is a month of trips. On Saturday after next, October, 25, the Cavaliers play the University of Kentucky in Lexington, Ky.

By auto and by train most of Virginia's more than 2,400 students will cross the Blue Ridge this week-end. Some are planning to go through the air just to save time and keep out of traffic.

Cavaliers Down to

Out on Lambeth Field the Cavaliers have begun preparing for the invasion of Cadet territory. Today the workout was rather light, but things will be speeded up tomorrow and scrimmage will probably be in order for Wednesday.

The running and passing attack that gained seven first downs against Penn is being polished up for the Cadets. The Cavaliers made several thrusts toward the Quaker goal. Once they fumbled on the 2-yard line and once they rushed the ball across.

Ben Pinder, who scored the touchdown, and Henry Sackett and Doug Myers, the reserve backs who were with Herbert Bryant behind the line when the zero marker on Franklin Field was crossed, will all probably be given a chance to show what they can do against the Cadets next Saturday.

Hold On Beats Platers In Hawthorne Feature

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—An ordinary card composed of seven claiming events was offered the Columbus Day gathering at Hawthorne Track today. It proved a hard day for the favorites, one after the other going down to defeat, the winners in the first five numbers paying off in double figures. Notwithstanding the cloudy weather a big crowd was in attendance.

The Columbus Day Purse, a claiming affair for 3-year-olds and upward, over the mile and a sixteenth distance, furnished probably the best contest of the afternoon when Hold On, from J. Loew's string, was home first in a hard drive. General Jackson, a field horse from C. B. Irwin's string, was second, with Play Ball, from J. Marsch's stable, third. The time was 1:46 2-5, and Hold On paid off at $25.14 to $2. The race was worth $850 to the winning stable.

Always close up to the leaders, Hold On made her move entering the home stretch and went into a good lead, but was hard urged to hold her advantage, winning by a head. Jack Haskel improved his position after going a quarter, and gradually cut down the leaders, but just missed the winner and was second by a length over Play Ball.

BATH HIGH WINS.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 12 (Special).—Bath District High School, of Berkeley Springs, W. Va., ran roughshod over the gridiron outfit of Hedgesville (W. Va.) High School Saturday on the latter's field, winning by the overwhelming margin of 39 to 0. The visitors tallied shortly after the game got under way by pounding the Hedgesville line. Hedgesville never seriously threatened to tally.

perform up to expectations, in Dobie's opinion, and there will be plenty of work for the big Red Team before the Princeton game.

Brown Squad.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Ernest Hapgood, veteran guard, returned to Brown's football squad today and will play against Yale. Coach Tuss McLaughry gave all those who played against Princeton a holiday, but work will start again tomorrow.

Coach Kerr Pleased,
Colgate Rests.

Yale Team Lectured On Mistakes.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Yale's football team got a lecture today on all the mistakes it made in the Georgia game and then was set to work on the next assignment—Brown, conqueror of Princeton. After an hour's blackboard session the first team went through a signal drill while the second team was given a dummy scrimmage.

Charley Snead, back, whose eye developed an infection, will not play against Brown, it was announced.

Cubs Buy Sweetland, Pitcher, From Phils

President William L. Veeck said the deal was strictly cash, but did not reveal the amount of money involved. Sweetland was with the Phillies three seasons, coming up from Spartansburg, of the Sally League. He won six games and lost fifteen with a past place club during the recent season, and won thirteen and lost eleven in 1929, when the Phillies finished fifth. He was credited with three victories and fifteen defeats in 1928.

Campbell Will Attempt To Break Speed Mark

London, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, famous British racing motorist, intends to make another attempt on the world's speed record at Daytona, Fla., in January.

He will use a car built secretly during the last nine months. He also will take with him other British cars with the object ultimately of getting them built in America under licenses.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Capt. Malcolm Campbell, veteran British race car driver, established a world's straightaway speed record here early in 1928 when he drove his twelve-cylinder Bluebird machine roaring over the ocean speedway at 206.8 miles an hour. A short time later the late Ray Keech, of Philadelphia, boosted the record to 207.55 in a 36-cylinder creation, built by J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer.

Campbell then went to South Africa in an effort to recapture the record on a dry lake bed, but failed.

It was while Campbell was in Africa making his trials that the late Sir Henry Segrave came here and hoisted the record to its present mark of 231 miles an hour. Segrave recently was killed in a boat speed test in England.

SOLDIERS CHALLENGE.

The Sixteenth Field Artillery Eleven desires games with teams averaging about 150 pounds. A special invitation is given to the Centennials, Del Ray, Alcova Motors, Seat Pleasant and Virginia elevens.

Coach Fitzpatrick, who may be addressed in care of Battery B, 16th F. A., Fort Myer, Va., is in charge of compiling the soldiers' schedule.

NAVY PREPS FOR DUKE CONTEST

No Major Injuries Reported From Notre Dame Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 13.—Undaunted by the crushing defeat they absorbed at the hands of Notre Dame on Saturday, Navy gridders today began to look forward to other battles, next of which will be with Duke University warriors, who will visit Annapolis on the coming Saturday.

The Tars came out of the game with the Irish without serious casualties, bruises and the like, being the only complaints that were heard today. However, the coaches dispensed with a practice session as far as the regulars were concerned.

A lecture program was in order instead, and defects in their play against the Ramblers were pointed out by the mentors. Tomorrow the usual routine will be resumed with the battle with the "Blue Devils" in view.

Although it was not expected that Notre Dame would win so decisively, yet coaches and others connected with the team are far from being disappointed with their charges. "Bill" Ingram said today the team has by no means reached a peak, and he looks for decided improvement from now on.

The Beasel, Favorite, Wins Jamaica Feature

The Beasel carried 118 pounds and stepped the distance in 1:12 3-5, the fastest time of the meeting.

Rudolph Spreckel's Judge Schilling was second and J. L. Johnston's Chatford third.

Six good sprinters paraded for the stake with The Beasel opening at 4 to 5 and receding to 7 to 5.

The start was good, Judge Schilling being the first to show in front for a few yards, where The Beasel took command. Kelsay let the filly rate along and when Judge Schilling challenged in the stretch she easily drew away to win by three lengths. Judge Schilling beat Chatford a like distance for the place. The race was worth $3,400.

Thomas Stops Dill In Fight at Quantico

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., Oct. 13.—In the feature bout of a boxing program held tonight at Quantico in honor of Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, and his party, who were guests of Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, commandant of the post, Johnny Thomas, hard-hitting middleweight from the Signal Battalion, sent Jimmy Dill, battling aviator, down for the count of ten in the second of a scheduled six-round engagement. Thomas kaoed his opponent with a steaming left to the stomach.

In the semifinal fight "Bozo" Mayer battled "Kid" Ice to a draw after a torrid six-round match which found neither boxer shading the other. In the 165-pound class Red Schmidt received the decision over Gruber. Johnny Ward was awarded the referee's verdict over Leon Esbrook in a very one-sided encounter in the 155-pound division. Ward Phelan outboxed Gregory in the 135-pound class, and George Barnett lost to Joe Berryman in the 125-pound division on a decision.

Tennessee's Grid Record Menaced

Volunteers Unbeaten Since 1926; Carolina Meets Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Trainers and team physicians at the University of Tennessee were working overtime at Knoxville today in an effort to make sound men out of a trio of crippled football veterans in preparations for the crucial game with Alabama Saturday.

Tennessee's national record of no defeats since 1926 may fall unless Gene McEver, half back, and Brandt and Hug, ends, throw away their bandages and crutches before the Tuscaloosa encounter.

McEver's knee, hurt in a baseball game last summer, and jolted a second time in early scrimmage this fall, has been responding to treatment, and Coach Bob Neyland hopes the star ball carrier, who was the Nation's high scorer in 1929, may be ready to go against Wallace Wade's Crimson Tide.

Brandt and Hug, both hurt in the Centre game, have been hobbling about on crutches with their limbs in casts. There is a chance that Hug will be available, but Neyland is doubtful as to Brandt's early recovery.

Mississippi Gained Around Ends.

Mississippi gained easily around Tennessee's substitute ends last Saturday, and unless the veterans are back, Alabama may make a runaway of the territory outside the flanks.

At Gainesville, Coach Bachman took his Florida machine apart to find why it wouldn't click against Auburn.

Although North Carolina beat Maryland Saturday, Coach Church Collins didn't have to look at the scoreboard to know that his team was outgained and he planned several changes before the big games with Georgia at Athens.

Dan McGugin at Vanderbilt was busy working on his running attack and attempting to bolster his defense for the Alabama game two weeks off. He expects little trouble from Spring Hill this week and probably will allow his reserves to do most of the playing.

Virginia Clashes
With V. M. I.

Main interest in Virginia was centered on the University and Virginia Military training camps, where these teams were preparing for the Old Dominion's first big intrastate conflict Saturday. V. M. I. has won the State title for two years in succession and hopes for its third victory over the Cavaliers.

Halted in its first conference engagement with South Carolina, Louisiana State hoped to have its running attack back in shape to continue the high scoring parade against Mississippi A. and M.

Dewitt Meets Alex. High Instead of G.W.U. Frosh

Devitt Prep's strong eleven will meet Alexandria High Friday afternoon at the Virginians' field and have canceled their scheduled fray against George Washington University's frosh, which was to have been played Saturday.

In their only game of the season with a Washington background Alexandria High has placed second best, with the National Training School gridders beating them, 7-0. Devitt should experience no great trouble in returning winner, despite current injuries.

Mrs. Keefer Medalist In Sheridan Cup Play

Mrs. Frank R. Keefer captured the medal yesterday in the opening day of the annual quest for the Sheridan Cup, emblematic of the women's championship of the Chevy Chase Club.

Turning in a card of 84, Mrs. Keefer nosed out Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., and Miss Susan Hacker, tied for second place with 85.

Mrs. Hume Wrong, winner of the French High Commision Cup last year, had a 91.

had once owned a liquor saloon in Dubuque, Iowa, and had made himself known as the best chucker-out in the northern Mississippii Valley. Umpiring in the effete days of baseball, he had few occasions to chuck anybody out of anywhere, and he presently turned in his blackjack, jimmy and dark lantern, the tools of his office, and turned to more or less square pursuits.

Mr. Rowland became a manager in the Southern League, where, he reports, the fighting is much better, although nothing to thrill the spirit of a past champion chucker-out with a reputation extending along the river on both sides from St. Paul to St. Louis.

Gets His Baseball
At Night, Now.

Mr. Donnelly, the umpire lover, is moving along in years now, but he is still able to hoist quite a cargo of knuckles and brew of an evening among his friends, the great misunderstood. He goes to some ball games, but mostly he gets his baseball from the umpires at night, with a stein on the table and the knuckles steaming among the kraut. A perverted social sense, to be sure. Not as scandalous, perhaps, as the predilection of Mr. Getz for the blue-nosed soprano baboon, but a subject for a thoughtful paper by some learned authority on odd deportment.

"Sometimes," Mr. Rowland says, "I am minded to go back to umpiring in the American League, just for the occasional trips to St. Louis in the summer. We have no social undertakers in the Southern League, and in some of our towns they are likely to put the law on you if they even think you want a stein of beer."

Wolverines, Grid Door Mats Of 1929, Now Title Threats

Capital City League Eleven Adds New Coach and Players and Earns Respect of Clubs in 150-Pound Race.

(The following is the first of a series of articles concerning the 16 sandlot elevens entered in the 1930 Capital City Football League, which is sponsored by The Washington Post. Other articles will appear from day to day).

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

FROM cellar position in the 135-pound section of The Post's 1929 Capital City Football League to a leading candidacy for title honors in the same circuit's 150-pound class this fall, is the enviable distinction achieved by the Wolverine A. C. Hailing from Southeast Washington, the club has an enthusiastic following and at this writing seems destined to finish around the top of its division in the 1930 league.

Barely a year old, the Wolverine A. C. probably is the youngest sandlot club in point of organization in either section of this fall's circuit. The club was organized last year by a group of boys living in the vicinity of Sixteenth and E streets southeast.

Immediately after perfecting a definite organization last fall, the Wolves launched upon a stiff Capital City League schedule. Handicapped by the absence of a regular coach and also by the fact that a great majority of the squad never had played together before, the club met with only mediocre success.

Wolves Had Rough
Season.

Palace walked away with a six-touchdown verdict in the opening league game, and then the Meridians, Notre Dame Preps, Janneys, Mardfeldts and Columbias in succession were extended to beat the Wolverines by small margins. The Brentwood Hawks were held to a 0-0 score, while the Trojans and the All-Stars, two nonleague teams, were licked by the Southeast eleven.

The one bright spot in an otherwise drab season last year was the never-say-die spirit displayed by each man on the squad.

This year is an entirely different story as far as the Wolves are concerned. Their 1929 setbacks forgotten, they are out to make things interesting for the rest of the clubs in their section.

One big reason why they have such high hopes for a successful 1930 eleven is the fact that they have signed one of the best sandlot mentors in Washington. Followers of District sandlot football need no introduction to "Shibby" Rice, who coached the Mohawk Preps to a pair of Capital City League titles in the last three years. When the Hawks failed to organize this fall, Greg Gerdom, Wolverine manager, lost no time in securing Rice's services for the Wolves.

But the Southeast players also have other reasons to rejoice over their 1930 prospects. A half dozen or so promising newcomers have joined the club and in addition most of last year's performers again are available for duty and benefited greatly by a season of play together. As a result the Wolverines rank favorably with the best teams entered in this fall's circuit.

Battle Petworth
Pennants to Tie.

Already the club has made a highly successful start in its first three games, which is a fair criterion of what is later to come. In its opening contest two weeks ago the Wolves trounced the Stantons, 7 to 0, and then came back the next Sunday to score a decisive 39-to-0 victory over the Alcora Motor Co.'s Eleven. Coach Rice's proteges inaugurated league play last Sunday by battling the strong Petworth Pennants to a 6-to-6 deadlock.

Twenty-one men constitute this season's Wolverine roster. They are Fullbacks Pelton, formerly of the Mohawk Preps, and Phillips, 1929 Wolverine; Halfbacks Minor, former Central High player, and Snellings, Bell and Gerdon, of last year's eleven; Quarterbacks Freeman and Raum, both of last season's Wolverines; Tackles Clark, Thompson and F. Littlefield, veterans, and M. Littlefield and J. Williams, newcomers; Ends Dellar and Campbell, of the 1929 outfit, and McPherson, former Mohawk Prep star; Centers Winters, last year's brightest Wolverine star, and Cumberland, a new player, and Guards Christe and B. Williams, performers last year, and Smith, another newcomer.

The high spot of the 1930 Wolverine schedule, outside of its league battles, will be a contest scheduled for November 16 with the O'Reilly Athletic Club at Richmond.

THE sixth annual field trials of the Northern Virginia Field Trials Association opened yesterday morning over the course between Chantilly and Centerville, Va. A total of 58 dogs have been entered for the trials which continue through today. Dogs have been entered from all sections of the Piedmont region. Approximately 100 persons followed the dogs yesterday. Several coveys of quail were flushed, but the long-continued drought made the running difficult. Secretary Harry B. Mitchell, of Herndon, states that this trial promises to be the most successful ever held in this section of the country.

Thirteen pairs of dogs were run in the Derby Stakes yesterday morning as follows: Brace 1, Shenondale Sweet Genevieve, owned by T. J. O'Donohue, of Goshen, N. The Herndon Hotel at Herndon, Va., is the headquarters of the association. Following the days trials a bench show was held at the hotel. Today's trials will consist of the all-age stakes. Many valuable cups and prizes will be awarded the winners of the different events.

of Hampden-Sidney, Rutgers and Lafayette. These three up-State New York organizations continue to display consistently a quantity of ability on the gridiron. Cornell resembels a backflash of the days of Eddie Kaw and George Pfann, while Colgate, with Hart and Macaluso, threatens the possibility of an undefeated season. Syracuse, which has shown such definite promise, will, I suspect, meet astumbling block next week in Pittsburgh.

MARYLAND U. WORKS FOR ST. JOHNS

Substitutes Coached by Regulars in Novel Practice.

CURLY BYRD, Maryland's head coach, introduced a new wrinkle in football tutoring yesterday when he assigned his regulars to coaching the second and third string players in the Old Line's first workout for the St. John's game scheduled Saturday.

The regulars followed the substitutes to point out their mistakes and offer suggestions for correction, all the while testing their own knowledge of the plays. Coach Byrd's object was to get the entire squad better acquainted with the plays.

Chalmbers Bruised
At Chapel Hill.

As a whole, the Old Liners emerged from the North Carolina game little the worse for wear. Shorty Chalmers, star passer, was badly bruised, but with a couple of days of rest he is expected to be ready for the next game.

Byrd probably will stress forward pass defense during the remainder of the preparation for St. John's. It was the Johnnies' aerial attack that caused them to be a constant threat to Western Maryland last Friday night. Byrd does not want his team to permit St. John's gains that the latter accomplished at Western Maryland's expense via the overhead route.

Braves Pay $40,000 For Coast Outfielder

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Sale of Wes Schlumerich, hard-hitting Angel right-hander, to the Boston Nationals for $40,000 and one player was announced last night by Oscar Reichow, business manager of the Los Angeles Club.

Schlumerich, who weighs 215 pounds, has a batting average of .360, holding second place in the Pacific Coast League, and clouted 28 home runs this season. He will report to the Braves next spring. Jimmy Welsh, outfielder, who went to the majors from Seattle in 1925, comes to the Angels in the deal.

Galaday Home Ahead At Churchill Downs

Churchill Downs, Ky., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Galaday, a 3-year-old filly from R. S. Clark's Stable, was the winner of the Columbus Day Purse, the feature attraction at this track this afternoon. Thistle Ann, from the G. Collins Stable, was second, with Banner Bright, from the Audley Stable, third.

The race, an allowance affair for 3-year-olds over the one-mile journey, was worth $1,000 to the winner, which covered the distance in 1:38 1-5 and rewarded her backers at $14.90 to $2 in the mutuels.

Racing improvedly and showing speed from the start, Galaday, racing under restraint, gradually wore down Thistle Ann after reaching the home stretch and was up to win by half a length. Thistle Ann went into command right at the start and held the lead to the stretch, taking second money by a like distance from Banner Bright. Noses separated Banner Bright, Rueful and Culloden. Prose and Poetry, the heavily played favorite, was next and last.

One of the largest additions of the year to steam-generating plant capacity on the Atlantic coast has just been placed in operation as part of the Utilities Power & Light System facilities. This is the completion and commissioning by the Eastern New Jersey Power Co., a Utilities Power & Light subsidiary, of two 30,000-kilowatt units of what will oe eventually a 180,000-kilowatt station on the Raritan River at Sayreville, N. J.

Link in Superpower Zone.

The Sayreville plant will constitute an important link in the Atlantic seaboard superpower zone, which first was visualized during the war and since has become an actual fact through interconnections among the leading electric properties operating in the territory, extending from Boston and northern New England down through the middle Atlantic States to around Washington, D. C.

The new plant is tied in with two properties serving territory adjacent to that of the Eastern New Jersey Power Co., thereby providing for an interchange of power and insurance against loss of service. The new Sayreville generating station is most modern both in design and equipment. Its location on tidewater enables delivery of coal and other materials by transportation facilites.

Announcement of the completion of the plants was made by Harley L. Clarke, president of the system.

Exchanges and Banks Are Closed for Holiday

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Financial activities were at a standstill today in Wall Street in observance of Columbus Day.

Motorcycle Crash Kills Two Youths

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Oct. 13.—Two youths were killed as the result of a motorcycle accident on the Georges Creek boulevard at New Detmold near Lonaconing yesterday.

The dead are Herman Kenneth Frost, 19, this city, who was riding the tandem seat of the machine and who is believed to have been jerked from the machine by a guy wire attached to the pole into which the machine crashed. James D. Taylor, 20, also of this city, died this afternoon from a fractured skull and other injuries in Miners' Hospital, Frostburg. He was the operator of the machine.

The accident occurred on a curve in the road entering what is known as "Detmold Straight." The machine was proceeding toward Lonaconing at what witnesses said was a high rate of speed. A blow-out tire is believed to have caused the machine to swerve from the road into the pole.

An unknown WOMAN in England
An Englishman built up a fortune in real estate in an American city. He sold large parcels. He married. He died. His wife died. His will was probated. Deeds and titles seemed in good order. Later, a claim was made by an undisclosed relative of the Englishman's first wife. Purchasers of the property suffered heavy losses.

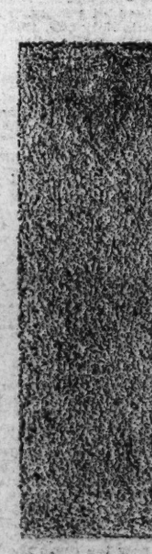
STEADFAST through the Crash of 1901


ON May 6, 1901, and the hectic days following, the Stock Exchange was caught in the throes of the battle between Morgan and Harriman for the control of the Northern Pacific. Stocks gyrated and then tumbled and thousands lost their all in the mad scramble to keep abreast with these Titans of finance. The money, as well as the stock market was caught in the swirl of high finance.
But STEADFAST through this mad speculation, the First Mortgage Notes issued by Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Company were safe and sure; at par every day and unfailing in their interest returns. Those who were investors in these securities sat safely on the side lines and could well afford to watch the debacle with a smile.
And so today when many have been caught again in a depressed market, the thousands of those who have their savings in these notes, feel secure in knowing that these securities have stood the test for over 61 years, and will go on remaining STEADFAST to the tradition of safety, first, last, and all the time.

Woman Leader Tells Hoover Garber Has Chance to Win Again.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Murray Boocock, vice chairman of the Virginia State Republican committee, yesterday told President Hoover that national campaign funds should send money to Virginia to aid the election of party congressional nominees in the Seventh and Ninth districts.

By winning these districts in November, she said she told the Chief Executive, the way would be prepared for duplication in 1932 of the party's 1928 victory in the State. She opposed waiting until just before the national election to start work in the State.

Mrs. Boocock, whose home is in Albemarle County, also called at headquarters of the Republican national committee to urge that financial aid be given to Representative Garber, who is running for reelection. She said that she felt that his chances of winning were excellent and that his failure to file his candidacy on time, resulting in his name being left off the ballot, would have no material effect. Mrs. Boocock met Representative Barger at the White House, but they did not call upon the President together. Garber declined to state the reason for his call.

TUESDAY MORNING — The Washington Post. — OCTOBER 14, 1930

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST OPEN INTERNATIONAL CONVENTION TODAY

14,000 Delegates Expected to Attend First of Three Conferences Here.

$8,000,000 FUND ASKED FOR PASTORS' PENSIONS

Dedication of Edifice at Thomas Circle to Be Notable Feature.

More than 14,000 delegates from all parts of the United States and 30 foreign countries are expected here today for the opening of the international convention of Disciples of Christ, which will be followed by the world congress of Christian Churches and the youth convention of Disciples of Christ. Headquarters will be maintained at the Washington Auditorium, but group meetings will be held at half a dozen halls and churches through October 23.

The convention opening today is designed to focus world-wide attention on the 100th anniversary of the Christian Church and the dedication of the new $1,500,000 National City Christian Church at Thomas Circle. One of its principal objectives will be the subscription of an $8,000,000 pension fund for ministers of the denomination.

The advance guard of delegates, including Robert Alexander Long, of Kansas City, who will serve as president of the convention, arrived in the city yesterday, and a number of committee meetings were held last night. Arrangements have been made for housing the visitors in private homes and for transporting them to meeting places and on sightseeing trips about the city.

Committees Are Active.

Committees were busy preparing the auditorium for the great gathering yesterday and in registering delegates and distributing special literature. The convention will close with a special communion service Sunday and the world congress will immediately open, to last through October 23. The youth convention, which will be held jointly with the international convention, is expected to attract young people of 1,000 Christian churches.

Three hundred men, who will distribute emblems at the Communion service Sunday, met yesterday to receive instructions from the Rev. F. E. Davison, pastor of the Austin Boulevard Christian Church, of Oak Park, Ill. Mr. Davison has directed these annual Communion gatherings for the last nine years. The chairman of the Washington committee is the Rev. D. C. Gordan, pastor of the Mount Rainier Christian Church.

Plans for subscribing the $8,000,000 pension fund will be brought before the convention tomorrow, and the next matter of business to be taken up will be the election of the president of the United Christian Missionary Society, one of the largest organizations affiliated with the church.

Reports to Be Submitted.

Reports of such organizations as the Board of Education, Boards of Temperance and Social Welfare, the Association for the Promotion of Christian Unity, the Rural Church Commission and others will be submitted at a short business session tonight, before President Long's opening address.

Other officers of the international convention are Cleveland Kleihauer, Mrs. Luella St. Clair Moss and W. N. Birney, vice presidents; Graham Frank, general secretary; Mrs. G. W. Muckley, recording secretary; H. B. Holloway, transportation secretary, and J. H. Nance, treasurer. The Washington general committee includes Maj. W. W. Kirby, general chairman; Judge John A. Connaughton and Earl Taggart, vice chairmen; C. N. Williams, secretary, and A. G. Bishop, treasurer.

The dedication of various sections of the new church at Thomas Circle will begin at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, and will close about 5:30 p. m. Dedication of the entire building will be at sunrise Sunday.

Reception to Be Held.

Following the Communion services Sunday, a reception will be held at the Washington Hotel for all missionaries and foreign delegates. The afternoon sessions of the convention will be devoted entirely to business matters, while inspirational subjects will be discussed at the morning and evening meetings.

Among the speakers at the international convention will be Edgar De Witt Jones, of Detroit; Roger T. Noee, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Jesse M. Bader, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Charles Reign Scoville, A. E. Corey and Charles T. Paul, of Indianapolis; Graham Frank, of Dallas, Tex.; E. M. Wits, president of Texas Christian University; Arthur Braden, president of Transylvania University, Ky.; John D. Zimmerman, secretary of the Kansas Christian Missionary Society; John G. Alber, secretary of the Nebraska Christian Missionary Society; Rodney L. McQuary, of Anderson, Ind.; Paul Preston, of Dallas, Tex.; W. R. Warren, of Indianapolis, Ind.; Dr. H. O. Pritchard and John O. Wood, of the board of education, and Dr. Luther Weigle, of Yale University.

New Noonday Classes To Be Conducted at 'Y'

Noonday lunch hour exercise sessions for the "tired business man" have been started by the Y. M. C. A. at its downtown gymnasium, 1736 G street northwest, with classes in indoor baseball, volley ball, basket ball, handball and other competitive sports to be held daily, except Sunday.

Special hours, aside from this feature of the new fall and winter schedule, also have been arranged, with free class instruction in swimming provided at 3:30 o'clock on Mondays and Fridays, and at 7:30 o'clock on Monday nights.

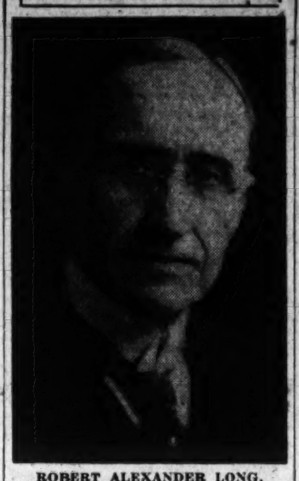
McCrory Blast Victim Asked Explosion Cause

The McCrory Stores Corporation yesterday asked the District Supreme Court to order Mrs. Lula B. Carter, of 609 Delafield place northwest, who is suing the company for injuries allegedly received in the blast last year, to explain what exploded and what caused the explosion.

Through Attorneys G. B. Craighill, C. B. Tebbs and Frank H. Myers, the corporation says that the plaintiff's declaration does not contain these allegations. The company also says that the suit fails to explain how the store was negligent in operating and maintaining the cellar.

Alexander H. Bell and P. H. Marshall, attorneys for Mrs. Carter, have been informed by the company's attorneys that the matter will be presented to the court Friday.

WILL SPEAK



ROBERT ALEXANDER LONG, president of the International Convention of Disciples of Christ, who will open the gathering with an address tonight.

FIRE DEPARTMENT PROMOTIONS READY

Three to Be Made Captains and Five Will Become Lieutenants.

SERGEANTS AGREED ON

Lieut. William R. Lusby, of No. 23 Engine Company; Lieut. William A. Smith, of No. 3 Truck Company, and Lieut. Harry O. Bailey, of No. 12 Engine Company, are to be promoted by the District Commissioners today to captains in the Fire Department.

Their promotion was recommended by Fire Chief George S. Watson to fill the vacancies caused by the retirement of several veterans recently. Promotion of a fourth lieutenant also probably will be made. Chief Watson is expected to submit a recommendation to the Commissioners this morning and Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby indicated yesterday that he would recommend arproval by the Commissioners of the recommendations of the fire chief.

Five sergeants are to be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. They are Thomas S. Baber, No. 26 Engine Company; Edward J. Carroll, Rescue Squad No. 1; Edward A. Sweeney, No. 24 Engine Company; Joseph E. Suit, No. 9 Engine Company, and Floyd C. Hanback, No. 20 Engine Company.

Privates who are to be promoted to sergeants are Alexander Whiteman, John N. Ankers, Vernon C. Richardson, James F. Mills, John M. Sydnor and Walter A. Weber. Other privates are to be boosted in pay to fill the places left vacant by the promotions to sergeant. They are William O. Weitzel, John R. Mowatt, Walter P. Whittington, Mason E. Wallace, Louis J. Nolan, Jennings L. Rice, Frank F. Lewis, jr., Henry M. Hatcher, James Q. Barnes and Arnold J. Woodhouse.

Woman Takes Dose Of Poison; Is Saved

Mrs. Harry C. Grayton, 36 years old, wife of an Army captain, was treated by members of the fire rescue squad and a doctor from Emergency Hospital yesterday afternoon, after she had taken a quantity of poison by mistake for a headache medicine in an apartment of a friend at 3601 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Complaining of a headache, Mrs. Grayton went to the home of Mrs. Guy Kirksey at the Broadmoor Apartments, where it is said she took the poison from a bottle. She did not look at the label, thinking the bottle contained a medicine. Had it not been for the quick arrival of the rescue squad and Dr. Samuel Benjamin, of 3532 Connecticut avenue northwest, who were summoned by Mrs. Kirksey, the dose might have proven fatal.

The Graytons arrived here a few days ago, coming from Philadelphia, and are staying temporarily at the Hostess House at Walter Reed Hospital, where Capt. Grayton is being treated for a fractured arm received in an automobile accident in Pennsylvania, while en route to Washington. Mrs. Grayton's condition is not considered serious.

Attachment Is Issued In Deadly Weapon Case

An attachment was issued for William Thomas Kirby, 25 years old, of Emery place near Belt road northwest, yesterday when he failed to appear in answer to charges made by police of the Fourteenth Precinct that he was carrying a deadly weapon when arrested and held for investigation in connection with the mysterious shooting last week of Charles W. Tucker, of 4232 Thirty-ninth street northwest.

Kirby had been held for three days, while police were carrying on an investigation of the shooting which occurred while Tucker was crossing a vacant lot near his home Friday night. Police alleged that Kirby was carrying a blackjack in his pocket when arrested. He had been released on a collateral of $50, and when he failed to answer to his name in court yesterday, Judge John P. McMahon ordered the attachment issued.

HIGH COURT IGNORES PLEAS FOR REVIEW OF BORLAND CASES

Effort to Collect Levies for Repairs to Streets May Be Dropped.

Wisconsin Avenue Property Involved in Petitions by District.

All efforts to collect street repair assessments under the Borland law may be abandoned by the District government as a result of the refusal yesterday by the United States Supreme Court to review decisions of District courts setting aside assessments levied for street improvements.

Refusal of the Supreme Court to review decisions of the District courts leave those decisions as the law which must guide in future assessments under the Borland law.

William W. Bride, corporation counsel, declared that the refusal of the highest court to review the cases was "a body blow to effective enforcement of the Borland law," but added that the decision of the Supreme Court was not "entirely unexpected" by himself and his assistants who have been handling the Borland law suits.

Conference Due Today.

Mr. Bride is to confer this morning with his assistants, Francis H. Stephens, Robert E. Lynch and W. H. Wahley. The effect of the decision will be gone over and the status in which it leaves the Borland law as an effective law which can be equitably applied to all property owners will be studied.

What recommendation will be made to the District Commissioners following the conference Mr. Bride refused to forecast, but he declared that the latest decision leaves comparatively little property which the District may legally levy against under the Borland law.

Appealing to the Supreme Court, the District's brief declared that if the District court's decision were not set aside there would be left of the Borland law "very little, if anything."

"So much property that has been assessed for highway paving will be exempted from assessments under this ruling that it would be inequitable to require other and less numerable properties to bear the burden of these assessments," the Supreme Court was told.

"The same thing is true today that was true when the brief was filed with the United States Supreme Court." Mr. Bride said in commenting on the refusal to review the adverse decisions.

Different Condition Obtains.

Mr. Bride has been opposed to the Borland law and made his opposition known some time ago, urging that it was enacted at a time when the condition of city streets was of principal concern to those owning abutting property, a condition that does not obtain today because of changed conditions due to advent of the automobile and its widespread use.

District Commissioners withheld comment on the Borland law decision yesterday, saying that they first would have to study the decision and the report which Mr. Bride is to submit.

They would give careful consideration, they said, to any proposed law which might be recommended for submission to Congress as a substitute for the Borland law.

The cases which the Supreme Court refused to review yesterday were instituted by the American Security and Trust Co., Edward B. McLean, as trustees of the estate of the late John R. McLean, and by Christian Heurich, owners of large pieces of property on Wisconsin avenue which are undivided but are used for their residences.

Points Under Dispute.

The District courts decided that the property was suburban within the meaning of the Borland law. The District contended that the highway plan called for subdividing of the estates and the cutting of streets through them. The citizens contended that the "streets" which the District said justified heavy assessments against them for paving long stretches of Wisconsin avenue were "paper" streets and probably will never be anything else.

Previous decisions against Borland assessments included a ruling that triangular or irregularly shaped property could not be assessed as the District had been assessing it.

Mr. Bride said that there are approximately 500 Borland suits pending and added that the District would make no efforts to push these until a policy had been determined by the Commissioners in view of the Supreme Court action.

Leon Tobriner represented the Heurich interests, McKenney and Flannery were the attorneys for the American Security and Trust Co. and Wilton J. Lambert appeared for Mr. McLean.

Autoist Gets Sympathy Of Court, Also $5 Fine

The sympathy of Judge Ralph Given was extended to Harry Boule, 25-year-old, colored, who was brought before him in Traffic Court yesterday morning for speeding.

"I realize that your life was in danger by reason of the possibility of your being run over by a larger car," the judge told him, "but in spite of the fact that it was a doll-baby type car you were driving I'm forced to fine you $5." The arresting policeman said Boule made 32 miles an hour.

Restraining Order Granted When Alley Is Barricaded

War clouds which loomed over the embattled and barricaded sector of Chester and W streets southeast were blown away, temporarily at least, by Justice William Hitz in District Supreme Court yesterday.

Nine of the residents of that war-torn neighborhood, led by Wilber L. Blankenship, 2225 Chester street southeast, filed a suit for injunction against Edward M. Flaherty, 2213 Chester street southeast, and William C. Flaherty, 2218 Chester street southeast, asking that the court restrain them from maintaining a blockade to an alley leading to the neighborhood garages and back doors.

Justice Hitz, acting on the request of Attorneys H. Winship Wheatley and H. Winship Wheatley, jr., granted the barricaded citizens a temporary restraining order. The justice's mandate means that the Flaherty brothers must tear down the fence they have erected. Should the hearing, which has been set for this week, be decided in their favor, they can rebuild the barricade.

According to the suit, the Flahertys claim that they own the alley and last Thursday told the neighbors that they intended to shut it off. Friday the alley was blockaded and now the citizens can not put their cars in the garage or take them out. Neither can ice and coal be delivered.

CHAMBER SECURES 261 NEW MEMBERS

500 IS CAMPAIGN'S GOAL

New memberships in the Chamber of Commerce were brought to 261 yesterday, the first day of the second and last week of the membership drive of the chamber, Charles W. Darr, president of the organization, announced last night. The new figure represents more than half the quota set for the drive.

The day's work yesterday saw the defeat of the Washington Gas Light Co. Team by the only woman's team participating in the campaign, one led by Mrs. Ada M. Payne. The woman's team brought in eight new memberships for the day.

Yesterday was a record day for the campaign, a total of 92 new memberships being brought in by all the teams. This was the highest number of memberships gathered on a single day since the campaign started. The team workers were congratulated on their work at a luncheon yesterday at the Washington Hotel by President Darr, Rudolph Jose, vice president of the chamber and chairman of the expansion campaign, and Col. E. G. Bliss, in charge of the membership teams.

Despite the one-day defeat of the Gas Light Co. Team, captained by A. W. Ewaldson, this team is still leading with a total of 45. Second place is held by Team No. 16, captained by Harry T. Peters, with a score of 21 new memberships. Mrs. Payne's team has reached third place through the victory yesterday, having a total score of 18 new memberships.

Standing of the other teams follows: Team No. 22, Fenton M. Fadeley, 15; No. 3, James M. Dentz, 9; No. 19, F. E. Rogers, 9, and No. 21, Martin J. McNamara, 8.

The next team luncheon will be held tomorrow at the Washington Hotel. The drive will close on Friday. The quota desired is 500 new members. Chamber of Commerce officials believe that this number will be exceeded.

Unemployment Theme Of J. B. Colpoys Talk

The machine age was blamed for the present unemployment yesterday by John B. Colpoys, editor of the Trade Unionist, in a talk before the first fall meeting of the Council of Social Agencies at the Y. W. C. A. He also denounced unemployment insurance.

Unemployment was attributed to the failure of the American people to put remedies they had evolved into effect by Dr. John O'Grady, director of the Catholic Charities. Dr. Leifer Magnussen, director of the Washington Branch of the International Labor Association, said that the Capital has the lowest percentage of unemployment of any city of equal size in the country.

PLAZA PLAYGROUND ABOLITION FOUGHT BY STANTON PARK

KEELER IS NOMINATED TO PRESIDENT'S POST

Police Praised by Crosby in Speech to Residents of Brookland.

Strong condemnation of the proposed abolition of the Plaza playgrounds adjoining Union Station was registered by e Stanton Park Citizens' Association meeting in the Peabody School last night.

A. H. Gregory, president, was appointed chairman of a committee including Claus J. Schwartz, principal of Stewart Junior High School, and Miss M. G. Young, principal of the Peabody-Hilton-Carberry group of schools, to formulate a plan of action to preserve the grounds for the use of the District's children.

Unable to See Reason.

It was pointed out that elimination of the Plaza Playground will leave the schools of the District with no suitable grounds centrally located for holding athletic meets and contests, and the association further was unable to see any reason why the grounds, which will not be used by the Government for any other purpose for another five years or more, should not be continued in their present usage at least until proper replacement is made. If necessary, the association plans to demand congressional action to save the playground for the children.

W. W. Keeler, of 14 Eighth tsreet northeast, was nominated for presidency of the association to succeed Mr. Gregory, who has held office for two terms and declined a third on the grounds that his health and outside interests made it impossible for him to devote proper attention to the needs of the association in the future.

Officers Are Nominated.

J. P. Farmer, of 402 Eighth street northeast, and William E. Monroe, of 336 Eighth street northeast, were nominated for vice presidents to succeed Gilbert A. Clark and S. B. Frantz. Other officers nominated for reelection were Mrs. L. H. Brown, secretary; Claiborne Hunter, treasurer; Robert Bier, financial secretary, adn Mr. Gregory and Harry N. Stull, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Other matters discussed at the meeting, but regarding which no action was taken, included the question of competition of pushcart peddlers and street venders against established merchants, and the problem of giving contracts to outside bidders and hiring outside labor on Government jobs in the District.

Kramer Again to Head Relief Group of Board

Stephen E. Kramer, first assistant superintendent of District schools, was reelected president of the Immediate Relief Association of the Board of Education at a meeting of the association yesterday afternoon.

Miss Anne M. Goding was elected vice president, succeeding Frank C. Daniel, principal of McKinley High School. A vote amending the constitution brought about an amalgamation of the offices of secretary and treasurer, and Dr. E. G. Kimball was elected to the combined office. M. O. B. Jacobs was formerly secretary and Robert L. Haycock held the office of treasurer.

Grand Jury Cases Will Be Expedited

Rover and Aids Confer With Judge Schuldt on New Method.

As a result of a conference last week between District Attorney Leo A. Royer, Assistant District Attorney John Fitzpatrick at Police Court, Judge Gus A. Schuldt and Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, changes will be made in methods of sending cases to the grand jury for consideration.

In a new ruling which went into effect yesterday, Police Court cases which are to be sent to the grand jury will go there immediately from the minor courtrooms, and it was decided to try all felony cases before other cases each morning so that they could be sent to the grand jury without delay.

Officials pointed out that this method would result in a saving in time, witness fees and bond for the prisoners, many of whom either waited in jail or on bond for grand jury hearings for days or even weeks under the old method.

DIES IN CRASH

MRS. ELIZABETH WALTER CONVERSE.

AUTO CRASH VICTIM PAID SPEEDING FINE

Mrs. Converse's Companion, Drage, Gave $14 on Fairfax Charge.

WOMAN'S RITES TODAY

David Drage, of Kansas City, who with Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Converse, socially prominent Washingtonian, was killed early Sunday morning in an automobile accident at Falls Church, Va., had been arrested on charges of speeding at 60 or 65 miles an hour and passing cars on curves and on the brow of a hill late Saturday, it was revealed yesterday.

A. W. Mills, Fairfax County policeman, yesterday said that he had viewed the body of the young man and that he was the one whom he had arrested, though at that time Drage was driving an automobile bearing North Carolina tags and gave his address as 323 North Wrenn street, High Point, N. C.

Upon being taken before Justice of the Peace John T. Moling at Fairfax, Drage was fined $14. He said at the time that he was on his way to Warrenton, Va., whence he and Mrs. Converse were returning when they were killed.

Funeral services for Mrs. Converse will be held at her late residence, 10 East Kirk street, Chevy Chase, Md., at 11 o'clock this morning. Burial will be in Staunton, Va., beside that of her brother, who also was killed in an automobile accident.

Drage's body has been shipped to Kansas City for burial.

Man Gets 90 Days For Taking Table

Frank Watson, 41 years old, colored, failed to escape with a table he took from an apartment house hallway at 211 Delaware avenue southwest, Saturday morning, in spite of a sprint over the Capitol grounds, according to a story heard by Judge John P. McMahon, in Police Court yesterday morning.

According to the resident manager of the apartment, Mrs. Alma Williamson, Watson was seen carrying the table from the building by Postman Howard A. Maxwell when he was delivering mail to the house. He told a colored maid employed at the building, Helen Brown, that the man was taking the table away and she started after him, chasing him from the grounds near the Labor Building to the other side of the Capitol.

Her chase was not futile, according to Private R. J. Barrett of the Fourth Precinct, for when he arrived in answer to a call she still had the man by the coat holding him for the policeman. He was given a jail sentence of 90 days.

Mother's Will Gives Bequest of $1 to Son

Mrs. Effie Crouch, who died September 18, left her son, Joseph W. Crouch, only $1, according to her will filed for probate in District Supreme Court yesterday. She explains the small inheritance by saying that she made advances to him during her life time.

A stepson, Edwin, is also left only $1. Another son, John T., is given a hotel at Colonial Beach and is to share with his sister, Effie M. Kessler, the running of a barber shop business. The daughter is also to receive the house at 717 Tenth street southeast. She and John are to divide the remaining estate with the latter acting as executor.

Enforcement of Auto Parking Rule Is Urged

Stricter enforcement of the regulation prohibiting the double parking of private automobiles and giving the privilege of such parking to commercial vehicles when curb space is not available was asked of the District Commissioners yesterday by the board of governors of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

The board suggested this stricter enforcement rather than elimination of the regulation as recommended by the Traffic Advisory Council. The association members expressed the opinion that considerable congestion, now existing, could be done away with by stronger enforcement of the regulation instead of its abolition.

For the eighth time in ten days, a sneak thief worked in the Y. M. C. A. Policeman Cited On Abuse Charge

Representative Busby, Who Is From Mississippi, Is Complainant.

Private C. J. Garry, attached to the Third Precinct, yesterday was cited to appear before the Trial Board next week in answer to charges of abusng a Mississippi representative.

Jeff Busby, the representative who filed a complaint against the policeman, told Capt. J. F. Beckett, of the Third Precinct, that he was halted at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue by Garry for alleged failure to obey a traffic signal. Busby denied he disobeyed the signal, and in the argument which ensued Garry was said to have used profane language in directing the representative to the station house.

Garry was cited to appear before the trial board by Maj. Pratt on the recommendation of Capt. Beckett. Garry is said to have admitted calling the member of Congress a "liar, but nothing worse."

Police Can Not Halt Autos Unless Law Is Involved, Rule

The corporation counsel's office yesterday ruled that a policeman could not cause a person to be fined for not stopping when he was hailed by him unless the driver had committed a traffic violation or the officer was operating a semaphore.

The ruling was made when Earl Dixon, a cab driver who lives in Rosslyn, Va., was brought into Traffic Court by Private A. J. Loftis, of the Seventh Precinct, who told Judge Ralph Given that he had hailed Dixon while he was driving along Canal road and he failed to stop.

Loftis at the time was watching a house on Canal road in an attempt to capture an escaped prisoner. Dixon drove near the house, stopped, and started off again, when the officer hailed him. He was not caught until the policeman traced him through the automobile number.
